D. C. Leads Big Cities in Aggravated Assault Cases

Six-Month Report By FBI Shows One Incident for Every 414 Residents Here

By Charles E. Davis, Jr., and Jean Reiff
Post Reporters

On the basis of population, Washington led 16 cities of 500,000 or more in aggravated assaults during the first six months of 1950 and was second only to Chicago in the total number of such cases.

This is based on statistics contained in the semi-annual crime report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation released yesterday and on crime rate computations by The Washington Post, based on the FBI statistics and the tentative 1950 population report of the Census Bureau.

Among the 16 American cities credited with a population of 500,000 or more, Washington on the basis of population ranked:

First in aggravated assaults with 1911, one for every 414 residents.

Fourth In Murders

Fifth in robberies with 435, one for every 1821 persons.

Sixth in burglaries with 1740, one for every 455 persons.

Fifth in larcenies over $50 with 833, one for every 951 persons.

Fifth in larcenies under $50 with 3773, one for every 209 persons.

Tenth in auto thefts with 691, one for every 1146 persons.

The FBI report on crime for the first six months of 1950 lists all cities of 100,000 or more population (based on the 1940 census) and makes no allowance for a ratio of crime incidence to population.

Even on this basis, Washington ranks second in the total number of aggravated assaults (its 1911 cases being exceeded only by Chicago's 2184 such cases.)

Similarly, Washington is ranked, without allowance for the number of crimes per population, ninth in murders, sixth in robberies, eighth in burglaries, eighth in larcenies $50 and over, sixth in larcenies under $50 and eleventh in auto thefts.

The tentative 1950 census report has placed the District's population at 792,234, making it the ninth largest American city. Cities with greater population are, in order, New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland and St. Louis.

The Washington Post, in computing the ratio of crime to population, used 16 cities which, according to tentative 1950 census

Barge Mules Turn Sightseers, Strand 25 Persons on Canal

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

The mule-train power plant of the sturdy Canal Clipper suddenly conked out at full speed yesterday, causing instant frustration of 25 passengers in the millpond ripples of the C. & O. Canal.

Forcing a change of mules—to men—in midstream was the unexpected appearance around the bend at Foxhall and Canal rds. nw. of an unidentified cross-country runner in a white sweat shirt.

Tom and Mike, a pair of venerable mules that have towed the 50-foot sightseeing barge from 30th st. to Brookmont, Md., for years, found this unexpected intrusion not to their liking.

Bound for the 30th st. starting point on the return trip, they bolted from their customary four-knot gait, broke the 50-foot towrope attached to the bow of the Clipper, and reversed their field.

When last seen by the incredulous crew of the craft, Tom and Mike were on their way to a new 4-mile record for the stretch between Foxhall rd. and Lock No. 5 at Brookmont.

Frank C. Shepard, of McLean Gardens, a geographer with the Army Map Service, described the ensuing excitement.

The three-man crew and National Capital Park guide, who know every shoal and mudbank in the canal, called a conference.

Within seconds, lacking an anchor or life raft, they decided to pole the Clipper the remaining mile to safety. They also dispatched a one-man rescue party to search for Tom and Mike.

"The poles didn't work, because the barge kept banging against first one side of the canal and then the other," Shepard recalled, indicating the width of the waterway at that point.

The crew and a passenger rose to the occasion by leaping onto the bank nearest the Potomac River, grasping the remaining 20 feet of towrope, and taking the place of Tom and Mike.

After darkness fell, the Volga-like boatmen trudged within sight of the dock at 30th st., where a fair-sized throng had gathered to welcome the hardy seafarers, who were more than an hour behind schedule.

Word had arrived from upstream that Tom and Mike, their harness shattered but their equanimity restored, had been intercepted by a couple of hikers along the towpath near Brookmont.

Loose War Talk Decried By Acheson

Rearming West Can Alter Soviet Plans, He Says; Receives Freedom Award

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Secretary of State Dean Acheson said tonight this Nation must avoid the "terrible error" of assuming that war is inevitable because in this world of peril the result of error "may be death."

Acheson decried "irresponsible" war talk and warned that "foolish talk about preventive war, or the inevitability of war, will help to make war inevitable. It does not need to be so at all.

"The dangers about us are deadly dangers," he said. "Here in all somber truth is a situation where the consequences of error may be death."

Acheson addressed the ninth anniversary dinner of Freedom House, which presented him with its annual Freedom Award, citing him as the "valiant and constructive voice leading the democratic world toward unity against tyranny."

Acheson said that no one can tell how Russian calculations may be affected by irresponsible war talk in this country.

Owes Serious Leadership

He declared that this Nation owes "serious and responsible leadership" to its allies and added:

"If we keep always before us that our purpose in building military power is to enable us to settle our differences by peaceful means, then we shall avoid the terrible error of talking and acting as though the end of our effort is war."

Acheson explained that it was essential to build military strength now to prevent the differences between Russia and the West from being "settled by default."

"As the great military inequality is reduced, negotiation becomes possible," he said. "The common objectives which make broad compromise possible between the Soviet leaders and the rest of the world are now lacking. A compromise which moves one just a little closer to his own elimination is not a compromise."

When the Soviet leaders realize the strength and durability of the free nations, Acheson said, "some modification of their determination to achieve world domination could follow."

"This," he said, "would open a door on many possibilities for the peaceful adjustment of differences. This process of adjustment is the purpose of our efforts."

Terms U. N. Action Milestone

Acheson termed the United Nations actions in Korea "a milestone on the way to a collective security system" and said that "behind the shields of our defenses, free societies must demonstrate their vitality, their responsibility, their superior ability to respond to man's true needs and wishes."

American United Nations Delegate Warren R. Austin, who presented the Freedom House Award to Acheson, said, "The American people are fortunate in being able to count on such honesty and courage in their Secretary of State."

Freedom House is an organization founded to further the one-world ideas of the late Wendell Willkie.

40,000 Allied Troops Across 38th Parallel; More Yanks Hit North To Aid GIs Over Line

TOKYO (Monday), Oct. 9 (AP).—General MacArthur today gave Communist North Korea its "last chance" to surrender.

With South Korean forces deep inside Red territory in force and the first United States troops also north of the thirty-eighth parallel, the United Nations commander told North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung:

"Unless immediate response is made by you in the name of the North Korean government, I shall at once proceed to take such military action as may be necessary to enforce the decrees of the United Nations."

MacArthur's final demand was broadcast from Japan and relayed throughout Korea from the Seoul radio station one week and a day after he first told the North Korean high command to surrender or face total military destruction.

There has been no answer from North Korean authorities to repeated broadcasts of MacArthur's first surrender demand.

U. N. Resolution Included

Today's ultimatum included the text of a resolution adopted Saturday by the United Nations General Assembly in New York authorizing the unification of Korea. This gave MacArthur a free hand to take appropriate steps to stabilize the country, which has been divided by the thirty-eighth parallel into Communist North and Republican South.

The U. N. commander apparently was ready to strike the knockout blow against the Red Korean army at any time he chose if the Communist government continued to ignore the surrender ultimatum.

At his command were 12 infantry divisions and overwhelming air and sea forces. U. N. warships were operating freely along both coasts. All North Korea was within easy range of ground-supporting fighter planes and fighter-bombers.

Within 10 Miles of Key Port

More than 40,000 soldiers — mostly South Koreans — already are across the artificial boundary that has divided Korea since the country was liberated from Japan at the end of World War II.

The South Korean Third Division was reported within 10 miles of the east coast port of Wonsan. This division has advanced more than 90 miles since crossing the thirty-eighth eight days ago. They were in sight of Wonsan Bay

Thousands See Gulbenkian Art Collection

Forty Masterpieces Lent National Gallery By European Oilman

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Several thousand art lovers defied bad weather yesterday to attend the opening of the Gulbenkian art exhibition at the National Gallery of Art, considered one of the most important events of its kind ever held in Washington.

When the doors to the four east-wing galleries housing the 40 works of European masters were opened at 3 p. m., an estimated 500 persons were waiting anxiously.

The National Gallery's auditorium, seating 300 persons, overflowed with visitors who heard Aline Louchheim, associate art editor of the New York Times, discuss the collection in a 45-minute lecture at 4 p. m.

For almost two hours, passage from one of the four galleries to another was difficult, the crowd was so large. One gallery official said the turnout, despite the rainy weather, compared "most favorably" with the first day of the famous Austrian collection exhibited last year. In two months, 830,000 persons attended that exhibition.

The current show is of paintings loaned by C. S. Gulbenkian, probably the foremost and certainly the most publicity shy private collector in the world.

The masterpieces, dating from the fifteenth through the nineteenth centuries, have been on exhibit at the National Gallery of Art in London since 1936, except during the war.

They are expected to remain on exhibit here for an indefinite period, probably two years. The exhibition here was arranged by the National Gallery of Art as a feature of Washington's Sesquicentennial observance.

Among the artists represented in the show are Rembrandt, Rubens, Frans Hals, Carpaccio, Dierick Bouts, Van Dyck, Gainsborough, Boucher, Fragonard, Corot, Romney, Manet and Monet.

A picture by Degas—who is also represented by a self-portrait—of a man and a painting is of particular interest, for the National Gallery of Art's catalogue says there is "convincing" reason for believing that the man is Cezanne, and the scene is "probably laid in Cezanne's studio."

None of the paintings have been

Prompt Curbs On Basic Items Gain Support

Economists Still Shun General Price, Wage Controls at Present

Unhappily and reluctantly, Government officials are more and more coming around to the view that selective price controls must be attempted, and fairly promptly.

Most Administration economists had hoped to avoid direct regulation of wages and prices, at least for many more months. Now a growing group of highly-placed experts think the job should be begun at a basic level—on major industrial raw materials and perhaps also building supplies—within the next month or so.

For the time being, however, the question of wage and price ceilings is academic. This is because no organization exists to handle the tremendously complicated business.

A Start Made

A start has been made, however, with the appointment of Dr. Alan Valentine, 49-year-old Rochester, N. Y., educator and businessman, as administrator of the new Economic Stabilization Agency (ESA). The White House has also indicated that a price stabilization director and a nine-man wage board will be named soon.

This Thief Should Go Far, Inventory Of Loot Indicates

Larceny is an uncertain endeavor. An early-morning thief filched a fortune in transportation when he stole the black leather wallet of Edward J. Connors, a vice president of the Union Pacific Railroad.

There were passes good for anywhere on 15 of the country's major railroads, and a pass good for rides on all airlines. But only $15 in cold cash to go with it all.

Connors, in Washington for a conference with railroad officials, reported to police that the wallet was stolen from his room at the Raleigh Hotel sometime between 6 and 8:30 a. m.

150 GI POWs Believed Seen Fleeing South

U. S. Planes Drop Food After Plea Spelled Out With Mounds of Earth

UNITED STATES FIFTH AIR FORCE, Korea, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Airmen today reported that a group of 150 men, believed to be escaped American prisoners of war, are working their way south through North Korea in an effort to reach United Nations lines.

An Air Force spokesman said the group first was sighted in a rolling wooded area southeast of Pyongyang Saturday afternoon by an American pilot.

The pilot estimated the group at 150 to 190. They had spelled out the word 'food" with mounds of earth.

The pilot reported his discovery to Kimpo Airfield. Other planes flew to the spot immediately and dropped food and equipment.

Rescue and transport planes to pick up the men returned to the area early today but could not find the men.

"Indications point to the fact that the food supplies and other equipment had been sufficient for them to scatter and start moving south individually or in small groups," the spokesman said.

From the point where the group first was sighted, it is about 50 miles to the United States First Cavalry Division's lines.

The prisoners are believed to be from among 3000 Americans held by the Reds around the North Korean capital and in Sariwon, 35 miles south.

Experience at Seoul indicated the Communists probably tried to move the prisoners north ahead of advancing United Nations troops.

It was believed possible the prisoners may have escaped their Communist captors while on the road. Four American prisoners who escaped near the thirty-eighth parallel last week said they merely sat down in a ditch and waited for the rest of the column to march past.

B-29s Soften Pyongyang Road

Airmen Blast Paths of Fire For U. N. Units in North Korea

TOKYO (Monday) Oct. 9 (AP).—American tactical planes Sunday blasted fiery paths for advancing American and South Korean ground forces inside North Korea while B-29 bombers softened road and rail approaches to the Red capital at Pyongyang with daylong strikes.

Fifth Air Force pilots rocketed and bombed Red positions ahead of two columns of the United States First Cavalry Division driving north and northwest of Kaesong. They struck everything that moved inside Wonsan, the big Communist-held east-coast port as South Korean elements approached within 10 miles of that objective.

Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge reported his Fifth Air Force fighters and light bombers flew 231 sorties during the day, and for the first time in the war, about half the strikes were in support of United Nations troops north of parallel thirty-eight.

B-29s taking off before dawn from their bases in Japan and Okinawa ranged over the Pyongyang area on the west coast and east to Wonsan, dropping 350 tons of bombs on rail lines, bridges and highways the Reds needed to move supplies.

Red Warehouses Destroyed

Rocket attacks by F-80 jet fighters destroyed three warehouses in the Pyongyang area.

The Pohang airstrip, abandoned August 13 when Communist ground forces advanced within a few hundred yards of the field in southeast Korea, is now "fully operational," the Air Force reported. The reactivated Pohang Air Base is home for the Thirty-fifth Fighter-Bomber Group, putting these planes within a half hour's flight of targets north of the 38th parallel.

Jet fighters reported successful strikes on about 250 Red troops and vehicles northwest of Kumwha, road junction 20 miles north of the parallel.

Rail Lines Attacked

Another flight of jets also hit Red troops in the same area. "We killed many Communists and destroyed at least four trucks," Capt. John Kropenicki, Newark, N. J., said.

Pilots reported they destroyed five locomotives, 19 trucks, nine vehicles, four warehouses, one ammunition dump, one gasoline dump and 13 buildings. Two trucks, 15 vehicles, two supply dumps, 15 troop buildings, 32 railroad cars, one locomotive and one railroad bridge were listed as damaged.

BEYOND THE THIRTY-EIGHTH PARALLEL (Monday), Oct. 9.—American troops, acting on orders from General MacArthur's headquarters, today stabbed north of the thirty-eighth parallel for the first time.

Under drenching skies, tank-led patrols of the United States First Cavalry Division probed north, placing American forces officially in the battle for North Korea. Until today only South Korean troops had been permitted to attack across the artificial boundary.

At the Fifth Cavalry Regiment's headquarters the orders to cross the parallel was greeted with cheers. The Second Battalion commander, Lieut. Col. Paul Clifford, of Franklin, N. H., said, "We have been sitting around

Heaviest Casualty List Names 1211, With 255 Killed

The heaviest casualty list of the Korean campaign, released yesterday by the Department of Defense, contains names of 1211 members of United States armed services.

The deaths number 255; those wounded in action, 822; missing in action, 73; and injured, 48. There were 13 prisoners of war on the list.

Every State and the District had one or more names on the list.

The heaviest previous fighting toll was reported just a week ago today, Sunday, October 1. That list contained the names of 915 killed, wounded, missing, injured and prisoners.

The lists have been from one to two weeks behind events in Korea. Defense officials said yesterday's list reflects hard fighting around Seoul and in other places following the Inchon landing.

Sultan in Middle As Moroccan Flag Starts 'Red' Battle

BORDEAUX, France, Oct. 8 (U.P.). A welcome demonstration for the Sultan of Morocco turned into a near riot here today when French police mistook the Red Moroccan flag for a Communist banner. Some 20 demonstrators and 10 policemen were injured and the Sultan's automobile was pelted with stones.

The Sultan, who had just arrived for a state visit, was trapped between police and the Moroccan demonstrators, who carried a sign that welcomed him to France.

A group of 250 Moroccans gathered in the square and hoisted the red Moroccan flag. Police thought they were Communist demonstrators and began to push them out of the square. The Moroccans resisted, but finally fled. When the Sultan arrived they suddenly appeared again, breaking through the police cordon.

Demonstrators and police then engaged in a free-for-all, with the Sultan's automobile in between them. A police charge eventually cleared the area.

More Floating Mines Destroyed Off Korea

TOKYO (Monday), Oct. 9 (U.P.).—U. S. Navy and South Korean naval forces have destroyed more of the floating mines endangering United Nations naval forces off Korea, general headquarters announced today.

A PBM Martin Mariner patrol bomber blew up one mine ahead of American vessels giving first support to the South Korean Third Division on the east coast, the announcement said.

District Man Killed in Korea; 8 Others Listed as Wounded

A Washington man has been killed in action in Korea and eight other men from the metropolitan area have been wounded, the Department of Defense reported yesterday.

Listed as killed was Corpl. Allen Boyd Malachi, 24, son of Mrs. Louise Malachi of 2256 12th pl. nw.

Listed as wounded were:

Capt. William W. Nairn, 3d, son of Col. and Mrs. William W. Nairn of Route 1, Silver Spring, Md. (Four Corners rd., Wheaton, Md.).

Corpl. Arthur E. Massey, 23, brother of Mrs. Gertrude Emmons. Notification given at 5910 Spaatz pl., Twinbrook, Rockville.

Corpl. William J. Kadic, 20, son of Karl Kadic, 4515 Chestnut st., Bethesda, Md.

Pfc. Finley Grills, 21, husband of Mrs. Dorothy L. Grills, 1745 L st. ne.

Pfc. Rudolph Grayson, jr., son of Rudolph Grayson, 1759 T st. nw.

Pfc. Donald J. R. Murphy, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Murphy, 906 Butternut st. nw. (Previously reported wounded and returned to duty.)

Pfc. William H. Spaulding, jr., son of Nora M. Spaulding, Route 1, West Falls Church, Va.

Pvt. Earl J. Ready, jr., son of Earl J. Ready, sr., of 4801 North Lane, Bethesda, Md.

Corporal Malachi was born in Durham, N. C., but spent his childhood here, attending Banneker Junior High School and Phelps Vocational High School. He entered the Army in January, 1945, and had been stationed in Japan since V-J Day.

Mrs. Malachi said she was notified of his death October 1. The last letter she received from her son was dated around August 1, when he was about to leave Japan for Korea. He wrote that he didn't mind going to Korea but was worried because there were so many young, inexperienced boys in his group, Mrs. Malachi said.

Besides his mother, he is survived by two brothers, John and Edward, and two sisters, Mrs. Marion Ruffin and Mrs. Mary Haziel, all of Washington.

A graduate of West Point in 1947, Captain Nairn served at Fort Benning, Ga., before being sent

U. N. to Speed Korean Relief And Unification Programs

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 8 (AP).—United Nations machinery goes into high gear this week to speed relief to Korea in the wake of military advances and U.N. Assembly political action guaranteeing unification of the country.

All organs of the U.N.—the North Korean Commission, the Economic and Social Council, the specialized agencies for health, feeding and technical assistance, and the U.N. staff—are working on plans to coordinate the program authorized by the Assembly in its 47-to-5 vote Saturday.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie said the emergency relief program alone now totals more than $34,000,000 and is growing. The long-term rehabilitation program to set Korea on its feet again cannot be guessed at until the new seven-nation Korean Commission gets into the country for a survey.

Lie prepared over the weekend a detailed report on emergency needs to present to the Economic and Social Council Tuesday. He said the council should have its first Korean relief and rehabilitation plan shaped in three weeks.

Lie emphasized in a U. N. radio broadcast that "it is essential that all member nations bear in mind the high significance of this phase, not only for the people of Korea but for the peace and stability of the world."

Diplomats and U. N. officials have been preaching—ever since the Korean unity and rehabilitation program was broached in the U. N. over Russian opposition—that U. N. forces have proved aggression can be stopped and now

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 8 (AP).—Would you like to prospect for diamonds just by looking at air photos taken from a mile or two up?

Or uranium? Or gold, tin, iron, lead, oil?

All this can be done, and much more, with Cornell University's airplane photos of about one-third of the earth's land surface.

The clews were developed by Prof. D. J. Belcher of the the School of Civil Engineering. Some of them are almost incredible. Drainage pipes, buried underground, show as white lines. The drier earth above them causes a slight change in color of vegetation, which shows white.

White spots the size of pin points in the Midwest were identified as ant holes. For several feet around each hole the ants track the vegetation enough to change the colors.

Gold deposits have been discovered on photos by earthquake faults. Iron, by a slight change in colors of leaves. Air oil prospecting is widespread.

Around uranium deposits there is usually colored earth, mainly yellow. This shows white.

Diamonds are found in "pipes." These are circular deposits of blue clay about two miles in diameter extending deep down. Prospectors plow furrows looking for blue clay, but this requires years. The vegetation on top of a blue clay pipe is different enough to reveal the circular formation.

Belcher says anyone can learn the photos. There are about 30 main formations. These repeat all over the world.

MacArthur Repeats Surrender Demand

after penetrating the Reds' outer defenses.

5 Divisions in Red Territory

On the west side of the peninsula, patrols of the United States First Cavalry Division walked north of the boundary Sunday for the first time. They crossed without opposition from captured Kaesong, two miles south of the parallel.

Perhaps larger American forces already had followed them across. Fifth Air Force pilots said one cavalry prong was driving north of Kaesong while another was advancing north and west.

In all, five U. N. divisions were in North Korean territory in whole or in part. Whereabouts of the other seven was shrouded in the secrecy of MacArthur's plans terrain eastward to the Sea of Japan.

The South Korean Eighth Division also plunged across the parallel on the highway running northward of Uijongbu. The Republicans hitting toward Chongong, about 2 miles north of the parallel, ran into stiff Communist resistance.

Aerial reports indicated more fully the possibility the Communists would make their big defense around their capital at Pyongyang, near the west coast, 35 air miles north of the parallel. Road traffic continued heavy in daylight hours, a sign of desperation, as Allied aircraft slashed repeatedly at everything that moved.

Fighter bombers roared north of the parallel for their first heavy day of ground support for foot troops in Red territory. A total of 111 ground-support sorties were flown, nearly half of them around Wonsan and the remainder near Kaesong.

More Communists Surrender

Meanwhile, cut-off Red troops in South Korea continued to give up. MacArthur's Headquarters said the total of prisoners now exceeds 50,000. During the last two days 10,000 have surrendered.

More than 1000 of these were captured when a force of about 2000 Reds was virtually annihilated near Yongdong, 75 miles northwest of Taegu. It was before Taegu that the Communist invasion of South Korea finally was stalled by United Nations defense forces and then shattered by the combination of a general Allied offensive and the daring amphibious landings at Inchon September 15.

A United States Eighth Army spokesman said the Communist force near Yongdong, one of the largest still reported behind Allied lines, was heavily struck from the air. He estimated 600 were killed or wounded.

The United States foot cavalry crossed the thirty-eighth parallel after a swift thrust along the highway to Kaesong. They passed through South Korean units that had been pulled back for reassignment from this flank position northwest of Seoul. The cavalry drove across the Imjin River, then quickly built up supplies for the northward advance.

Associated Press Correspondent William Jorden, reporting from the Wonsan front, said elements of the Republic Third Division broke through the Red defense positions 14 miles south of the city by using their numerical superiority to outflank the Communists.

Foe's Manpower Short

Jorden said the Reds were dug into cleverly prepared ridge positions but lacked the manpower to protect their flanks. This was the same problem which confronted the outnumbered Allies in the early months of the Red invasion.

The Republicans pushed on another four miles, then were stopped again by heavy Red fire from a ridge line just south of Themandai River. This was the last ridge before Wonsan, the main target of the east-coast advance and a goal the Republicans expect to get only after bitter fighting.

An estimated 10 artillery pieces supported by smaller weapons were in the overrun outer Communist defenses near the village of Hupkok, 14 miles south of Wonsan.

Elements of the Republican Capital Division, which had driven inland from the east coast, wheeled northward and were pushing near Mundung, about 21 miles north of the parallel. MacArthur's Sunday headquarters summary said the Reds put up scattered resistance.

Farther westward, the Republican Sixth Division rammed into heavy Red opposition near captured Hwachon, hydroelectric center 7 miles north of the parallel, the summary added.

North Koreans Concede U. N. Forces Across 38th

TOKYO (Monday), Oct. 9 (U.P.), The North Korean Army admitted for the first time today that United Nations forces have crossed the thirty-eighth parallel.

A communique broadcast by the Pyongyang radio said units of the North Korean People's Army were counterattacking enemy troops which had "crossed the thirty-eighth parallel and advanced."

The communique said that, in the Kaesbng area, North Korean troops "withdrew to a more advantageous position." Units of the United States First Cavalry occupied Kaesong yesterday.

to strike if there was no quick response to today's surrender demand.

The U. N. commander's message said:

"In order that the decisions of the United Nations may be carried out with a minimum of further loss of life and destruction of property, I, as the United Nations commander in chief, for the last time call upon you and the forces under your command in whatever part of Korea situated to lay down your arms and cease hostilities."

MacArthur added:

"And I call upon all North Koreans to cooperate fully with the United Nations in establishing a unified independent and democratic government of Korea, assured that they will be treated justly and that the United Nations will act to relieve and rehabilitate all parts of a unified Korea."

His first demand included no time element, but this time MacArthur demanded a quick reply. He said:

"Unless immediate response is made by you in the name of the North Korean government, I shall at once proceed to take such military action as may be necessary to enforce the decrees of the United Nations."

The U. N. commander addressed this second ultimatum to the Premier of North Korea. His first demand had been addressed to the North Korean commander in chief, which position Premier Kim Il Sung also holds in the Red regime.

Supporting the American crossing of the thirty-eighth parallel, fighter-bombers concentrated along a sector north of Kaesong where a main highway to Pyongyang, the Red capital, cuts through the hills.

The Air Force report did not pinpoint positions of the two cavalry advances nor indicate their size.

Field reports were slow in drifting back, for communications were difficult.

Kaesong was captured Saturday by the First Cavalry. It lies on the left flank of the penetrations into North Korea along main highways cutting through a 120-mile stretch of mountainous Additional American patrol actions began just before dark and extensive American forces were striking northward as this correspondent left the front at about midnight. Some patrol elements were met by sporadic small-arms, mortar and machine-gun fire, but the enemy's aim was bad.

The biggest hazard was thickly strewn land mines which blew up two jeeps and disabled two tanks in the sector I covered.

Orders sanctioning the crossing reached a battalion of the Fifth Cavalry Regiment during mid-afternoon. Within an hour patrols had set out toward the parallel from points northeast of Changdan, a small town east of Kaesong, which is 2 miles south of the parallel.

Until today battalion commanders of the Fifth Regiment had been strictly instructed to refrain from crossing the parallel. There had been a mistaken impression at lower military levels here that political considerations might hold up the American assault north toward the Red capital of Pyongyang.

But the delay was for military reasons only, according to top American officers at Tokyo. Troops could not be sent across until the Americans were prepared to go in force.

It has been MacArthur's view that the U. N. resolution of June 27 calling for restoration of "peace and order" in Korea applied to the entire country. To carry out the U. N. instructions the enemy has to be pursued and destroyed completely wherever he may be. He now happens to be concentrated in North Korea.

The Fifth Cavalry patrols reached and crossed the parallel last night to an unknown depth exactly a week after MacArthur put his first surrender demand to the North Koreans.

Kaesong itself was seized Saturday by the Sixteenth Reconnaissance Unit of the First Cavalry without a single shot being fired.

Lieut. Col. Hallett Edson, of Salt Lake City, whose Eighth Cavalry Regiment troops now occupy the city, reported yesterday, however, that mortars just north of the ridges ringing Kaesong had lobbed in 10 rounds during the day.

Colonel Clifford's outfit obviously feels the same way. Saturday, George Company, which is dispersed on mountains north of Changdan, "accidentally" crossed the parallel, penetrating several hundred yards before they realized their "mistake." G Company ran into no opposition whatsoever. One platoon of last night's patrol encountered mine fields.

I brought back several of the wounded to battalion headquarters in my jeep. One was an engineer assigned to mine detecting.

With an all-out American offensive imminent, top commanders here and in Tokyo are talking in terms of ending the war by the end of October—barring intervention by the Chinese Communists. But so far the enemy appears to be determined to continue to take a toll of Americans for all ground gained in this area.

U. N. to Speed Korean Relief, Unification

the U. N. must prove it can help reconstruct the country.

The Economic and Social Council task will be to determine the roles to be played by the various U. N. agencies.

John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to the United States delegation in the U. N., will open the political committee debates Monday morning on the Acheson program. It calls for emergency Assembly sessions if the Security Council is paralyzed by veto, for U. N. peace patrols to report on aggression, and for setting up U. N. troop units in the armies of every member nation for collective action if needed again.

Six Nations Back U. S.

Six countries have joined the United States in sponsoring a resolution to carry out the aims of the United States Secretary of State. They are Britain, France, Canada, Turkey, the Philippines and Uruguay. There was a possibility other countries might join the sponsors before the amendment is submitted.

Dulles said the United States welcomed all suggestions for strengthening the resolution and acknowledged that he did not expect it to be adopted in its present form.

He said in a radio broadcast the aim was to stamp out little wars and thus avert big ones.

"Korea has taught us a number of lessons," he said. "Among them is the recognition that the United Nations should not have to improvise the organization of its police power after an act of aggression has occurred."

Warren Austin, Chief United States delegate who fought the battle supporting the Korean unification plan in the political committee, will take over his October chairmanship of the Security Council Monday in a closed meeting.

The session was called to discuss the post of secretary-general. Lie's five-year term expires next February.

May Be Turning Point, U. N. Official Asserts

MARTINSVILLE, Va., Oct. 8 (AP).—A United Nations official declared here today that the U. N. fight against aggression may be the turning point into an era in which men will "very largely outlaw war as we have always known it."

This estimate of the possible historic significance of the Korean action was made by Arthur Sweetser, director of the U. N. Information Center at Washington, in a speech at an American Legion ceremony. The ceremony was held under the United Nations flag in the public square of Martinsville in honor of citizens of the town and of Henry County fighting in Korea. The American flag flew from its regular staff in the public square some 150 feet away.

Sweetser asserted it his belief and that of other U. N. officials "that this conflict in Korea is indeed entirely different from any other that has ever preceded it."

"For the first time in the history of mankind," he said, "a group of nations is fighting together under a single flag, which you have met here today to honor, and under the authority of a formal decision duly taken by a constitutional agency, to protect the world community against a common law breaker."

Girl Fights for South Korea

Arms Spending Exceeds Army Goal by 500%

By The Associated Press

The Army said yesterday it is spending 500 percent more for "hardware"—guns, tanks, ammunition and other weapons—than was planned before the Korean war and the rearmament program.

Similarly, it said the outlay for equipment to be sent to the Atlantic Pact allies under the military defense assistance program has been upped 400 percent.

The Army set forth its report in a press release summarizing expenditures on major items under the present program. It came at a time when the House Armed Services Committee was inquiring into military plans to build up national defense.

"Prior to the conflict in Korea," the report said, "the Army had intended, in fiscal year 1951, to spend about 312 million dollars for the guns, tanks, ammunition, armored vehicles and other materiel which constitute 'major' equipment, and it had requested that sum as its basic budget estimate. However, since the Communist invasion began in Korea this figure has been upped $1,650,000,000 to a total of about two billion dollars."

The Army said it planned originally to spend about 500 million dollars for procurement of materiel for the Atlantic Pace defense program during the current fiscal year.

Now, however, it estimates that of the new funds recently approved by Congress, an additional two billion dollars will be spent for equipment to meet pact requirements.

War-Status Hirings Hit as Unpatriotic

Secretary of Labor Tobin yesterday branded as "unfair and unpatriotic" reported instances of employment discrimination against workers subject to military service.

Tobin said he is receiving numerous complaints that members of reserve components of the armed services and those subject to the draft are being refused jobs and promotions, and in some instances discharged because of their liability to military service.

Defense Dept., GSI Team Up On Federal Transportation

By The Associated Press

The military and civilian arms of the Federal Government have pooled their traffic know-how for the first time.

Authorities said the effect will be to eliminate waste of effort and facilities such as was involved in the overlapping of responsibility and inadequate coordination of World War II transportation of Government property and employes.

Action came in the form of an agreement between Secretary of Defense Marshall and General Services Administrator Jess Larson, providing for unified handling of their major traffic management matters.

The agreement is effective immediately.

The National Defense Transportation Association also got under way a program for utilizing the skills of the Nation's transportation experts in an emergency.

President Harry F. Chaddick of Chicago said the association is compiling a roster of experts to assist the armed forces in solving problems which might develop in the big job of moving men and supplies.

The Larson-Marshall plan provides that the Defense Department will represent the military departments—and GSA the civilian agencies.

The two agencies agreed to:

1. Give mutual assistance where necessary:

2. Jointly develop manuals and guides for shipping, personnel, for the economical and efficient movement of public property.

3. Set up joint training programs for transportation personnel.

W. German Socialists Flay Defense Plan

DORTMUND, Germany, Oct. 8 (AP).—Leaders of West Germany's powerful Socialist Party today declared bitter opposition to German rearmament until Germany is given full equality and guaranteed effective defense against attack.

"The German fatherland must not be offered up as a sacrifice for other countries," declared Dr. Kurt Schumacher, Socialist chairman, in an address before 50,000 party followers here.

Schumacher attacked the recent appointment of three Western generals to advise the West German Government on internal security.

"We are not ready to join this camouflaged demilitarization," he said.

Announcing the appointments Friday, the Allies said the generals were to aid the Germans in planning protection of West Germany against Communist attempts to undermine its government and on the reinforcement of Allied garrisons in Germany.

Schumacher argued that in case of war, Germany's fate will be decided by the effects of the first blow.

He insisted that the Allies station "a powerful defense force on the Elbe River"—West Germany's eastern frontier, next to the Russian zone.

His party will approve German participation in West European defense "only when given the same rights, the same chance, the same risks" as other western nations, he declared.

Strong West Can Avert War, Germans Are Told

FRANTFURT, Germany, Oct. 8 (AP)—American High Commissioner John J. McCloy told the German people tonight the United States is convinced that a strong West, now abuilding can prevent war.

The recent New York conferences of the Western Foreign Ministers and the North Atlantic treaty powers marked a "turning point on the road to European security," McCloy said.

"We do not believe that war is inevitable," he declared in a German language broadcast over six West German radio stations. The speech also was carried to Soviet-occupied East Germany by the American station in Berlin.

Referring to what he called West German concern over security, McCloy said the proposed unified army for the defense of Europe will become "a vital force within a short time."

The Western Allies are sending more troops to West Germany and have pledged to regard an attack on Western Berlin or West Germany as an attack on themselves, he added.

He cautioned the German people against believing talk that the foreign ministers granted wide concessions to the West German government in an effort to "buy" German military help against the East.

Naturally, he went on, the question of a possible German defense contribution was bound to arise in creating a unified European army. Though no definite decisions on German rearmament have been taken, he said these points are clear:

1. "Any German contribution would have to be on a just basis and within the framework of an integrated European defense. That means that no national German army will be permitted."

2. "The Western Allies fully recognize that a German contribution (to Western defense) is possible or desirable only if the people, the Parliament and the government of Western Germany actively favor and support it."

West German Transport Strike Is Set

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 8 (U.P.)—Leaders of West German public transport workers today set a Wednesday deadline for a republic-wide strike in all public transportation if no government attempts to meet union wage demands have been received by then.

The strike of 20,000 inland waterways workers continued for its third day, with canal and river traffic reduced to a trickle. The union reported that traffic on the Rhine had also been virtually stopped.

Union officials at Stuttgart headquarters said no proposals for new negotiations had yet been received from the federal government and that they were therefore proceeding to call out the union's 70,000 members throughout West Germany by Wednesday.

Both union and government sources said no sabotage or other incidents had been reported. This is the republic's first attempt to deal with a strike of its own employes.

Despite union claims to have stopped Rhine River traffic, the federal Ministry of Transport reported barge and boat traffic on the river "unhampered." The ministry said this was also the case of the Neckar, Main and Danube Rivers.

The ministry said movements of coal had not been affected, since most coal is now transported by rail.

Reds Building Road to Tibet, Peiping Says

HONGKONG (Monday), Oct. 9 (U.P.). — The Chinese Communist commander of Northwest China, Gen. Peng Teh-huai, has disclosed that his troops are building a highway from Tsinghai Province into northern Tibet, Peiping radio announced today.

Peng said his soldiers were "working courageously under very difficult conditions" at an altitude of more than 2½ miles, but he failed to say where the highway begins or will end. He did not say, either, whether his soldier-laborers had entered Tibet.

One highway, through Tang Pass, already links Lhasa, Tibet's capital, with Tsinghai Province. Peng's road apparently is being built farther north. The highway must be blasted from some of the world's most rugged, and little known, terrain.

Tsinghai borders Tibet on the north and east and is east of Singkiang Province, from which Communist armies have invaded northern Tibet, according to Wang Chen, Communist secretary in Sinkiang.

Both Peng's and Wang's reports seemed to be issued in the form of year-end reports on accomplishments since the Communists took power one year ago. Obviously they had the tacit approval, at least, of the Red regime.

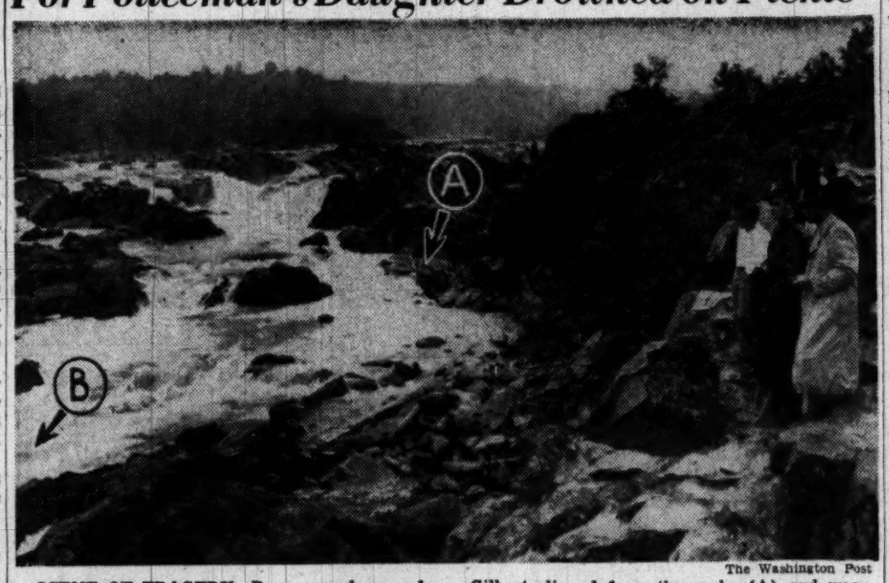
Peng said China and Russia jointly are exploiting the Yumen oil fields in Kansu Province and "many other oil fields are being prospected."

Walker Awards Kean Silver Star for Gallantry

TOKYO, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, commanding general of the Twenty-fifth Division, has been awarded the Silver Star by Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commanding general of the Eighth Army, a dispatch from the front said today.

Kean was honored for gallantry in personally directing his troops during the capture of Chinju and during the crossing of the Nam River.

Darkness Over Potomac Again Halts Search For Policeman's Daughter Drowned on Picnic



The Washington Post

SCENE OF TRAGEDY—Rescue workers and spectators look at the rapids in the Potomac River at Great Falls where 13-year-old Roberta Gilbert slipped from the rocks (A) and was last seen struggling in the swirling water (B) farther on downstream

PVT. W. K. GILBERT
. . . Roberta's father

Rescue workers from Montgomery County and the District yesterday searched in vain for the body of a 13-year-old girl who drowned at Great Falls Saturday but were again halted by darkness.

Roberta Gilbert, daughter of a Metropolitan Police Department private, was swept into the rapids below the Falls when she fell from a rock at the foot of a winding path leading to the Falls. She was on an outing with a group of boys and girls and four or five adults.

The father, Pvt. W. K. Gilbert, yesterday maintained a vigil near the scene of operations where Montgomery County police, Cabin John rescue workers and U. S. Park Police were scrambling along the rocky banks of the river through the drizzling rain for a distance of five miles below the Falls.

Several members of the Metropolitan Police, friends of Gilbert, joined the searchers in the effort to recover the girl's body.

"The worst part is just the waiting," the father said.

He was called to Great Falls late Saturday from 14th and H sts. nw., where he was directing traffic, and remained until darkness halted the search. He returned at 9 a. m. yesterday and stayed until afternoon, when he went home to "try to comfort" his wife.

Private and Mrs. Gilbert live at 3018 Massachusetts ave. se. They have another daughter, Catherine, 3 years old.

Sergt. Frank Griggs of the Montgomery County police, said the water below the Falls varies in depth from an inch to 70 to 100 feet. There was a chance the body was caught in the depths, and might not come to the surface for two or three days.

Pope Receives Farley

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—James A. Farley, former United States Postmaster General, and Mrs. Farley were received in private audience by Pope Pius XII today at the Pope's summer residence here. Farley will leave Monday for Madrid.

Pastor, Wife Flee in Fear From China

SALISBURY, Md., Oct. 8 (AP).—A missionary and his wife have slipped through the Iron Curtain because they felt "it would mean concentration camps" if they stayed in Communist China.

The Rev. and Mrs. Louis Dennis told their story in a letter to Dennis' parents in Powellville, near Salisbury, Md.

They said they had been anxious to leave China after the Communists enveloped Nanping, in Fukien Province, last year, making their work in the China Methodist mission field tougher with each passing month.

The couple began to fear the Reds would not let them leave, probably because "we were on the main communication line between North and Central China."

"We knew it would mean concentration camps if the drive on Formosa were to begin," they added.

Mrs. Dennis' health was the reason they gave for their request to be allowed to leave. Approval came in September, and they left for Hongkong.

"The people of China are much worse off now than ever," they wrote. "The policy of the new government is that no one is to be well off or have money. Everyone is to be impoverished and live on a bare minimum so that they can be controlled more easily."

The couple said they plan to arrive on Maryland's Eastern Shore sometime in November.

Food for Thought

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Oct. 8 (AP).—Library workers here found page markers returned with books included a strip of raw bacon, salted cracker, scissors, a rosary, playing cards, coin, receipted bill, picture proofs, wedding invitation, old films, school notes, jewelry, draft card and—a $20 bill.

British Minister For Economics Arrives for Talks

Hugh Gaitskell, British Minister of State for Economic Affairs, arrived in Washington by plane last night for a series of top-level talks with United States officials.

Gaitskell arrived in Washington National Airport at 7 p. m. and left immediately for a private dinner at the British Embassy. He will confer with embassy officials Tuesday before contacting Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder and high State Department officers.

Diplomatic officials here have said Gaitskell's trip has nothing to do with revaluation of the pound or reported British attempts to obtain "free" American dollars to help finance Britain's rearmament plan.

Bulgaria Seen Picked to Test West Defenses

LONDON, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Bulgaria has decided to keep in the army a class of military trainees normally due for release, military headquarters reported here today.

The move was designed to reinforce the army with a group of fully trained men, more suitable for emergency tasks than reservists recalled from civilian life, the sources said.

Officials linked this with growing reports that Bulgaria—among the most reliable of Moscow's satellites in eastern Europe—appeared to have been chosen by the Cominform to "probe" the West's defenses in Turkey and Yugoslavia.

While no immediate anxiety over aggressive moves was felt in official quarters, caution was advised with regard to future Cominform intentions.

The developments and their potential dangers will be considered shortly when Turkey and Greece become firmly associated with the military planning of the Atlantic treaty organization for Mediterranean defense, the sources said.

Latest tension in Turco-Bulgarian relations provoked by the forced emigration of the Turkish minority from Bulgarian territory was considered a Cominform attempt to create trouble in the area adjoining the Iron Curtain.

The Turkish government today closed the Turco-Bulgarian border for the second time because Bulgaria was shipping Turkish refugees to Turkey without visas.

Rearmament Sabotage Drive Boomerangs on French Reds

PARIS, Oct. 8 (AP).—In a radical change of plan, Communists in France evidently have called off direct sabotage of rearmament because it was doing the party more harm than good.

Barely a year ago, the Cominform told the French Communists to get "hard" and there was a great purge of indifferent Communists.

One highly placed government source indicated today that the orders for a "cease fire" came from Moscow about three weeks ago, accompanied by a blistering criticism. French Communists, this source said, were criticized for failure of their ballyhooed determination to stop shipments of American arms into France and to stop foreign arms manufacture.

Further, the same informant said, they were acused of having let the sabotage policy alienate many Frenchmen who were sympathetic with other Communist aims.

Foreign sources said they knew of no direct end-the-sabotage orders from Moscow or elsewhere outside France. They agreed, however, that in recent weeks there had been no direct sabotage of arms shipments from America nor of arms production.

They agreed that some new policy clearly has been adopted, intended, among other things, to heal a growing breach between the Communist-dominated General Labor Federation and the two non-Communist organizations, Workers Force and Christian Unionists.

Grenade Hurled in Hall As Duclos Is Speaking

AUCH, France, Oct. 8 (AP)—One person was seriously injured today when two grenades were hurled into a hall where French Communist leader Jacques Duclos was speaking.

The grenades fell in the rear. Duclos, on a platform in the front, was not hurt. Witnesses said three young men threw the grenades, then fled in an automobile.

Everything at Steak!

By Albert Parchey Mesirow

AS THIS IS being written, the World Series is in full blast. Not being exactly red-hot about any ball games with which our own Nats are not immediately concerned, my thoughts gravitate to the happy estate in which the Philadelphia and New York taxicab drivers find themselves. Baseball fans are notably generous. But in Washington, where our cabbies have gone without a legal fare raise for eight long years, the situation is anything but rosy. Winter is coming on. Fuel is to be bought. Warm clothes have to be provided for the wife and children. And alone, the legal fare barely covers the inflated post-war prices of the cab, gasoline, oil, insurance and service. So, unless there is a marked increase in the individual tips given them by the Washington public, it's going to be a grim season indeed for our cabbies. Please remember that

Twenty cents is no more than fair
To tip the fellow who gets you there!

steaks! steaks! steaks!

The small minority of folks who rush out at noon "to grab a quick bite" don't read this sort of a column anyhow, so I don't have to worry about boring them. But those who like to make the lunch hour an oasis of relaxation in the bleak stretch of their business hours, might be interested to hear about the luncheon treat that is waiting the hungry gourmet at our establishment. For the benefit of those who have not yet visited us, let me preface these remarks by pointing out that our atmosphere is quiet and peaceful, our decor conservatively designed to induce relaxation, and our service silent and attentive. You come in and are ushered to a comfortable seat at a snowy-clothed table, or in a secluded booth. You are handed a large and interesting menu, on the back of which is printed the famous essay on "How To Get Rich," (by Parchey, out of an anonymous sage of the 18th century). This you peruse (to your profit and amusement) while the waiter brings you the dry Martini you have ordered. It arrives, frosty cold; clear, bright and tingling. As you sip, contentment steals over you. You are suddenly ravenous. And at that precise m o m e n t, the white-coated waiter places before your eager appetite, a dish whose steaming redolence sets your mouth a'watering. It's a great, superbly broiled chopped Tenderloin steak, covered with a rich sauce of tender onions sauteed in creamery butter, and laced with fine wine. Chopped, not ground, in our own kitchen, from the succulent heart of the finest Tenderloin, this is indeed a masterpiece of the culinary art. Melting-tender, full of rich flavor, broiled exactly as you desire it . . . and steaming hot! With it comes a heaping platter of crispy-dry, golden, crackly-hot French fried potatoes, a dish filled to overflowing with Chef Wilbur Smith's memorable cole slaw (creamed with buttermilk) and the famous Parchey roll basket with lots and lots of butter! From such a delectable lunch, you can return to your work stimulated in body, refreshed in spirit, renewed in vigor . . . and virtually untouched in purse. For you will have spent but 50c for your Martini and $1.00 for your chopped Tenderloin platter! Can you think of anything better such a small sum can buy you today? If you can, please come tell me about it. Our address: 19th at K St., N.W.

PEOPLE I WOULD RATHER BE (if I weren't myself): Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, A.B., M.A., Ph.D., LL.D. Because as a small-town boy from Findlay, Ohio, he stormed the ivy-covered citadel of Harvard and graduated with honors; because he distinguished himself as a post-graduate student at U. S. C.; because he was one of America's youngest university presidents (at Arizona U.); because when he came to the presidency of our George Washington University in 1927, he found it relatively undistinguished, definitely small and impecunious; because under his able administration it has achieved substantial riches, an enrollment of over 12,000 and universal recognition as one of the really great centers of learning; because he served with distinction as Director of Research of the Army during World War II; because he is a member of Delta Phi; because he is as able an amateur farmer as he is a scholar; because he is not only vastly respected but genuinely liked by everyone whose path crosses his, including . . . of all people . . . the G. Thousands See Gulbenkian Art Collection seen in the United States before, with the exception of those acquired from American collectors.

According to John Walker, chief curator of the National Gallery of Art, Gulbenkian—a European oil magnate living in Paris and Lisbon—"has acquired his paintings from some of the greatest public and private collections. He was one of the first private collectors to persuade the Soviet government to sell a number of treasures from the Hermitage Gallery in Leningrad."

Many of the eighteenth century paintings come from various branches of the Rothschild family, whose art holdings, if considered collectively, may very likely be the greatest in private hands today, Walker reports.

In addition to the 40 paintings that go on exhibit today, there will be on display in various parts of the National Gallery a collection of distinguished early Egyptian sculpture; eighteenth century books, including a 1734 edition of Moliere's works with original drawings by Boucher; three pieces of furniture designed by Charles Cressent, a friend of Watteau, formerly in the collection of Baron Nathaniel de Rothschild; and a fourteenth century Syrian (Arabic) bottle.

"Great Astonishment"

The Times of London, commenting editorially on the 40 paintings, said this past May that when the collection was first seen in 1936 "it caused great astonishment that a living collector should have been able to bring together so many paintings of such high quality."

Before Gulbenkian, an octogenarian, consented to the loan of the paintings, he requested that his art objects on loan to the Washington gallery be made exempt from death duties in the event of his death. To meet his request, the Eighty-First Congress several weeks ago passed Public Law 749, "excluding from gross estate of nonresident alien works of art on loan to the trustees of the National Gallery of Art."

Referring to the eventual disposition of the works, the London Times said wistfully, it "has been the subject of gossip and speculation. The collector's intentions are, however, a matter for himself alone. The only hope that it is seemly now to express is that, after these paintings have spent their two years in Washington, he may renew his generosity and allow them to be seen once more in our own National Gallery, where they have given pleasure to so many thousands."

Owner Never In U. S.

Gulbenkian has never been in the United States, but Walker said "he always talks about coming for a visit. He is one of the few Europeans I know who feel that America did a good job in the war and really helped Europe after the war."

Gulbenkian has been described as "the world's No. 1 man" in the fields of art and oil and possibly in finance. Estimates of his fortune run into astronomical figures and it is said that he may be the richest man in the world.

Despite his wealth, his passion for anonymity has made the facts of his life obscure. He is believed to have been born 81 years ago in Romania of Armenian parentage, and it is said that his father lived to be 110 and his grandfather to be 95.

Gulbenkian is said to have been educated in Paris and at London University's King's College and to have begun to be a power in international oil politics about 1910. He was a one-time partner of the late Sir Henry Deterding, who long headed the Royal Dutch-Shell combine. Gulbenkian's interests today are said to extend into all parts of the world.

Just when or how he became interested in art is not known either.

25c Pay Hike Reported Goal Of Steel Union

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—The CIO Steelworkers Union was reported ready today to ask the steel industry for a 25-cent hourly wage boost, while railroad and telephone workers also pressed for fatter pay checks.

The demands on behalf of several million workers came at a time when the Nation was stepping up armaments production and President Truman had called upon labor to hold the wage line.

The Hammond (Ind.) Times, in an exclusive story, spelled out the objectives of the Steelworkers Union, often a pace-setter for the rest of the Nation in its contract gains.

The Times said that, in addition to the 25-cent demand, the union would seek time-and-a-half pay for Saturday work, double time for Sundays, paid holidays, severance pay, a guaranteed annual wage and improved pensions.

The USW proposals were said to have been drafted in a meeting of the wage-policy committee at Atlantic City and to be scheduled for announcement at district meetings Monday.

Javits Asks U. N. Probe Of Mindszenty Case

By the United Press

Representative Jacob K. Javits (R.-Lib., N. Y.) yesterday asked the United Nations to reopen the case of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty, who was sentenced to life imprisonment on treason charges by a Hungarian Communist "People's Court."

In a letter to Secretary of State Dean Acheson, he said, "I request that this case be reopened in the U. N.—it has never been taken off the agenda—and that information be sought through United States diplomatic offices in both Hungary and the Soviet Union as to the present status of the cardinal, the care he is receiving and where he is now confined."

Papers Assail Windsor for 'Stirring Mud' in Memoirs

LONDON, Oct. 8 (U.P.).—Two London newspapers today criticized the Duke of Windsor for "stirring up mud around the throne" by publishing his memoirs.

The Sunday Pictorial said the duke's story of his renunciation of the throne for Mrs. Wallace Simpson was "the most embarrassing parade of royal confidences ever revealed by a former King of this or any other country."

The Pictorial said the duke's dislike of the late Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin and Dr. Lang, the late Archbishop of Canterbury, may have "impaired his judgment of their behavior" in opposing his wish to marry Mrs. Simpson.

The Pictorial said the duke's "argument has been weakened by the general knowledge that his apologia has been handsomely rewarded with cash."

"No more misguided action has ever been taken by a man in the Duke of Windsor's position. In trying to whitewash himself he has blackened our royal family in prejudiced American eyes," the publication, The People, said.

Two Quakes Recorded

BOMBAY, India, Oct. 8 (AP).—Poona Meteorological Office tonight reported its seismograph recorded an earthquake of "great intensity" with its epicenter near Timor, an island in the Pacific north of Australia. A later shock of moderate intensity was recorded, with its center northeast of Diburgarh, in Assam.

U. S. Losses in Korea Estimated at 20,359

The Nation has suffered 20,359 casualties in the Korean war, according to a compilation of Defense Department lists through last night made by the Associated Press.

Of the total, 3075 are listed as dead; 12,022 wounded; 4149 missing; 1035 injured in war zone accidents, and 78 known prisoners of the enemy.

Virginia's total of 573 exceeds the Maryland figure of 343 by 230, while 74 are recorded for the District of Columbia. These totals are broken down as follows: (D-dead; W-wounded; M-missing; I-injured, and P-prisoners).

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA	D	W	M	I	P
Army	12	41	9	5	0

Aggregate totals	147	581	216	43	3

The Associated Press list, compiled from daily announcements of casualties whose relatives have been notified, is slightly under the 20,756 announced Thursday by the Defense Department, because the latter total is made up from lists available several days ahead of those released for publication.

Of the services, the Army's casualty roll totaled 18,488, of which 2650 are dead and 10,651 injured; the Marines total is 1679, with 340 dead and 1294 wounded; the Air Force, 139, with 32 dead and 24 wounded, and the Navy, 116, with 53 dead and 53 wounded.

D. C. Soldier Killed in Korea

to Japan in July, 1948. He was with the Twenty-seventh Regiment, Twenty-fifth Infantry Division.

He married Janice Lawton of Denver, Colo., in January of this year in Kobe, Japan, where her father was stationed as a lieutenant colonel.

Before suffering a leg wound he had received a battle field promotion from first lieutenant to captain for "meritorious service." He also won a Silver Star and Bronze Oakleaf cluster his wife said.

Corporal Massey was wounded on September 19, according to his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Emmons. An under-age Marine volunteer of World War II, Massey enlisted in the Army in 1947. He was at Fort Monmouth, N. J. in the medical detachment before being shipped overseas in September. He is on his way home now, according to a telegram he sent Mrs. Emmons from Guam.

Corporal Kadic, 20, who first enlisted in the Army about three years ago wrote his mother from a hospital in Japan saying he had been wounded while bandaging another wounded soldier under fire.

He had reenlisted in the Army in July, went overseas in mid-August, and was reported wounded on September 20.

Wed 3 Months Ago

Private First Class Grills was married three months ago at Fort Myer, where he was stationed for a year before going overseas. Mrs. Grills said she last heard from him late in August, just before arriving in Korea.

The father of Private First Class Grayson said he was notified September 29 that his son had been seriously wounded September 19. He said he learned his son had gone overseas when he got a letter from him from Tokyo last May.

Private First Class Murphy was wounded for the second time in less than a month. On July 25 he was shot in the left foot. On August 22 he was shot in the right foot and suffered other injuries, his mother said. He wrote that almost all of his company had been killed or wounded, according to Mrs. Murphy.

Spaulding's parents received word by telegram that he had been "slightly wounded." He was with the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division, Twenty-first Regiment, and was shipped overseas to Japan in April, 1949.

Private Ready wrote home two days after he was reported wounded—September 19—but did not even mention being wounded, his mother said. In service since May, 1949, Ready was sent to Korea in August.

Spofford Echoes 'No Letdown'

The United States must continue to finance European rearmament until the free nations are strong enough to withstand Soviet aggression, Charles N. Spofford, chairman of the North Atlantic Pact Council, said last night.

Speaking over the radio, Spofford echoed the warning of high Administration officials that there must be no "let-down" in the defense effort because the tide has turned in Korea. He declared, "No one can be complacent about the expansion of the Soviet empire."

Meanwhile, representatives of Western European nations were gathering here for important talks on means of bolstering their defenses against the threat of aggression by Soviet satellites. The urgency of the meetings, most inclusive since the North Atlantic Treaty was signed, was highlighted by Red-sponsored disorders in Austria and the coming October 15 elections in the east zone of Germany.

Spofford, who acts for Secretary of State Acheson at Londan headquarters of the Atlantic Pact nations, gave the impression a commander in chief for integrated North Atlantic military forces would be chosen by European members. At any rate, he said, it was "too early" to speculate on who he might be.

"If the Europeans would like us to suggest an American," he said, "I think we could find some good ones to choose from."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has been suggested as a candidate acceptable to Americans and Europeans alike.

The Communist attack on South Korea, Spofford said, had awakened Americans to the fact that Russia would risk armed attack to achieve their goals.

"We now know," he said, "that we have to continue our strengthening program until such time as the Kremlin is convinced that aggression is unwise. As for the cost, only future events can determine that."

Concerning any time limit American taxpayers might expect in spending for rebuilding military forces of the 12 Pact nations, which already has absorbed some five billion dollars, Spofford said:

No Time Limit

"Our military assistance program has no specific time limit. I would think that our rearmament program and that of our allies would continue until we had built up sufficient strength to successfully resist an attack on us."

D. C. Leads in Aggravated Assault Cases

figures have 500,000 or more population. These cities are Washington, Chicago, Houston, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, Boston, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Minneapolis and St. Louis.

The FBI report on crime for the first six months of 1950 does not list any figures for New York City (where the police force is being shaken from top to bottom by charges of a multi-million dollar graft payoff to police by bookies) and Jersey City, N. J.

Data Not Complete

The FBI explanation is "Complete data not received." Crime figures from these two cities were omitted last year for the same reason.

The figures in the report are based on the FBI's examination of more than 400,000 records in connection with State and local arrests. The FBI carefully points out, however, that it does not vouch for the accuracy of the data sent in by the chiefs of police in different cities.

Although Washington's crime rate was not an enviable one when considered on a basis of population, it did represent an improvement over the first six months of 1949.

The 1911 aggravated assaults for the first six months of 1950 were 85 fewer than the 1996 cases reported for the same period in 1949, a decrease of 4.3 percent. This compares favorably with a national increase of .4 percent in urban areas and 4.7 in rural areas for the same offense.

Washington has been a leader in aggravated assaults in past years. For the entire year of 1949, the District reported 4314 aggravated assaults, a total not equalled by any city in the nation.

Many Decreases

Comparing the period of the first six months of 1950 with the similar period of 1949, Washington showed a decrease in murders of six, or 16.2 per cent; a decrease in burglaries of 628, or 24.5 percent; a decrease in larcenies over $50 of 86, or 9.4 percent, and a decrease in larcenies under $50 of 418, or 10 percent.

The number of robberies reported increased, however, by 107, or 24.6 percent, while auto thefts jumped by 119, or 17.3 percent.

Without question, Washington's worst showing is in .aggravated assaults.

The FBI defines aggravated assault as "assault with intent to kill assault; by shooting, cutting, stabbing, maiming, poisoning, scalding, or by the use of acids." It does not include "simple assault, assault and battery, fighting, etc."

While Washington reported 1911 aggravated assaults for the first half of 1950 and Chicago 2184 such cases, computations by The Washington Post, based on these figures and the tentative 1950 population report of the Census Bureau, show that:

One aggravated assault case was reported for approximately every 414 persons in Washington, while Chicago's rate was only one such case for every 1662 residents.

Thus, your chances of being a victim of aggravated assault in Washington are two and a half times greater than they are of you hitting the gambling combine number on a given day (999-1).

Here's how other cities of 500,000 or more population figured in aggravated assaults:

Philadelphia, 583 cases, one for every 3528 persons; Los Angeles, 1361 cases, one for every 1435; Detroit, 1680 cases, one for every 1093; Baltimore, 443 cases, one for every 1699; Cleveland, 183 cases, one for every 4970; St. Louis, 1029 cases, one for every 828; Boston, 118 cases, one for every 6682; San Francisco, 223 cases, one for every 3410; Pittsburgh, 170 cases, one for every 3963; Milwaukee, 50 cases, one for every 5073; Buffalo, 73 cases, one for every 7898; New Orleans, 250 cases, one for every 2273, and Minneapolis, 16 cases, one for every 32,338.

Chicago, generally considered the home of gangsterism, heads the parade with 135 murders for the period, but—

Per capita computations show Washington reported one murder for every 25,555 persons (thus, your chance of being murdered here is roughly 25 times greater than hitting the number) but Chicago had only one murder per 26,902 population.

From this standpoint, Houston is the most dangerous city in which to live. It reported 38 murders—one for every 15,621 residents—to top the per capita list.

Right behind was New Orleans with 34 murders, one for every 16,717 residents. St. Louis is third in this computation with 35 slayings, one for every 24,350 persons.

How did homicide go in the 11 other major cities? This is how they reported, with the per capita computation added:

Philadelphia, 62, one for every 33,180; Los Angeles, 22, one for every 88,819; Detroit, 43, one for every 42,735; Baltimore, 32, one for every 29,370; Cleveland, 25, one for every 36,381; Boston, 7, one for every 112,650; San Francisco, 19, one for every 40,023; Pittsburgh, 9, one for every 74,861; Milwaukee, 7, one for every 90,419; Buffalo, 7, one for every 82,358, and Minneapolis (safest city of all), 2, one for every 258,705.

Per capita-wise, Chicago places first in robberies, 1 for every 1196 population; San Francisco is second, 1 for every 1459; Los Angeles, third, 1 for every 1470, and Detroit, fourth, 1 for every 1585.

On a per capita rating these five cities are ahead of Washington in burglaries: Houston, 1 for every 264; Los Aangeles, 1 for every 327; Detroit, 1 for every 352; San Francisco, 1 for every 376, and St. Louis, 1 for every 426.

Washington Fifth

Four cities in the major 16 precede Washington in the percapita computations of larcencies over $50. Theye are Los Angeles, 1 for every 347; Boston, 1 for every 863; New Orleans, 1 for every 895, and Chicago, 1 for every 948 citizens.

In larcenies under $50, Washington trails Detroit, 1 for every 163; San Francisco, 1 for every 165; Los Angeles, 1 for every 194, and Cleveland, 1 for every 197.

Washington's best record is in the category of auto thefts with 691 such cases reported. In this category, Washington ranks eleventh among all cities, eleventh among the 16 major cities, and tenth in the per capita figures with 1 auto theft for every 1146 persons.

On the basis of tentative 1950 census figures, Washington had approximately 3.91 murders per 100,000 population, 54.92 robberies per 100,000; 241.29 aggravated assaults per 100,000; 219.69 burglaries per 100,000; 105.18 larcenies over $50 per 100,000; 476.84 larcenies under $50 per 100,000, and 87.24 auto thefts per 100,000.

Despite the high crime rate, Washington ranks second among the 16 major cities in the number of policemen per capita, with 1 for every 417 persons. Boston leads with 1 policeman for every 316. Houston is far down the list with only 1 policeman for every 1161 persons.

Nationally, the FBI reported, crime increased 7.4 percent in the rural areas and 1.9 percent in the urban sections over the first six months of 1949.

This was a further jump for rural crime, for it increased by 7.6 percent in the first half of 1949 over the first six months of 1948.

The 1950 upswing for rural areas was registered in every category except negligent manslaughter and auto theft, which were down 3.7 percent and 3.9 percent, respectively.

Rural Totals Shown

Rural murders were up 1.6 percent; rape, 4.8; robbery, 3.4; aggravated assault, 4.7; burglary, 14.9, and larceny, 5.8.

City crime, up only 1.9 percent, showed its biggest increase in negligent manslaughter, which increased 19.8 percent. Aggravated assault was up .4 percent, burglary 1.9, larceny 2.2, and auto theft 3.2, but murder was down 1.1 percent, rape 4.6, and robbery 3.8.

Army Indicates It Will Investigate Camp Conditions

By The Associated Press

The Army indicated yesterday that complaints of bad conditions at Camp Pickett, Va., will be investigated by the Department of the Army, by the Second Army at Fort George Meade, Md., or by both.

The Forty-third Infantry Division is in training at Camp Pickett. Demands for an investigation have been made by Rhode Island Congressmen.

An Army spokesman said that Maj. Gen. Edward F. Witsell, the adjutant general, has not yet received complaints forwarded by Representatives Forand and Fogarty and Senator Green of Rhode Island.

In response to a question as to whether the Army is investigating the complaints, the spokesman said it is not. The complaints would have to be received first, it was added.

German Rightists Seek To Evade Bar to Office

BOCHUM, Germany, Oct. 8 (AP). The German Empire Party (Deutsche Reichspartei), an extreme right-wing group in West Germany, today ousted from party membership all followers who hold public office.

The admitted purpose of the ouster was to save office-holding members from dismissal, under a recent decision by the federal government at Bonn to remove all office-holders belonging to radical groups of either the left or right.

Bright Food Outlook Expected in Report

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

A significant picture of the food and fiber prospects for the United States—and many other parts of the world—will be made public Tuesday in the October 1 Government Crop Report.

It will tell how much the corn crops—the Nation's most important single harvest — has been damaged by early frost and bad growing weather. Although no figures are being collected to determine the extent of this damage, it is expected that State statisticians in the Corn Belt will volunteer sufficient information to furnish a definite forecast.

Crops are far enough along now to give a firm indication of the harvest. Many experts predict more soft corn than since 1947, and perhaps more than in that poor corn year. But soft corn isn't as serious nowadays as it was years ago, with modern methods of drying and storing it, either as grain or silage.

One thing is certain. This is another year of bountiful feed crops. They are the materials of which meat is made—both the fed meats of livestock, and the so-called white meats of poultry.

If there is much soft corn there will be more cattle feeding in the Corn Belt. Indications are that the number of cattle in the feed yards will be the greatest in history. That promises more choice beef in years. Farmers will buy feeders from the ranges and throw as much soft corn into them as possible, to put on weight rapidly and get rid of the soft corn before it spoils.

On the other hand, reports from the range country are that pastures are better than they have been for years, causing cattle men to keep their animals on grass longer than usual. All this promises a boost for our immediate beef situation.

Furthermore figures compiled by the Agriculture Department's expert on livestock, Charles Burmeister, indicate that the Nation's cattle breeding stock is expanding rapidly. It should. Beef cattle have occupied the most favored position in our livestock economy for 10 years, and in recent years have been the most profitable farm enterprise. Beef is one of the preferred food items. The demand for it strong whenever the Nation enjoys full employment and good incomes.

The Nation's cattle numbers reached an all-time high five years ago with nearly 86 million head. They reached that level in seven years from a low of 65 million head in 1938.

Cattle Men Feared Slump

In the immediate postwar period, cattle raisers, frightened by Government and other economists who predicted a postwar slump, sold breeding stock, until the numbers dropped to 78 million head in 1947.

The total now is about 80 million head, Burmeister believes. "The 1950 increase should be around three million," he said yesterday.

"At the rate of increase now in prospect," he added, "we may have 90 to 95 million cattle by 1954 or 1955."

Burmeister pointed out that this welcome situation is obtainable without devoting more cropland to livestock.

"With the reduction in horses and mules since 1920 and in sheep since 1942, and greater productivity as a result of soil conservation practices and new techniques, feed and grazing resources are ample to maintain this level of cattle numbers," he said.

An indication of the favored position, in regard to price, that beef cattle hold today, is shown by comparison of average cattle prices with other agricultural items.

In the years 1935 to 1939, 100 pounds of live cattle would buy 78 pounds of live hogs. This year it will buy 125 pounds. In prewar days, 100 pounds of cattle would buy 167 pounds of sheep; today 211 pounds.

Atrocities In Korea

It is almost academic, we suppose, to dwell on the violations of the rules of war by the North Koreans. The aggression itself, and Russia's involvement in it, are so flagrant a breach of the laws of nations as to render subsidiary actions incidental. But the deliberate release of floating mines, through which three American naval vessels have been sunk or damaged with substantial loss of life, hits a new low not reached in World War II.

In The Hague Convention of 1907, mines are recognized as legitimate implements of warfare, but with certain important restrictions. If mines are of the anchored variety, they must contain a device to render them inoperative if they should break loose; floating mines must become neutralized within one hour after they pass from the sower's control, and the indiscriminate release of floating mines is prohibited. The three mines in question, of Russian manufacture, were of the anchor variety, but there was no sign that they had ever been anchored, and the neutralizing mechanism had been destroyed. Goodness knows how many of these instruments of destruction have been loosed to menace, not merely naval shipping, but also hapless nonmilitary vessels of any nation.

On an even more grisly plane are the murders of civilians by the retreating North Korean land forces, murders now reported to run to 25,000. The Red forces indulged in wholesale slaughter, and the mass graves remind one only of Dachau and Buchenwald. It is technically incorrect to talk of this crime as genocide, but the difference is mainly one of terminology. Probably it will be difficult for United Nations military authorities to ascribe precise responsibility for many of these crimes, but a strong effort must be made to bring the perpetrators to justice. Even though total war is horrible in itself, the civilized world must always attempt to check the deliberate descent into bestiality and barbarism.

Chinese Speculators

It is unlikely that the interest of certain Nationalist Chinese speculators in the purchase of American soybeans, related by John Ball in this newspaper recently, arose from any desire to improve the diet of Formosa. A Commodity Exchange Authority investigation showed that on June 30 some 56 Chinese accounts owned 47.3 percent of all July soybean futures on the Chicago Board of Trade. This amounted to nearly seven million bushels—enough to have soybeans running out of the ears of the Formosans if there had been any intent to deliver them there. The surprising thing is that the speculators did take delivery on large amounts. CEA has no check on purchases after delivery is taken, but there is reasonable assurance that none of the amount has been exported. The purchases either are being held in storage or are being sold directly for feed or other uses.

There is no question that Chinese purchases, most of which were highly speculative, accounted for a large part of the astonishing rise in soybean prices this spring. Transactions seem to have been in two principal groups, one of them including 14 individual accounts represented by a Hongkong commission merchant. It is not unusual for foreigners to enter the commodity market, and certain individuals among the Nationalists are known to have sizable amounts of money tucked away. What is inexplicable is the large increase in speculation from March through June of this year. The only handy hypothesis is that the speculators had a pretty good hunch about the outbreak of aggression somewhere, if not in Korea, and that they were betting on making a killing in the general price rise. At one time it would have been theoretically possible for an individual to make a profit of 400 percent or more on his investment. The surprising thing is that, as far as can be figured, the Chinese transactions showed some losses along with gains.

Whatever the reasons for this curious disturbance of the market by the Chinese, the Chicago Board of Trade must bear some responsibility for facilitating it—for even after increased soybean activity began, the margin requirement was as low as 6.1 percent. Beyond this, the really shameful thing is that Congress dropped from the Defense Production Act all authority for the Department of Agriculture to step in and, by supervising trading margins, protect the public against this sort of market manipulation.

Sinews For The U. N.

Having set its course toward winding up the Korean affair, the General Assembly will today take up the Acheson plan for coping with any future act of aggression when the Security Council is unable to act. Most of the delegates seem to be keenly aware of the fact that United Nations resistance to aggression in Korea was possible only because a U. N. commission happened to be in Korea when the invasion began and the Russians were boycotting the Security Council. The possibility of such favorable circumstances in case of any future resort to force is remote. Free men know in their bones that the peace-maintenance machinery of the U. N. will have to be strengthened if that organization is to become the bulwark of security that its founders envisaged.

It is especially significant that the new peace plan will go before the Assembly with Great Britain, France, Canada, the Philippines, Turkey and Uruguay acting as sponsors along with the United States. Two weeks ago it was reported that the British and French were cool to the plan. They were said to fear that it would put too much power into the hands of the Assembly where the small nations have the controlling voice. As the resolution has taken shape, however, their misgivings seem to have disappeared. Or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that the dangers of doing nothing loom much higher than any risk of the small powers seizing the initiative and acting impulsively without the support to make their decision effective.

The resolution clearly recognizes the primary responsibility of the Security Council for the maintenance of peace and security. The Assembly would be called upon to act only if the Security Council were hamstrung. For this purpose the Assembly would be authorized to hold emergency sessions, and such a session might be called at the request of a majority of the Assembly members. The emphasis, however, is upon emergency sessions of the Assembly to be summoned by the votes of any seven members of the Security Council. As a practical matter, this would mean that whenever seven members of the Council were eager to move against an aggressor, and found themselves blocked by the veto, they would invite the Assembly to take over.

The proposed "peace observation commission" could be used by the Council, the Assembly or the Interim Commission when the Assembly is not in session. Its members could be sent to any spot where international tension is acute to report the facts. They would not need to wait for the Assembly to meet. On the basis of their findings, the Assembly could act promptly (by a two-thirds vote) and the nations would be expected to move immediately against the aggressor, using military units specially set aside for that purpose. Of course, the whole plan hinges upon the voluntary action of the nations to carry out the Assembly's recommendations, but the response in Korea has proved that this can be an effective means of joint action any time there is a powerful current of world opinion behind the recommendations.

The great significance of this proposed step is obvious. It would transform the U. N. from an instrument for the enforcement of peace when all the big powers agree, into a means of enforcing peace against one or more of the big powers whenever two thirds or more of the nations are willing to take that risk. We do not minimize the gravity or importance of the proposal. Yet no one should lose sight of the fact that the principle underlying the plan has already been invoked in Korea. The Assembly is now asked to prevent the United Nations from slipping back into the noose that was strangling it in the pre-Korea period. Its decision will be no less momentous, therefore, than was the courageous decision of last June to meet the Korean invaders with force.

Postscript

Well, the tumult and the shouting are over now, and the wheezing, creaking old professionals who constitute the bulk of the New York Yankees have proved that they had enough left in them for another world's championship. Not only that, but they took the series in four consecutive games. The last time such a thing happened was in 1939, when the Yankees overwhelmed the Cincinnati Reds. (But of the world's champions of 1950, only Mr. DiMaggio was among the world's champions of 11 years ago, although one or two of his colleagues of that epoch are still in active service elsewhere.) It was the sixth time that a Yankee club has made a clean sweep of the series, the other instances being in 1927 against the Pittsburgh Pirates, in 1928 against the Cardinals and in 1932 and 1938 against the Chicago Cubs. However, the Yankees themselves were once defeated four games to none in a World Series with the Giants, although they managed to fight one game to a draw. That, of course, was a long time ago, though not so long ago as the time when the Boston Braves astounded themselves and the world by taking four straight from the Athletics. And once upon a time—the old folks say it was in the year of the Jamestown Exposition, when Teddy Roosevelt was President—the Cubs beat the Detroit Tigers four games to none; but in those days it took five games to make a series, and one of them resulted in a tie.

Since the World Series was instituted about the beginning of this century the American League champions have won it 29 times and the National League representatives only 17. The disparity becomes more noticeable after the 1920s, when the character of the game was considerably modified by new pitching rules, by the tight-wound Australian yarn ball, by the new free-swinging method of batting and by the encroachment of stands over larger areas of playing surface, and particularly the foul areas. The World Series records, confirmed as they have been over 18 years by the results of the midsummer All-Star games leave no room for doubt that the strong clubs in the American League tend to be considerably stronger than the best clubs of the National League.

Nevertheless, the mathematical result of the recent series seems hardly a fair index to the relative merits of the contending clubs. There is no doubt, of course, that the Yankees were superior to the Phillies in almost all phases of the game, but the margin of their superiority was by no means as great as that, say, of the 1939 Yankees over the 1939 Reds. The main difference was in a kind of steadiness and knowledgeability; in other words, a difference in experience. The Yankees made the most of their breaks, the Phillies failed to make anything of the few they got. They seem to have been victims of their own youth and speed, that is to say of their overtuned reflexes. They were also pitifully weak in reserves, especially pinch hitters. They had apparently nobody at all capable of delivering a punch when it was needed. But at any rate they indicated that if they are a great ball club, they may be a potentially great one.

Property Covenants

An attempt to secure court enforcement of a racial restrictive covenant by the back-door device of a damage suit was properly thrown out last week by Judge Alexander Holtzoff. The suit was brought by six property owners against a neighbor who sold his home to Negroes. The plaintiffs claimed that this breached a covenant of 1946 and reduced the sale value of their own homes. Had the suit succeeded, it would have made the court the enforcer of the covenant and an instrument for the imposition of racial discrimination in violation of the fourteenth amendment. The Supreme Court ruled in 1948 that enforcement of restrictive covenants would be "judicial action contrary to the public policy of the United States."

The two restrictive covenant cases decided by the Supreme Court in 1948 involved the question of enforcement by injunction. But it was perfectly clear that the court intended to forbid judicial enforcement by any means. It did not invalidate private restrictive agreements "so long as the purposes of those agreements are achieved by the parties through voluntary adherence to the terms." In the case brought before Judge Holtzoff last week, there was no voluntary adherence on the part of the defendant, and the judge was quite right in holding that his court could not compel adherence. Undoubtedly such covenants are going to be broken increasingly from now on as individual parties to them find their terms disadvantageous. The trend had better be accepted; at any rate it can no longer be resisted by resort to the law. A healthier and economically more desirable residential pattern will result when they have been broken down completely.

Planning Bill

Some weeks ago we directed attention to the fact that the bill to reorganize the National Capital Park and Planning Commission was pigeonholed in the House at a time when planning for the defense of Washington is especially urgent. We pointed out that the NCPPC is virtually at a standstill for want of a chairman and the new powers that this bill would give it. Hard-pressed by other problems, however, Congress recessed with this measure still bottled up in the House District Committee. Only in the subsequent survey of unfinished business has the measure been recognized as a vital piece of legislation that ought not to be lost. Now, fortunately, Chairman McMillan of the House District Committee has announced that he will call the bill up when Congress reconvenes in November, and Representative Smith of Virginia (one of those who blocked the bill) has given it his indorsement.

We should think the Representatives of Virginia and Maryland would be especially eager to see the measure enacted, for one of its chief purposes is to place representatives of those States on the reorganized National Capital Planning Commission. With Washington spreading rapidly across the lines of both States and with defense planning for the area now taking in all the territory within 50 miles of the White House, enlargement of the commission has become essential to proper performance of its work. It would be inexcusably shortsighted to let the measure die in November and hold up the work of city planning until it could be enacted from a fresh start in the Eighty-second Congress.

AND THE DELPHINIUMS

He spiralled up the standards
In the dull, thin light of evening,
Half-seen: as quick and thorough in his search
As if he flew the first brave flight of day—
A shadow of blurred blades,
A dynamo of smooth and fitted feathers . . .

The storm broke early,
Sounding heavy gongs of thunder at the day's beginning;
The light-house shone,
The sea was colorless . . . there was no rain.

He came again to ravage blooms,
Tilting with sluggish bees still chilled with sleep
Upon the flowers' lips;
Blue lightning opened up the sky,
The ruffled steeples shook,
Drenched in such lambent hues
As live at roots of flame;

The bird stayed on . . . captive to booty.
His burnished back ablaze,
His wings . . . a gauze of fire.

Medical Monopoly

Policymakers of organized medicine face both a political and an economic crisis. It is precipitated by the delegates to the American Hospital Association voting to create its own Nation-wide hospital approval program. For over a quarter of a century this program had been conducted by the American College of Surgeons. The new setup was planned without inviting the American Medical Association to participate in early discussions. This leads the spokesman for the AMA to conclude "some voices in AHA want their association to be plaintiff, judge and jury in any standardization program." It boils down to an ideological battle between AHA which owns and operates hospitals, and the AMA, which inspects and approves them.

The hospital is the doctor's workshop. Hospitalized illness affects about one in ten of our people each year. This unfortunate 10 percent bears about 50 percent of the total cost of medical care. Obviously hospital costs are the key to better and cheaper medical care.

Through Blue Cross, hospitals were the first to lower the bankrupting costs of medical care. They combined risk-sharing insurance with mass production economies. These involved monopolistic contracts with certain elements of the medical profession. Radiologists, anesthesiologists and pathologists provided mass production services on a non-competitive basis. Many hospitals retailed these professional services at great profit to make up for losses in other departments.

To offset such exploitation these doctors protected their monopoly by invoking the injunction of medical ethics: "A physician should not dispose of his professional attainments or services to any hospital, lay body, organization, groups or individual, by whatsoever name called or however organized, under terms and conditions which permit exploitation of the services of the physician for the financial profit of the agency concerned."

So we have the paradox of our AMA fighting AHA monopoly by protecting the monopoly of pathologists, anesthesiologists and radiologists. It is unethical for hospitals to exploit and retail the personal services of these specialities. But in turn it is ethical for doctor monopolists to exploit other doctors, technicians and patients? We reduce our own thesis to an absurdity by inconsistency.

There is only one answer to our dilemma: Place hospitalized medical care on a freely competitive, non-profit and honest cost-accounting basis. End the non-competitive monopoly of pathologists, anesthesiologists and radiologists in hospitals. Give them a fair wage for personal service and give the patients advantage of mass production economies.

Warning To Greece

I disagree with Mr. Nicholson's letter of October 2 that "the country (Greece) and populace will suffer because of political jockeying" in the case of cutting the ECA funds by 10 percent. It will warn Greek politicians to be more careful in spending American taxpayers' money—and eventually will wake them up to the fact that they must really do something about the Greek people or face further cuts.

Therefore, Mr. Nicholson missed the point—what the American Government officials actually intended to do in the 10 percent reduction. I think it is a wonderful move; for the Greek politicians may no longer fool both the American officials and the Greek people just for their personal pockets or interest.

Now they are really going to have to do some constructive work for the Greek people in order to continue to receive American aid. There is no doubt in my mind that the cut was really a warning signal and if it is effective more aid will continue to come to the assistance of Greece. Greece must be helped financially up to 1952 and even beyond that date. Precautions must be taken that the funds are going to the right channels. JOHN E. PARASKEVAS.

"California Tragedy"

May I take this opportunity to commend your October 1 editorial with regard to the present controversy at the University of California. The issue and the sequence of events were correctly stated with one exception: "It (the faculty committee) recommended the dismissal of six others as unfit to teach."

There was never any question as to the fitness of these six men as teachers. Their dismissal was recommended solely on the ground that they "refused to cooperate with the faculty committee which examined them." In fairness to these six men I believe the correct charge against them should be used.

MRS. ROBERT C. F. GORDON.

Mixed Colleges

I wonder whether Mr. Merton Curtiss was writing seriously in his letter of October 3 when he said he is "weary of reading about local race prejudice and discrimination." I'm sure that a lot of us are, but I cannot find fault with those who continue to write about these evils. Nor can I agree with him that "prejudice is here to stay." That belief runs counter to abundant evidence that people can free themselves from their prejudices, and that one way to become free of prejudice is to stop putting it into action.

His suggestion that Negroes should go to Harvard, Yale, and similar schools and "let the trashy colleges alone" ignores several basic facts. First, although the colleges at whose doors Negroes have been knocking recently are not Harvards and Yales, they are the best colleges that their States provide for their citizens, among whom Negro citizens are numbered. Second, the financial expense of attending Harvard, Yale, and comparable schools is prohibitive to many capable persons, white and colored, who could, however, pay the smaller fees charged by the tax-supported college at or near home.

In addition, the students of the tax-supported professional school are in general the men and women who will be professionally associated after graduation. And finally, graduation from the tax-supported professional school may represent an advantage in curriculum. After all, only the University of Virginia School of Law teaches Virginia law.

Land "Reform" In Hungary

Permit me to recommend for consideration the inclosed memoranda. The authors are compelled to be anonymous because of the terror and of their families behind the Iron Curtain:

"True information about the Hungarian 'land reform' is of great importance for the Western Hemisphere for two reasons. One is that so-called Hungarian land reform is very significant for the other Russian-occupied states of Middle Europe. The other is that the criticisms published in the Western press so far are silent about the fact that this land reform versus the former proprietors annihilates private property.

"The land reform realized under the Communist occupation divided the landed properties into uneconomic small pieces. This was done in a country where one half of the inhabitants are not agrarians but of industrial, intellectual and other urban professions, whose supply of food can only be insured by a bigger production than the needs and production of the new small land owners.

"In order to comprehend the Hungarian land problem, it is necessary to know that the confiscated landed estates were for the greater part not at all capitalistic personal properties. The largest estates were family foundation estates whose administration was an official task of the state agricultural administration. It was not all necessary to tear them into small uneconomic pieces in the service of the social class struggle.

"This is even the more true of the ecclesiastical estates, of the landed properties of cultural foundations, of high schools, of the university properties, etc.

"It is quite understandable that under these circumstances there cannot be any hope of an adequate indemnification for estates robbed under the pretext of the land reform or confiscated for political reasons. True and adequate indemnifications are only possible in countries of good and stable currencies, but where the value of the estates or other goods to be compensated constitutes the overwhelming majority of the national wealth, as in Hungary, a serious indemnification is quite impossible for landed properties taken away. There was never any serious intention to do so.

"On the other hand it is quite impossible to accept the Communist fait accompli. This would be the most dangerous step for those who stick to the principle of private property. It would be the greatest encouragement for communism not only in little Hungary, but in every other country.

"The Western Hemisphere should at last open its eyes. It is the greatest worldwide irrationalism of today that, whereas the foes of private property and of economic freedom help each other everywhere by open and by underground movements and by the backing of a great power, at the same time there is no such solidarity between the adherents of the private property principle, nor does there exist any international defense and protection. Where democracy is in contrast to private property, there is always a creeping and growing of communism.

"It is time to create a powerful counter-international for the protection of private property and to realize an efficient help and an international defense against every aggression of this kind for every civilized victorious or defeated country. Prevent and forbid internationally every kind of 'land reform' carried out by property confiscation and allow expropriations only by complete and previous indemnification.

"To be efficient the international of the private property principle must be backed by the authority of the U. N. and by adequate international political and military forces, and in the first line by those of the United States of America. In the opposite case the Communist victory will advance everywhere."

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

Credit Where It's Due

TOKYO—These war reports, which are now coming to an end, have been mainly concerned with the Korean fighting as it has appeared from the company or battalion level. In this moment of incipient triumph, however, the remarkable contribution of the American commanders ought also to be recognized.

It is hard to imagine two more different men than Douglas MacArthur and Walton H. Walker—the one so grandiloquent, so given to rather old fashioned drama in his public ways and manners, and the other so short, bustling and in all ways unpretentious. But these two generals, with their oddly contrasting hints of Edwin Booth and a businesslike grocer, have been the joint architects of victory.

The first phase was MacArthur's. No one at home and very few people here can realize how near the North Koreans were to victory, or what daring it required for MacArthur to recommend committing American infantry in a seemingly hopeless cause. On the day when the North Koreans breached the Han River line, the South Koreans forces were utterly disorganized. There was nothing, literally nothing, to prevent the enemy from sending a mechanized column of armor and infantry straight southward to Pusan. By gambling 50 tanks, 200 trucks and 5000 men, he might have taken the all-important South Korean port in 48 hours.

IN JAPAN, meanwhile, all was unready, and by a tragic accident the division nearest to the ports was the one with the least combat training, the Twenty-fourth. Yet without hesitation, MacArthur began flying the Twenty-fourth Division into Korea. Only two companies had reached their position when the first shock of contact occurred. When they found even this handful of American troops in the line, the North Korean commanders wasted 10 days bringing up 100,000 men.

By then, General MacArthur had in the line the splendid total of two American battalions, and the remaining South Korean forces had been rallied. Again, after this next shock, the enemy delay for five days more, to bring up his heavy artillery. But by then, no less than two half-strength American divisions—all of the Twenty-fourth and the cavalry—had reached the front. And the burden now passed, for a while to General Walker.

The story of the southern beachhead has been often told. In basic outline, it was all too simple. Our lines, from first to last, were always terrifyingly thin. About every two weeks the enemy would mass for a new push, and tear a huge hole in the line somewhere. Walker would then scrape up just enough to prevent exploitation of the break-through, sometimes by taking outfits out of the line and leaving huge gaps in areas where there was momentarily no pressure.

Very few operations by American forces can have called for such sanguine energy, such coolness in husbanding infinitesimal reserves, such perfect immunity to fluster. In a situation that was always coming apart at the seams, there were times when very nearly everybody panicked. But Walker never did, even in the last great crisis, when a whole South Korean Corps gave way almost at the instant when the Marine Brigade was being taken from him for the Inchon landing.

WITH THE PASSING of that crisis, at the beginning of September, the lead was again MacArthur's. He had started planning the Inchon landing in July. The Marine commanders, looking over the appalling beach conditions there, had proposed Wonsan, on the other coast. But aside from being north of the controversial parallel, Wonsan was too far from the southern front and offered no promise of cutting the whole communications of the enemy armies. Disturbed by reports of the fearful risk, Gen. Lawton J. Collins and Admiral Forrest Sherman came to Tokyo to dissuade MacArthur from the Inchon project. But MacArthur's arguments convinced the Joint Chiefs that this was the one decisive blow that could be struck.

After that nothing remained to be done but secure the needed forces in the short time available — because of tides and weather, September 15 was the only possible date to land at Inchon. The Marine division was assembled by detachments from all over the world. The cannibalized Seventh in Japan was brought up to strength with 8,000 South Koreans. MacArthur, knowing the risks to be run, sailed with the fleet with the express purpose of countermanding the whole landing operation if its first part, the capture of Wolmi Island, should fail. Instead, Wolmi fell, and then Inchon, and then, after bitter fighting, Seoul itself. And so we were brought to the present situation in which final victory can only be dashed from our grasp if the masters of the Kremlin choose to start a third world war.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Gettysburg and Col. Blimp

Mr. Truman, cruising on his yacht, has been reading, so it was said last week, a book on the Battle of Gettysburg. This reminded me somehow of once having heard Frank Cobb say of the New York Evening Post (several owners back) that it always had the very latest dispatches from the Battle of Bull Run.

Lippmann

FOR IF the Commander in Chief wishes to read about the kind of war we are involved in from Korea to Indo-China, the Battle of Gettysburg, or indeed any other of the classic battles of western warfare, will not instruct him. It is more likely to mislead him. Mr. Truman, and indeed all of us, have to begin to learn about the kind of warfare which, though it is scorned and deplored and even outlawed by the military scientists of western Europe and America, is the normal and fundamental technique of war throughout the Eurasian continent.

The Communists call it "People's War." We call it guerilla war. American military men have had almost no experience of it since the old Indian fighting ended and Aguinaldo's insurrection in the Philippines was subdued about 50 years ago. Yet to anyone who is responsible for, or even to one who ventures to have an opinion about, high strategy in Asia an understanding of guerilla warfare is every bit as important as a knowledge of our own mechanized and highly complicated warfare.

There is not, so far as I know, any systematic treatise in the West. But as a beginning I would recommend the article on The Science of Guerilla Warfare by T. E. Lawrence (the famous Lawrence of Arabia) which is to be found in the Encyclopedia Britannica, the Fourteenth Edition. Beyond that the best book I know is one called Secret Forces—The Technique of Underground Movements. It is by F. O. Miksche, a Czechoslovak officer and diplomat who was in charge of the Operations Planning Department of General de Gaulle's secret service during the war. Miksche resigned from the Czechoslovak army after the war and went into exile for the second time when the Communists took over his country.

THOUGH American experience of guerilla warfare is very limited and long out of date, guerilla warfare of one kind or another is the normal form of combat in most of Asia. It is the way people with a primitive technology fight, and it would be a form of military prejudice and snobbishness, a kind of Colonel Blimpism, to think that warfare can be conducted only with the complicated and expensive weapons in which we have specialized and are pre-eminent. That is quite untrue. Our extremely advanced and complicated military equipment, which requires a high industrial development to make it and to service it, is most effective against countries which also fight with complicated weapons made by a concentrated and complicated industrial system. The more primitive the armies with which we have to deal the less effective are the big engines of war.

IN FIGHTING Germany and Japan we were fighting nations committed to the use of weapons and to a military technique in which we in the West were able to achieve overwhelming superiority. But with all their military superiority the Japanese in China, the Germans in occupied Europe, General Chiang Kai-chek with his American equipment after the war, the British in Palestine and Malaya, the French in Indo-China, the Dutch in Indonesia, were baffled and thwarted by forces which were quite incapable of winning an organized battle. These forces continued to fight by avoiding and evading an organized battle. They held no cities and they had no industrial centers to sustain them, but they fought on and orthodox military forces were unable to subdue them.

The orthodox military theory of the West that wars can be won, as the textbooks say, "by the destruction of the organized forces of the enemy," is true only of wars that are fought by nations which accept the rules of the game for that particular kind of organized, highly technical, and expensive warfare. Nothing, however, can compel masses of people to accept the rules of that game, if they are determined to resist the power which has armaments that they cannot match. If they cannot beat the enemy at his own game, having no industries or knowing that they will lose them, they will turn to a different kind of game.

IT IS the game of the underground resistance and the guerilla, a form of warfare, we must remember, to which the Russians have resorted against Napoleon and against Hitler. It is, moreover, the form of warfare for which the whole apparatus and tactics of the Communist parties is peculiarly and especially adapted. Indeed one might say that while guerilla warfare is an old method of dealing with organized military forces, the Communists are the first who have ever been well prepared for guerilla warfare. They have devoted as much energy and conscious effort to preparing for guerilla war as they have to their army.

Miksche tells us that Lenin, who was a close student of Clausewitz, perhaps the greatest of military theorists, wrote in pencil on the margin of a page in the treatise: "war for a Communist state is the continuation of the revolution by other means." Lenin was commenting on Clausewitz's famous dictum that war is the continuation of politics by other means. The Communist cell, the fifth column, the partisan bands, the fellow travelers, the strikes to sabotage and to paralyze a nation at its critical points, the general atmosphere of secrecy and fear, are the guerilla method in politics. They are readily transformed into guerilla fighting.

THEREFORE the strategists and the planners of war and the makers of policy need to study something more than whether bombers and radar and proximity fuses and the other instruments are effective and adequate. They need to study also the little bands of men with tommy guns who, conducting guerilla warfare, may be able to bypass the mechanized armies and the great fleets and strategic air power.

Against Rearming

German Land Cry Stiffens French Stand

By Walter Kerr
NYHT News Service

PARIS, Oct. 8.—The French government's objections to American plans for the participation of West German divisions in a west European integrated defense force are based on more immediate fears than the possibility some day of another German invasion of this country.

France already has promised to raise within three years 20 divisions as its contribution to the over-all organization, and these units could halt aggression.

What really troubles the French is the recent campaign in Berlin and West Germany for the return of the eastern territory lost to Russia and Poland as a result of the last war. The French are apprehensive that German armed forces might in the future be aroused by a new national leader in an attempt to regain this land and that all Europe would be drawn into the resulting battle.

They point to the rally taking place in Berlin today at which Hans Lukaschek, minister of refugees for the Bonn government, is giving official support to this agitation. And they want it clearly understood that, though France was not allowed to participate in the 1945 Potsdam conference, this government is opposed to any step that could lead to an attempt to upset the Potsdam decision by force of arms.

A second point involves the nature of the integrated force that is planned. Sources here say that the integration is nothing more than the integration that existed during World War I under Marshal Foch. While he was the supreme commander, there were national contingents, liaison officers, joint use of equipment, complete exchange of information and combined facilities for training, etc. So there will be again.

A third point in the objections includes a number of minor irritations for which officials say French people are not psychologically prepared. One is the entry of German officers into French military schools. Another is the addition of German officers to the Allied Planning Committee at Fontainbleau.

Prompt Curbs on Basic Commodities Backed

stabilization say that general wage and price controls are still undesirable. In any event, they are out of the question because it would take at least 6 to 10 months to create an organization to administer them.

This view is maintained despite the gloomy inflation picture which has been darkened ever more with such new developments as:

1. An announced drive by the CIO United Steelworkers for a "healthy" wage hike.

2. Pending negotiations for higher wages by 15 non-operating railway brotherhoods and the International Machinists (Ind.)

3. Army's plans to vastly increase its buying program as result of the Korean war and the Atlantic Defense Pact.

These moves are viewed with utmost concern, of course, particularly since they follow such serious inflationary puffs as the recent pay boosts granted other railway workers, aluminum workers, electrical unions and automobile workers.

Although fully mindful of all this, Federal economists think selective controls on such commodities as steel, copper, aluminum, rubber, wool, lumber and the like are needed at this time and are possible to put into operation in a matter of weeks.

Their reasoning includes these considerations:

1. Other measures to curb inflation have so far been too little and too late.

The increased taxation only began to bite last week. Curbs on installment buying came late and are remarkably gentle. The restriction on housing construction will not be issued until this week, and it is anybody's guess whether it will be severe enough.

2. In the interim, the restraint on price and wage increases requested by President Truman has been notable by its absence.

Though the last consumers' price index, as of August 15, is up only 3 points from the pre-Korean level, wholesale prices have gone from an index of 157 before the outbreak to 168.9 last week. The effect on the consumer will show up soon. Though these prices are as a whole steadying, some basic commodities continue to skyrocket.

3. Strong as the inflationary pressure is now, it is sure to increase, if only because another huge defense appropriation request is coming along.

That new expansion, to be presented to Congress when it reconvenes after election—or possibly not until next January—will be 10 billion dollars at a minimum. According to some officials, it could be "considerably more."

4. The real and sure way to keep the new defense program, and the additions to come, from exerting inflationary pressure, would be to increase tax revenues to equal the new spending. But will Congress raise taxes during 1952 to yield another 10 or 15 millions, in view of its unhappiness last month at passing a five-billion-dollar bill?

If the Administration were allowed a free hand in the process, Government economists declare, there would be no reason to face the prospect of selective price controls with such gloom.

But, in their opinion, the law under which the job must be done makes it inordinately difficult. Some experts even think it is impossible.

The law requires—with exceptions not yet fully known—that whenever a ceiling price is set, a ceiling on wages of the workers who make the specific item must also be set.

This would mean, then, that if an attempt is made to put a ceiling on copper, most of which is imported, the wages of American copper miners would have to be fixed. But since there is competition for labor, and mobility of labor, copper miners' wages cannot be fixed with any effectiveness unless a general, national wage policy is adopted.

That is, if the miners' wages are set too low, or at present levels without taking into account recent large gains in other industries that are now forming a "pattern" of a 1950 raise of about 10 to 15 cents an hour, trouble will ensue.

No new miners, vitally needed to expand operations will go to work. The old miners, in fact, may well be bid away from their work by higher wages in less essential activities.

In a nutshell, the economists declare, whereas it is possible to control the price of one commodity and not another, the minute the wages in one industry are fixed, you must fix them pretty much everywhere else.

But the fixing of a national wage policy is not to be lightly undertaken. Weeks of negotiation with labor groups would be necessary.

"Nothing you buy gives you so much, yet costs you so little, as eye care."

It's right in front of your eyes

...yet "Your Unseen Friend" remains unseen

Look closely at these smartly-styled glasses. Look as long, as hard as you please . . . and you won't see the Nickel they contain.

It's right before your eyes, too . . . in the frames (mountings, some people call them). But you don't see this Nickel. You see the precious metal that surrounds it—gold, in this case.

But take these glasses in your hand . . . watch them in use . . . and, though you don't see the Nickel, you do see what it does.

See how strong but light the frames are . . .

See how they hold their shape, once properly fitted . . .

See how beautifully they stand up under long wear, never rusting, never corroding, never becoming unsightly . . .

Mostly, this is due to Nickel, "Your Unseen Friend." That helps explain why Nickel is frequently added to other metals. It shows you some of the advantages Nickel gives other metals. Advantages that make these metals more useful to you . . . advantages that would be lacking without Nickel . . . advantages that are out of all proportion to the small percentage of Nickel used!

Because of these advantages, Nickel has a well-recognized place in conserving eyesight throughout the profession.

It's used in practically all professional equipment—diagnostic instruments, examining instruments, sterilizers. It's the "backbone" of most glasses. It's the optical manufacturer's "Unseen Friend" in many different ways.

Wherever you look . . . business, industry, your own home . . . Nickel is usually right in front of your eyes. It serves unobtrusively, yet dependably. That's why Nickel is called "Your Unseen Friend."

The Romance of Nickel is the name of a booklet that tells, in word and picture, the story of Nickel, and how Nickel is used to make life easier and more pleasant. It tells many little-known facts that make interesting conversation. You'll really enjoy reading it. For a free copy, write The International Nickel Company, Inc. Dept. 385z, New York 5, New York.

One On the Aisle

Dr. Faust, Mephisto, Girls With Grapes

By Richard L. Coe

THE FAUST LEGEND always has been a real whoopdoodle to authors and composers alike and, in movie form at the Plaza, still manages to hold its own.

It's an Italian-made picture using about a quarter of Gounod's lush score and there's been a definite attempt to make "Faust and the Devil" into more of a movie than a photographed version of the French opera.

This will not represent the pinnacle of achievement to such ancients as myself, nurtured from the top gallery on the fabulous production it habitually receives at the Paris Opera. There, where it's been played over 5000 times since its second premiere in 1869, it lasts about four and a half hours with the goldurndest ballet you ever gawked.

Visually, this movie version, though, has some nifties. You watch tired old Dr. Faust change into a handsome young man through a slick camera trick. You see him and Mephistopheles walk out of a turret window onto thin air to locate Marguerite in a street crowd and you catch them hurtling through the clouds in a fancy space ship. You also are treated to a tour through Hell with the Devil as your guide, which, you must admit, Amounts to Something.

And there's a slice of the Walpurgis Night scene (usually given only at the Paris Opera) that's decidedly of the German movie approach of the mid-twenties; lascivious maidens alternately suckle grapes and the lips of the young Faust with that prim abandon which made such reiterated scenes of the silent movies at once so pulsating and comical.

Some of the operatic highlights have been transferred to the screen with genuine imagination. Italo Tajo, the great Italian basso who is our Mephisto, sings the "Calf of Gold" aria at a village dance, tossing out money which creates just the havoc he sings of; it's an inspired staging. The church scene is effective, with Onelia Fineschi's voice (on the screen you're seeing Nelly Corradi) soaring handsomely over the chorus. And what there is of the Faust-Marguerite duet at the end of Act II is as visually satisfying as it is musically.

But in thteir effort to make a movie, the producers have seen fit to toss all sorts of fragments to limbo. Valentine's arai is cut and his death scene lacks the curse; Marguerite's "King of Thule" aria is gone and so is Siebel's "Flower Song." There's no quartet in the garden, several trios are omitted and that enthralling prison scene aria which turns into one of the whoppingest trios in all opera is a straight solo for Marguerite. After which there's a wait while she gets burned at the stake before the final celestial chorus. To fill in this musical gap, one Arrigio Boito is credited with the music.

Time for French Operas

Without meaning to overly carp, I go into all this to explain that it's not precisely the Gounod opera you'll be getting.

For that, I think it's about time the French moviemakers took a hand at their national operas, since the way things have been going in the operatic-movie world of late, the Italians seem ready to lift "Manon," "Louise" and "The Tales of Hoffman," all of which, as Massenet, Charpentier and Offenbach created them, are intrinsically French. "Alons, enfants de la patrie!"

The recording and orchestra (Accademia di Santa Cecilia of Rome) are first-rate and Tajo's Mephisto is a masterpiece. The settings vary from the traditional to the impressionistic, a swing that also serves to discribe the picture.

"FAUST AND THE DEVIL." Columbia release produced in Italy by Gregor Rabinovitch. Screen play by Leopld Marchand from the opera libretto by Michel Carre and Jules Barbier. Music by Charles Gounod, with additional scenes by Arrigo Boito. Orchestra of the Accademia di Santa Cecilia of Rome, conducted by F. Capuana. Directed by Carmine Gallone. At the Plaza.

The Marxman hopes to please concertgoers with his bubble-blowing clarinet, a harp that does the hootchy-kootchy and a coat from which clatter 400 knives, forks and spoons . . . Also in the troupe are four boa constrictors, but Arizona City warns Harpo it doesn't want the snakes in the place . . . Since the boa constrictors are the dancers' costumes, this poses a problem . . . Hey, Mr. Patrick Hayes, howzabout booking "Harpo's Bazaar" for Consty Hawl?

THE BARTER THEATER tonight pays its first visit of the season to these parts, playing George Kelly's "The Show-Off" at Arlington's Washington-Lee High School . . . Curtain time's 8:30, with Peter Pagan, Caddell Burroughs, Woody Romoff, Patricia O'Connell, Carolyn Brenner and Frank Lowe among those present.

"THE CURIOUS SAVAGE," which refers to the Mrs. Savage Lillian Gish will be playing for the first time, opens tonight at the Gayety, with Marta Linden, Brandon Peters, Hugh Reilly, Isobel Elsom, Howard Wendell, Glayds Henson, Flora Campbell among those in the cast . . . This is under the production banner of the Theater Guild and Lewis and Young and will be the first of six plays to be presented here this season by the Guild-American Theater Society subscription series . . . The author? . . . John Patrick of "The Hasty Heart."

IN LOVABLE PICTURE: Joel McCrea, Dean Stockwell and Ellen Drew have the leads in Joe David Brown's story "Stars in My Crown," now at the Columbia

It's impossible to keep a good thing all to yourself, and your Chevrolet is no exception. Regardless of where you bought it, how much you paid, how long you've had it, your Chevrolet Dealer never loses interest in the performance of your Chevrolet, or your satisfaction in owning and driving it. He literally shares your ownership. Your car is his concern.

For the past 20 year period Chevrolet has led the entire automotive field; a position of dominance that imposes responsibility upon your Chevrolet Dealer to meet constantly increasing demands for 100% Chevrolet Service. This he is amply prepared to do, with genuine Chevrolet parts to go in your car . . . with factory-trained Chevrolet Graduate Mechanics to work on your car . . . with genuine Chevrolet interest to see that you get greater satisfaction from authentic Chevrolet Service.

The Chevrolet Dealers of the Greater Washington area are your car's co-owners. They are as proud of your Chevrolet as you are . . . as jealous of its operation as any Chevrolet Owner could be. When your Chevrolet needs service, take it to your nearest Chevrolet Dealer. Your Chevrolet car always needs Chevrolet care to keep it at its best.

BE SURE YOUR CAR IS SAFE! Give pedestrians the "breaks" instead of your horn! Your car has several vital mechanisms subject to constant wear, and it simply cannot be safe to drive unless these are inspected regularly. The Lighting System . . . Steering Assembly . . . Windshield Wipers . . . Front End Alignment . . . Hand and Foot Brakes . . . all need an expert's attention. And the logical place to get it is at your nearest Chevrolet Dealer. He has the Chevrolet experience . . . the Chevrolet parts . . . the Chevrolet know-how to save you time and money.

Giants Beat Redskins, 21-17, on Conerly's Late Pass

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

GRIFFITH STADIUM, Oct. 8.—The New York Giants, coached by Steve Owen, and the Washington Redskins, coached by telephone, met this gray afternoon with visibility poor. A lot of people couldn't see the game at $3.50 and $5, and the smallest Redskin crowd in nine years was present.

Somebody dug up a half-buck, and the Giants won the coin-toss. They elected to defend the west goal, and let the Redskins have the ball on the kick-off. It could be their first mistake of the season.

Povich

And that is what it's beginning to look like. The Redskins have had the ball for eight minutes now, and Bill Dudley just took it 13 yards through tackle and they have a first down on the Giants 2. And the Giants are wishing they had back their decision to kick off.

It's third down for the Redskins and they still don't have that touchdown. They tried two plays into the Giants line, and at this point that Redskins' attack from scoring position sort of reminds you of the Phillies.

7-0, REDSKINS. Quarterback Harry Gilmer had enough of that nonsense and decided to take things, including the ball, into his own hands. He did, and took it over for the touchdown on a 3-inch lunge, about the size of a straight double bourbon.

The Giants are now showing off a halfback named Forrest Griffith from Kansas who is somewhat cyclonic. He just swept 6 yards over left tackle and 7 more over right, and they have a first down on the Redskins' 3.

And you can add that they also have a touchdown. On the last three plays this was indeed Griffith Stadium. Griffith punched it over all by himself and it will be 7-7 just as soon as Ray Poole kicks the extra point.

Hall Haynes gets off a long punt to safetyman Jim Ostendarp of the Giants, and we are waiting for the official scorers' decision on the play. He calls it a hit and an error. Ostendarp was hit by Ed Berrang and then he fumbled, and Paul Lipscomb got the ball for the Skins on the Giants' 8.

TOUCHDOWN, REDSKINS. Harry Gilmer found Bill Dudley in the end zone and flipped him the ball on a 4-yard pass play. Tom Landry of the Giants, was accompanying Dudley who gave him the pink slip, and Landry's slip was showing when seven points went up on the board for the Redskins.

Dudley scored that touchdown, and immediately took another one away from the Giants. Joe Scott took the ensuing kickoff and was on the loose on a 53-yard return before Dudley sort of snugged up to him and whacked him down 10 yards out of bounds on the Redskins' 47.

Griffith gets loose for 39 yards around the Redskins' right end to the 5-yard line before Harry Dowda and Pete Stout hauled him down from behind. Tackle Lipscomb couldn't catch him, and it was a reminder that such things should be left to the team's acks.

The Giants couldn't make it. Twice their backs hit the Redskin line, and vice versa, for no gain. Charley Conerly wound up throwing a pass to Williams, but what he actually wound up with was an inglorious touchback.

BILL DUDLEY took the second-half kickoff and after getting to midfield smartly, he lateraled to Casimir Witucki, the biggest Redskin in the vicinity, for 5 more yards. Then the Redskins got a mote in their eye. Gilmer fumbled and Mote recovered for the Giants.

The Giants complete a nice 38-yard pass, Conerly to Haynes to McChesney. Haynes had his hands on an interception but it tipped into the mitts of McChesney on the Redskins' 13. A bit later, an offside penalty put the Giants on the Redskins 2.

Well, that was different. Gene Roberts of the Giants got the touchdown by pounding backwards through the Redskin middle. It was a switch against which the Redskins apparently hadn't been coached. Anyway, it's 14-14.

Dudley just kicked a field goal from the Giants' 22, and they lead 17-14. Kill it! Kill it! The Skins pull a switch themselves and decline their field goal, demanding instead the offside penalty that will give them a first down on the Giants' 9.

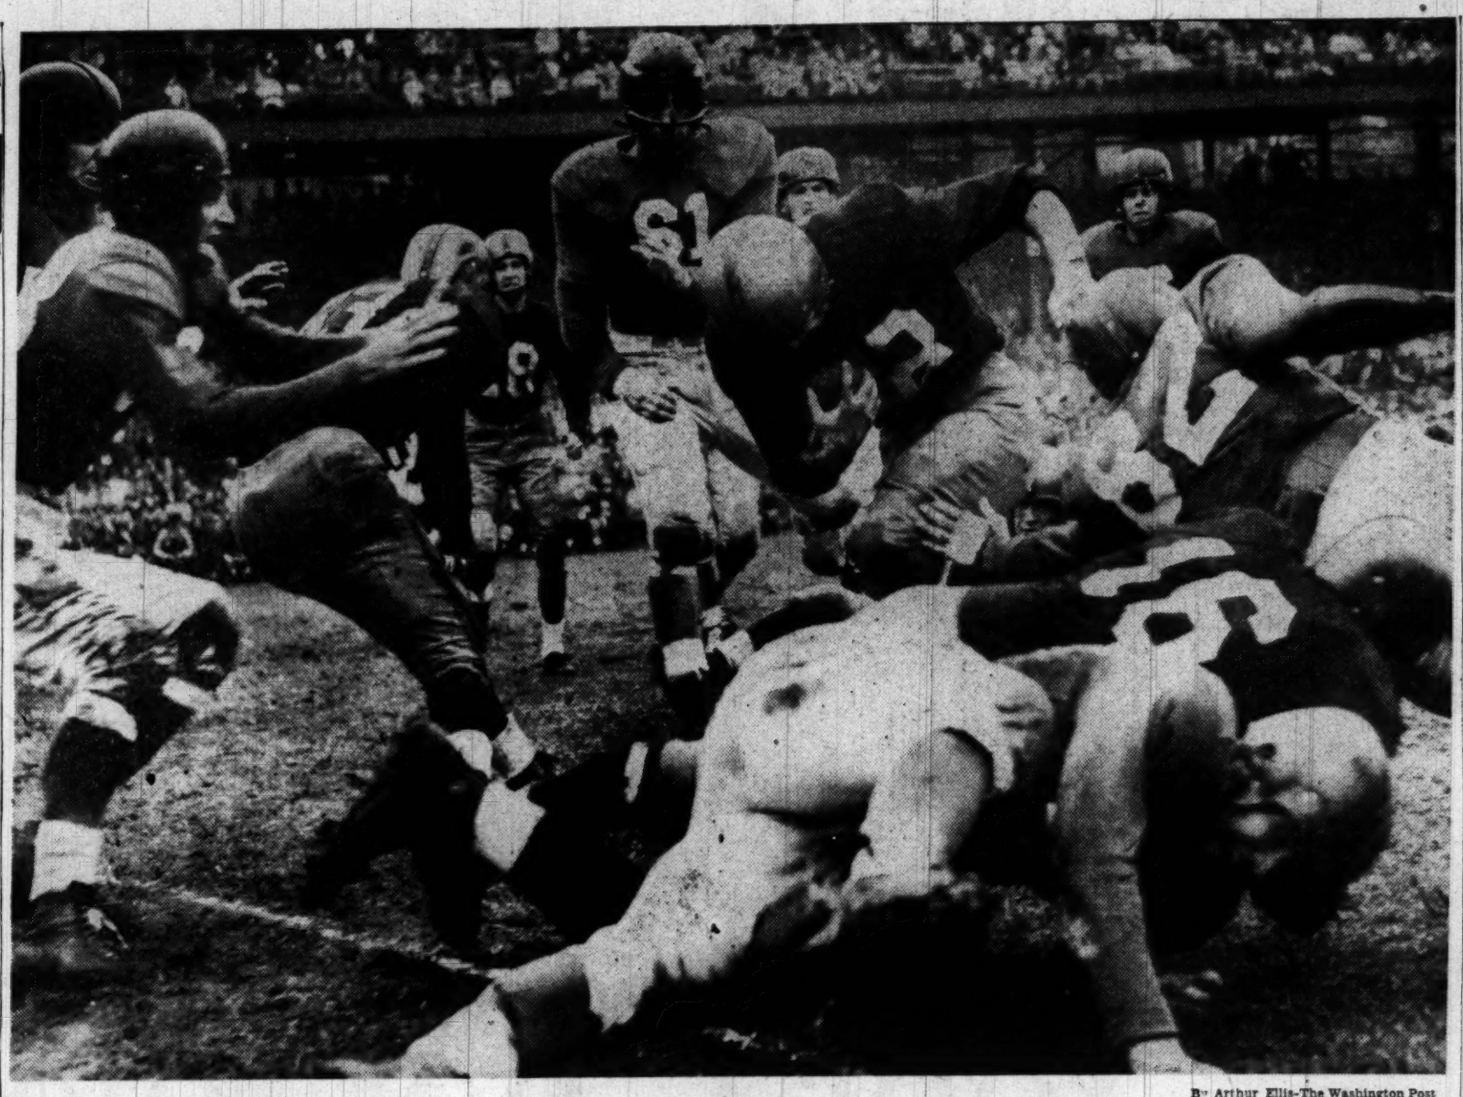
THE REDSKINS' strategists should have stood in bed this rainy day. They got no touchdown from the Giants' 9, and on fourth down Dudley missed a field goal from the 28, and it's still 14-14.

17-14, REDSKINS. Dudley just kicked a fourth-quarter field goal from the Giants 19, with an assist from Hugh Taylor. The contribution of Mr. Taylor was a sparkling catch of Gilmer's 60-yard pass to the amazement of Emlen Tunnell and Otto Schnellbacher who thought they had him covered. They did, and he reached.

Two Redskins had Conerly by the foot in the end zone, and then learned he doesn't throw that football with his feet. He threw it to Forrest Griffith to the Giants' 39, and made a nice thing out of a horrible mess.

21-17, GIANTS. Gene Roberts of Chattanooga, was out there on the right flank in such solitude the Redskins must have regarded him either as (1) leprous or (2) radioactive. Anyway he took a short flip from Conerly and 39-yards later the Redskins didn't have their lead any more.

And with time running out, what the Redskins needed most at this point was a few faces that could stop a clock.



DOWDA DOES IT—Halfback Harry Dowda of the Redskins finds a hole open at guard and plows through for a gain of 11 yards against the New York Giants at Griffith Stadium yesterday. No. 16 is Redskin Guard Johnny Steber who has just removed Giant linebacker Otto Schnellbacker with a good block. No. 82, of the Giants, is End Ray Poole. Dowda's sprint came midway the first quarter when the Redskins were driving 80 yards for a touchdown to take a 7-0 lead over the Giants. The unbeaten New Yorkers won the game, 21-17, with a touchdown in the last five minutes of play

By Arthur Ellis-The Washington Post

Only 19,288 Watch Third Loss in Row

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Redskins were a fair country football team yesterday, but unfortunately they were playing in the city and got outslicked by the New York Giants, 21-17.

Thousands of football fans apparently found somewhere else to go except Griffith Stadium on a drizzly Sunday afternoon. Only 19,288, the smallest Redskins' home crowd in nine years, showed up to watch the unbeaten Giants post their third straight success and administer the third straight loss to the Redskins, who have beaten only the winless Baltimore Colts.

Two Southern gentlemen, Charlie Conerly of Mississippi and Gene Roberts of Chattanooga, led the Northern rebellion.

Roberts, playing at fullback instead of his customary spot at halfback, scored twice. His second came in the last 5 minutes of the game on a 38-yard pass play from quarterback Conerly. It blotted out a 17-14 lead the Redskins had taken early in the fourth period on Bill Dudley's 19-yard field goal.

Not a Redskin laid a hand on the cannon-balling Choo-Choo from Chattanooga as he raced down the sideline after catching Conerly's pass in the flat. Conerly faked to his left adroitly, then just as adroitly pivoted to his right and found Roberts all by his lonesome on the Redskins 32-yard line.

The payoff pass culminated an 84-yard New York drive which was almost culminated in a safety for the Redskins just when it was starting. But Conerly averted it. Standing in the end one, Conerly miraculously got off a 28-yard pass to halfback Forrest Griffith to avert disaster.

Conerly threw the ball just as Redskin Ends Ed Berrang and Roland Dale were crashing in on him 2 yards in the end zone.

His last-second toss to Griffith put the ball on the Giants' 37-yard line and from that point on the Giants moved very business-like to the touchdown they needed to preserve their unblemished record.

Favoring a bone chip in his passing arm, Sammy Baugh was used only to hold the ball for Dudley's two extra points and his field goal. Harry Gilmur, Baugh's protege, handled the Redskins attack otherwise and did a creditable job.

He mixed up his plays skillfully, sneaked through center to wind up an 80-yard Redskins drive in the first quarter for a 7-0 lead and tossed a 4-yard touchdown pass to Dudley to give the Redskins a 14-7 lead in the second period.

There was nothing wrong with Gilmer yesterday and there wasn't too much wrong with the Redskins. They made no mistakes, and their line play, for a change, was good, very good.

Despite the steady drizzle and slippery ball, there were only three fumbles in the game. The Redskins made two and the Giants recovered both, the second in the dying moments of the game to seal off the last Redskins chance of pulling the game out of the fire.

The Redskins recovered the only Giant fumble, in the second quarter, and converted it into a quick touchdown.

Lujack Turns Runner, Bears Romp, 27-6

John Thrills 48,025 With Two Scores

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (AP).—Passer Johnny Lujack turned into a running demon in a neat about-face today to steer the Chicago Bears over their South Side rivals, the Cardinals, 27-6 in a rain-drenched National Football League game.

The Bears accomplished their amphibious mission before 48,025 soaked fans in Wrigley Field. It continued their domination in one of pro football's most ancient rivalries, being the Northsiders' forty-first win over the Cards in 31 years.

Lujack, always recognized as a running threat although seldom given the chance because of injury possibilities, was like a rabbit on the loose. The Bears, after a scoreless first period, scored twice in the second for a 14-0 half-time edge and then counted one touchdown in the third and fourth.

Lujack's ball carrying was the thrill all the way. He tried 15 passes, completed nine for 93 yards. Only once did he toss in the last half.

Bill Wightkin, like Lujack, a Notre Dame graduate, recovered Jim Hardy's Cardinal fumble on the Cards' 1-foot line at the outset of the second quarter. Lujack squirmed over on a quarterback sneak and kicked the first of his three extra points.

Twenty-two seconds before the half gun, Lujack failed to find a receiver and elected to run. He slammed through a scattered Cardinal defense for 32 yards and a touchdown, one of the few long-scoring scampers he has ever made.

Before the game was over, the grinning Lujack had a rushing mark of 68 yards in nine carries. That's one he certainly will add to his bulging scrapbook.

The Bears gained a total of 229 yards on the ground to the Cards' 66, and another of their assets was Rookie Al Campana of Youngstown (Ohio) University. Campana, a defensive back used on offense for the first time with the Bears, hammered 78 yards in 22 tries.

It was the Bears' third conference win in four starts, tying them with Detroit and the New York Yanks for the National Division lead of the league.

Only three times did the Cards penetrate beyond midfield. They launched a 66-yard scoring drive at the start of the third period. Hardy speared Freshman Francis Polsfoot of Washington State for 33 yards and then repeated with a 21-yard payoff pitch to Bob Shaw.

The Bears growled back with a 65-yard march in 12 plays, featuring Lujack's 16-yard sprint and Campana's gallop of 13. Campana ultimately drilled over.

At the outset of the finale, Julie Rykovich, another former Irish gladiator, belted over from the 3 for the Bears' fourth marker. Two successive Lujack runs totaling 15 yards touched off the drive from the Cardinal 35.

Bruising Tackle

Terps' Chet Gierula Player of the Week

Tackle Chester Gierula, one of the unsung stars on the Maryland football team for four years, is The Washington Post and Touchdown Club's selection as the College Player of the Week.

Gierula won the honor for his smashing play in Maryland's sensational 34-7 victory over previously unbeaten Michigan State Saturday.

CHET GIERULA

Gierula and Guard Bobby Ward raced each other all day to see which would be the first in the Michigan State backfield. Gierula won, but only by a nose.

The 225-pound, 20-year-old senior from Allentown, Pa., has been a regular tackle for the Terps since his freshman year. He has played consistently good football for Maryland, but last Saturday was by far his best day.

The big No. 55 was chiefly responsible for the wretched passing average—only 3 out of 20 and 6 interceptions—that State's Al Dorow compiled. Dorow had to throw most of his passes with Gierula on his neck. On the few times he eluded Gierula, Ward and End Elmer Wingate ran him down and smeared him for losses.

As the right tackle on Maryland's five-man line, the big blond played against the short side of Michigan State's unbalanced line. The Staters scored most of the five touchdowns against Oregon State and both of their touchdowns against Michigan striking from the short side. Last Saturday, however, they were confronted by a tackling wildcat in Gierula and didn't gain an inch running at him.

"I've seen most of the great Big Ten linemen for the past 15 years, but never have I seen one give a better performance than Gierula did today," remarked one sportswriter.

"We didn't know a thing about Gierula until today," said State's Coach Biggie Munn, "but, brother, did we find out plenty about him? He's terrific."

With Stiff Breeze

Weatherman Evens Things for Maryland

The weatherman doesn't have to apologize to the Maryland football team any longer. He squared his account with the College Parkers Saturday.

He arranged for a 25-mile-an-hour wind to blow into Macklin Stadium at East Lansing and the baby gale contributed to the Terps' smashing 34-7 victory over second-ranking Michigan State.

Three weeks before, however, the weatherman came up with an 85-degree day down in Athens, Ga., and it contributed to the Terps' opening game defeat by Georgia.

But that nice little gust he had at Michigan State made everything even.

Maryland was counting on the wind. Terp scouts who had seen Michigan State play three times last year and once this season at home noted that there was a stiff wind present each time.

The weather then became a distinct factor in pregame strategy. Maryland wanted to have the wind at its back the first and fourth quarters.

It did. Cocaptains Jake Rowden and Ray Krouse saw to it by winning the toss. They chose to defend the goal with the wind. That left the next choice to State. Its captain, Fullback Forest Crane, elected to receive.

Perfect for the Maryland strategy. That's what Coach Jim Tatum and his assistants were praying for.

A poor punt in the teeth of that wind, they figured, would give Maryland a break right from the go-start. And if the Terps could capitalize on it with a quick touchdown, the coaches felt Maryland's defense could hold the advantage until another break.

Well, that's exactly what happened. State Quarterback Al Dorow punted only 18 yards early in the first quarter and Maryland got the ball on Michigan State's 42-yard line. In six plays, it was Maryland 6, Michigan State 0.

Michigan State, which had lost the coin toss, had its choice in the second half and elected to take the goal with the wind favoring it.

Now it was up to Maryland and the Terps, amazingly enough, chose to kick off—in the face of that wind.

"Tatum must have had a stroke," a press box bloke blurted when he saw what was about to happen. "Why give them the ball?"

Tatum answered it later this way.

"Even though we had the wind against us, we still wanted to kick off. State has a great kickoff man in Bob Carey. He kicked four over the goal posts against Oregon

Green Bay Loses 41-31, To Yanks

GREEN BAY, Wis., Oct. 8 (AP).—The sprightly New York Yanks outspsed the Green Bay Packers, 44-31, today before 23,871 fans at City Stadium in a National Football League game.

A six-touchdown third quarter set the pace in this sizzling battle under sunny skies after the Yanks had posted two touchdowns in two minutes as the first half ended to take a 17-3 margin.

Each club counted three times in the 41-point period and the Packers added another midway in the fourth to cut the margin to a bare six points. But the Yanks, holding grimly to a three-way share of the National Division leadership, intercepted a pass and cashed it for the final tally.

The wild third period just about told the story of this ball game. The teams had traded field goals—by Chet Adams of the Yanks and Ted Fritsch of the Packers—in the first. Then, in the closing minutes of the second quarter the Yanks had struck twice.

A 23-yard punt gave them possession on the Packer 39 and on the fifth play George Ratterman hit Sherman Howard with a 25-yard pass, the former Nevada ace making a sensational catch and falling into the end zone. One minute later, Spec Sanders intercepted one of Tobin Rote's passes, returned to the 7 and Zollie Toth burst over for the score.

Then came the big show. The Yanks rang the cash register first. Howard streaked through right tackle and kept on for 60 yards and the score.

The Packers' Billy Grimes shot off right tackle for 61 yards to match it. Two minutes later Green Bay was on the scoreboard again, Steve Pritko hitting Ratterman as he tried to pass and Dan Orlich picking up the fumble on the Yank 8 and stumbling over.

Ratterman wasn't upset, though. It took him only six plays to drive to the Packer 45. Then he whipped a long one to Dan Edwards in the end zone and it was 30-17.

Gaels Who Tied Georgia Bow to Loyola U., 48-0

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8 (AP).—St. Mary's Gaels, who pulled a major surprise by holding Georgia to a 7-7 tie 10 days ago, were soundly threshed by Loyala University today, 48 to 0. It was the first Loyola win over the Gaels in 11 tries.

Loyola went into the game before an estimated 17,000 fans in Gilmore Stadium boasting of its best team in many years. The Lions quickly made good the boast, scoring the first time they got the ball and racking up three more touchdowns in the second quarter to hold a 27-0 lead at half time.

Layne Tosses Two Touchdowns, Scores One, Lions Whip 49ers, 24-7

IT'S GOOD—Bill Dudley (35) is in the clear for this short pass from Harry Gilmer that picked up 8 yards in the first period yesterday at Griffith Stadium. Breathing hard, New York End Ray Poole (82) comes over in time to make the tackle. The Giants came on to win the bruising battle, 21-17

Bobby Makes Good on 15 Of 32 Passes

By Charles C. Cain

DETROIT, Oct. 8 (AP).—Strong-armed Bobby Layne found the murkiness and sogginess of Briggs Stadium to his liking today as he ran and passed the Detroit Lions to a 24-7 decision over the San Franciso Forty-Niners.

A crowd of 17,941 chilled and wet spectators saw the California club go down to its fourth straight defeat of the National Football League season.

Neither the driving rain or the poor visibility seemed to bother Layne who completed 15 of 32 passes for 205 yards and a pair of touchdowns. The former Texas star added the Lions' other touchdown on a buck from the 1-inch line to give the Detroiters their third win in four NFL starts.

The Forty-Niners' famed southpaw passing ace, Frankie Albert, suffered a rib injury on the final play of the half and sat out the rest of the game on the bench.

It was strictly a Detroit day, however, with Layne getting a big helping hand from Doak Walker, Don Doll and Cloyce Box. Walker gave the Lions a 3-0 first period lead with a 23-yard field goal and Layne banged over the first touchdown in the second period with Walker's kick making it 10-0 at the half.

Jim Powers, subbing for the injured Albert, got the Forty-Niners' only scoring thrust of the afternoon under way early in the third period as he completed three tosses to Gordon Soltau to bring the ball 52 yards to Detroit's five. Three plays later Joe Perry went over and Soltau converted to make it 10-7.

That was all for the Forty-Niners as the Lions dominated play completely the rest of the way. The Lions got their second touchdown in a 55-yard drive which saw Layne complete six passes including the 23-yard scoring pass to Box. Walker again converted.

Layne added the Lions' final score with a 28-yard touchdown pass to Walker early in the fourth period. Walker's kick made it 24-7 and the Forty-Niners' final efforts were unavailing.

Redskins Lose, 21-17

raced 78 yards with the ball after the Giants had tied the score at 14-all in the third period.

Otto Schnellbacher, Giant end, finally dragged Haynes down from behind the Giants' 21-yard line, but the Redskins muffed that scoring opportunity.

Shortly before, Bill Dudley had legged the second half kickoff back 40 yards to the Giants' 48-yard line. Nothing came of that chance either.

Halfback Joe Scott of New York chipped in a 53-yard kickoff return in the second period to add to the day's thrills. And Redskins' Halfback Frankie Spaniel, the Notre Damer, raced 39 yards with the kickoff following the Giants' winning touchdown to give the crowd and the Redskins their final big moment. A fumble three plays later, however, killed all Redskin hopes.

The Redskins moved into a 7-0 lead the first time they got their hands on the ball.

Eight running plays and four Gilmer passes — three of them to Dudley — got the ball to the 15-yard line. At that point Dudley slammed off tackle for 13 more yards. Three plays later Gilmer went over on a sneak. Dudley, with Baugh coming in to hold, kicked the extra point. That required nine minutes.

Four minutes later the Giants had moved 70 yards to tie the score. A Conerly pass to End Ellery (Queen) Williams was good for 33 yards to the Redskins' 28-yard line. Then Rookie Forrest Griffith took over, running the ball on four of the next five plays, finally scoring from two yards out. Ray Poole's kick was good and it was 7-7 going into the second quarter.

It remained that way only long enough for Giants' safety man Jim Ostandarp to fumble Dudley's high punt on the New York 9-yard line. Tackle Paul Lipscomb, a whale of a ball player for the Redskins yesterday pounced on it.

On second down, Gilmer fired a 4-yard pass to Dudley in the end zone for the touchdown that gave the Redskins a 14-7 halftime lead.

Six minutes after intermission, the Giants tied it again. This one was a 44-yard drive which Roberts ended by going over from the 3-yard line. Big play of the excursion was a 38-yard pass from Conerly to End Bob McChesney, no kin to the former Redskins end of the same name. Hall Haynes tipped the ball, but McChesney reached up and got it anyway on the Redskins 14.

The Redskins bounced right back, moving 65 yards to the Giants' 14 where it was fourth down and three. Dudley dropped back to the 22-yard line and booted a field goal, but the Giants were offside and the Redskins waived the three points and took the penalty, which gave them the ball and a first down on the 9-yard line.

On third down, End Kelly Mote spilled Gilmer for a 12-yard loss and Dudley on the next down missed a field goal from the 23-yard line.

Two minutes later, the Redskins were knocking at the door again, thanks to a 60-yard pass from Gilmer to Taylor. When that move stalled on the 13-yard line, Dudley went back and booted a 19-yard field goal just as the fourth quarter began to give the Redskins a 17-14 lead.

That's how it stood for about two more minutes and then's when Conerly got off his sensational pass from the end zone to get the Giants going on their 84-yard payoff march.

The Redskins got two more chances after that. Chuck Drazenovich messed up the first when he fumbled and lost the ball on the Giants' 37 a few seconds later, after Conerly had punted. Emlen Tunnell intercepted a long Gilmer pass intended for Taylor on the Giants' 20.

Prep High Players of the Week

JOE HANDS
St. John's

Back for a repeat performance as the prep school Player of the Week selected by The Washington Post and the Touchdown Club is Joe Hands, St. John's High's standout end.

Hands, who won the honor once last year, demonstrated in the Cadets' 36-6 triumph over Montgomery Blair last Saturday that he is to local scholastic football this year what Leon Hart of Notre Dame was to college ball last season.

Joe Hands

Joe, a senior playing his third year of varsity ball, is big, like Hart, with 200 pounds spread over his 6-foot, 1-inch frame. His height, of course, makes him a favorable target for passes and his speed comes in handy on those end-around plays.

Against Blair, Joe, who will be honored by the Touchdown Club at its weekly luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today, gained 20 yards on an end-around, passed to a touchdown when he was placed in the backfield and converted once from placement.

His defensive performance probably convinced the Blazers they shoulda stood in bed. The losers never gained when they tried to run around Joe's end and twice he went down under St. John's punts and spilled the Blair receiver in his tracks.

BOB QUINN
Wilson High

The Washington Post and the Touchdown Club have selected Bob Quinn of Wilson as its high school Player of the Week because, among other things, he refused to concede defeat to McKinley Tech last Friday, eventually accounting for the tie game.

Bob Quinn

Quinn, who will be honored by the Touchdown Club at its weekly luncheon at 12:30 p. m. today, was a doubtful starter against Tech. He had four stitches over his right eye and a pulled leg muscle.

There was nothing doubtful about his finish, though, and it was enough to give the Green Tigers a 7-7 tie with favored Tech.

Big Bob, 190-pound, 6-foot fullback, scored Wilson's only touchdown on an 11-yard run through the middle, set it up by intercepting a pass on Tech's 32-yard line in the fourth quarter when Tech led, 7-0, and saw a good bit of action on defense while backing up the line.

Shy Bob says the eye and leg are O.K. now and that he'll be in tip-top shape for Wilson's game with Eastern Friday. It promises to be a rough afternoon for Eastern.

Green Takes On Wallace Here Tonight

Local fans will be given their third look at Coley Wallace, New York's undefeated young heavyweight sensation, when he clashes with big Joe Green, District belter, in one of three eight-round feature fights at Turner's Arena tonight.

In the other two eight-rounders, Sam Kelsey and Marshall Clayton, lightweight rivals, meet in a local natural, while Pat Thomas, another District scrapper, steps out against Aponte Torres, tough little Puerto Rican featherweight.

Wallace has won 14 straight professional starts, six by knockouts. He is a former amateur heavyweight champion and has locally scored quick knockouts over Jimmy Bell, local puncher, and Joe Peters of Baltimore.

Two of the best local records will be placed on the line in the battle between Kelsey and Clayton, both of whom have been defeated only once. Kelsey has won 11 starts and Clayton 15.

The 19-year-old Kelsey will be seeking his ninth one-round knockout when he tangles with the former all-Army champion.

Torres, a real ring toughie who extended Willie Pep and Gene Smith in two previous local appearances, is expected to prove a good test for Thomas.

Pat is shooting for a match with Charlie Titone of Brooklyn.

A five-rounder between Connie Wilkins and Chink Williams, two local lightweights, and a four-round opener between Frank Ball and Clarence Hinnitt, round out the show.

Rain Washes Out Lanham Races Again

Rain again washed out stock car racing at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway. It was the twelfth postponement of the year.

Next Sunday afternoon stock car racing makes its final appearance of the year. A "Wally Campbell Appreciation Day" will be held in conjunction with next Sunday's program. The 24-year-old Trenton, N. J., youth is the point-scoring leader for the American Stock Car Racing Association and at the West Lanham Speedway for the second consecutive year.

tight as a week ago when they whipped the Chicago Bears, drove 80 yards with the kickoff with old Paul Christman tossing three passes good for 37 yards and gray-thatched Tony Canadeo crashing right tackle from two yards out.

But the Yanks weren't finished, either. Ratterman cranked up again and hit George Taliaferro with a 17-yard pitch. Taliaferro blasted 20 more yards with the ball and it was 37-24 when the clock stopped the scramble.

The screaming crowd still sensed an upset, and let loose completely when Al Baldwin intercepted a Ratterman pass on the Packer 27. Driving 73 yards, the Packers didn't disappoint them, Christman plunging through from the one with eight minutes still showing in the ball game and Green Bay six points behind.

Jackson KO'd In Germany

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (AP)—German middleweight champion Peter Mueller knocked out Stonewall Jackson, middleweight from Washington, D. C., after 2 minutes 10 seconds of a scheduled 10-round bout today.

Mueller's heavy right floored Jackson twice before he hit the canvas for the final count. Mueller weighed 157, Jackson 147 pounds.

In the light heavyweight class, Lloyd Marshall, Sacramento, Calif., won an eight-round decision from the German, Herbert Sachs. Both weighed 174 pounds.

Touchdowners Honor Coaches, Players of Week

The Touchdown Club fetes area college coaches at its luncheon at 1414 I st., nw., today and hardly could have picked a better time.

Maryland's Jim Tatum will occupy a considerable portion of the spotlight after his team's resounding 34-7 upset over Michigan State. GW's Bo Rowland has a 21-14 victory over West Virginia to talk about and Jan Jankowski may beam over Catholic University's 32-0 opening triumph over Bridgewater.

Only glum guest will be Georgetown's Bob Margarita. The Hoyas lost to Tulsa, 21-7, and have to take on Maryland's powerhouse at Griffith Stadium Saturday.

Also on hand will be the outstanding area players of the week, selected by the Touchdown Club and The Washington Post. They are Maryland's Chet Gierula; Joe Hands, St. John's High, and Bob Quinn, Wilson.

Jets Lose Out To Chiefs, 16-15

Coach Gene Gammon blocked out a scoring bid by Sid Harnesk in the fading seconds yesterday as his New York Chiefs made it two in a row over Washington's Jets in the fourth game of their National Roller Derby League series, 16-15.

These teams now are tied at two-games all and terminate their series with a Ladies' Night game at Uline's tonight. The Jets then are scheduled for another home stand against Chicago's Westerners from tomorrow night through Oct. 18.

Caps Drop Two And Sign Two

The Washington Caps dropped two rookies yesterday to make room for Frankie Kudelka and Joe Bradley, who were acquired from the disbanded Chicago team in the NBA.

Let out were Pete Clark, former Mount St. Mary's forward, and Harold Hunter, 5-foot-10 Negro guard, from North Carolina State College.

Hunter was one of two Negroes drafted by the local NBA representatives. Still with the team is Earl Lloyd, 6-foot-6, 215-pounder from West Virginia State.

However, Coach Bones McKinney expects to lose Lloyd, Alexandria native, any day to the Army. He already has taken his draft physical. Lloyd has been a standout in practice drills.

Don Schnittker, the Caps' No. 1 draft choice from Ohio State, also is expecting an Army call as is Georgetown's Tommy O'Keefe.

Gen. James In Finals at Army Navy

Gen. W. C. James entered the finals of the club championship tournament at Army-Navy yesterday, defeating Comdr. H. D. Helfrick, 1 up, in 20 holes. In a quarter-final match, Col. W. B. Reed beat Col. M. M. McGee, 7 and 5.

Comdr. J. H. Dunlap and Colonel McGee tied for first in the blind bogey with net 75s. Comdr. J. S. Lewis, Col. F. W. Hallagan and Col. R. H. Curtin tied for third with net 71s.

WASHINGTON: H. B. Swarthout, 76—9—67, won the Class A division of the tournament for "nonwinners" in other tournaments. W. E. Norris and Ed Duffies tied for second with net 72s. In Class B, W. T. MacGruder's 85—17—68 was low. L. W. Douglas was second with a net 69. Tom Montgomery was third with a 72.

ROCK CREEK: Tom Emmons leads qualifiers for the "Turkey Tournament" with 33—36—69. Bill Nicholson was second with 37, 38—75 and Bill Frank third with 36, 41—77.

The tournament is open to all public links golfers. It is played from scratch and two turkeys will be given away in each flight. Entry fee is $1.

FORT DUPONT: Louise Sayers won the women's championship, defeating Rachel Yap, 2 and 1. Myrtle Quarles took the first flight crown, downing Eloise Beall, 1 up in 10 holes. Weltha Bowers beat Sophia Peschel, 2 and 1, for the second flight title.

Defending champion Bob Plitt entered the finals of the men's tournament, defeating Ralph Hussey, 2 and 1. Paul Nicholson defeated Bob Suite, 1 up, to gain the other finalist berth.

CONGRESSIONAL: Elmer Jenkins won the Senior championship with a low 77. A. W. Hilley took low net with 90—21—69. In the 55-62 age group, F. E. Johnson's 84 was low. Carl Girous, 89—16—73, took low net.

BETHESDA: 17-year-old Denny Bolster led play in the men's club championship tournament, defeating Col. R. B. Oxrieder, 5 and 4, in the quarterfinals. Bolster was one-under-par at the end of the 14 holes.

In other quarterfinal matches, Joe LaSalle beat Jerry Hart, 3 and 1, Tom Manning defeated Bill Shaw, one up, and Bill Harris downed Herb Rudd, the Federal Golf Association champ, 4 and 3.

KENWOOD: Nick Hollander won the 36 hole Earl Hodges Trophy with 149—6—143. Don Miller was second with 152—6—146, E. H. Holmes third with 161—12—149 and R. T. Woodfield fourth with a net 152.

BELLE HAVEN: Congressman Wilson, Capt. J. McElroy, R. W. Ayres, and his son, Dick, tied Frank Astin, B. Deal, Bob Trier, and Joel Branson in the breakfast foursome. Both had best ball 60s.

Captain McElroy won the sweepstakes with 77—11—66, W. Dinsmore was second with a net 68, and Frank Heyer's 73 took low gross.

INDIAN SPRING: Eddie Ault won the men's club championship, beating defending champ Bill McFuren, 2 and 1.

Ted Bowers, Fuchs Also Win in 4-Ball

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

A double upset featured yesterday's semi-final play in the Maryland State Golf Association's four-ball tournament at Prince George's Country Club.

Washington Golf and Country Club's No. 1 team of Claude Wild and Harold Hair outlasted District Amateur Champion Bobby Brownell and his partner Ralph Bogart, playing as Annapolis Roads' No. 1, to win, one up.

Bethesda's No. 1 team of Jerry Hart and Earl Skinner, highly favored to oust Manor's No. 1 team of Ted Bowers and Louis Fuchs, lost, 2 and 1. Bowers and Fuchs had a two-below-par best ball 70.

The tees were moved far back for the matches, and the course played at more than 7000 yards.

Wild and Hair were two up at the turn and went three up on 10 as Wild birdied the hole. Brownell cut their lead to two holes with a birdie on 11, but Wild won 12 with a par.

Bogart's birdie won 13, 14 and 15 were halved, and Brownell won 16 with a birdie to cut the Arlingtonians lead to one hole. However, 17 and 18 were halved to close out the match.

Results of quarterfinal play in the two man team tourney:

Joe Zekas and Ben Cohen beat Denny Hevener and Maj. John Taylor, 2 and 1; Charley Berger and Eli Amanuel beat Joe and Harry Mudrick, 2 and 1; Bud Sharkey and Tom Mudd beat Dr. Mike Oliveri and Dr. Morris Wolf, 2 and 1; R. E. O'Malley and Fred Beiersdorf beat George Thornton and Marty Gordon, 1 up, in 21 holes.

PRINCE GEORGES: Bill McGrath won the club championship, beating Gil Willet, one up. Willett was two up at the end of 28 holes of the 36-hole match.

McGrath won 29 and 30 to even the match, Willett won 31, and then McGrath evened it up by taking 33. The match was even going into the thirty-sixth hole. McGrath won the 400-yard hole with a par 4 while Willett's putt was short and he took a bogey 5.

Finals in other flights:

FIRST FLIGHT
Howard Halpin beat Jim Bogley, 1 up.

Decision Tomorrow

Richards Rumored Next White Sox Pilot

CHICAGO, Oct. 8 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox are expected to name their 1951 pilot Tuesday and the man is rumored to be Paul Richards, current manager of Seattle in the Pacific Coast League.

The incumbent Sox manager, John (Red) Corriden, got the job last May when Jack Onslow was fired. The White Sox this season finished sixth, the same as last year under Onslow.

Paul Richards

Neither club Vice President Charles Comiskey nor General Manager Frank Lane was available for comment tonight, but the Sox board of directors is tabbed to meet tomorrow when next season's field boss probably will be named.

The Sox already have had permission of the Seattle club to deal with Richards. The only hitch reportedly is that Richards has demanded a two-year Sox contract.

The Sox front office apparently is reluctant to grant a two-year pact, recalling its experience with Onslow. When Onslow was fired last May, he was under a two-year contract and the club had to pay it out. Another reason for the Sox seeking to issue only a one-year contract is that the club's attendance slumped this season.

Since Jimmy Dykes, a 13-year Sox managerial standby, was ditched in 1946, the Sox have had three pilots—Ted Lyons, who lasted until 1949: Onslow and Corriden.

The club has won four American League pennants, but none since the ill-fated "Black Sox" copped in 1919. Dykes got them home third on three occasions, in 1936, 1937 and 1941, and had them fourth in 1943, their last first-division finish.

Richards has been in and out of the Sox managerial picture for more than a year. He conferred with Lane on the West Coast two months ago and the deal was believed to have been set at that time, barring a few details.

Tarlac Wins Bridle Trail Show Honors

By Harry DeMawby, Jr.

Alden McKim Crane's Tarlac performed magnificently yesterday for his owner-rider to garner the coveted grand championship award of the Washington Bridle Trails Association in its final 1950 horse show at Equitation Field in Rock Creek Park.

Mrs. Margaret E. Stewart's April Dawn was the public riding academy champion this year with Frances Hill guiding the fleet-footed Palomino to a win and second place in yesterday's final outing to top the division for the seasonal championship based on points accumulated in the two-show series.

Lee Stanley Jones' Chopmist Stables of Rockville, Md., earned a fine brace of ribbons for their efforts with L. S. Jones doing most of the saddle work, assisted by young Bobby Blauner of Bethesda, Md., and teen-ager Stewart Sherman. Chopmist's Bourbon earned a place and fourth ribbon while Frosty was well ridden by young Bobby to a third in the opening class.

Riding Academy Bridle Trail Jumpers: 1, Pegasus Stables' April Dawn; 2, Pegasus Stables, Spook; 3, Chopmist Stable's Frosty; 4, Potomac Riding School's Fred.

Privately-Owned Bridle Trail Hacks: 1, Frances S. Hill's Bruce; 2, Toni Brewer's Stinker; 3, Mr. and Mrs. Alden McKim Crane's Tarlac; 4, Stanley Jones' Bourbon.

Riding Academy Bridle Trail Hacks: 1, Fred; 2, April Dawn; 3, Potomac Riding School's Rusty; 4, Spook.

Privately-Owned Bridle Trail Jumpers: 1, Tarlac; 2, Stinker; 3, Edna Griswold's Missy; 4, J. B. MacWilliams' Grayson Girl II.

Working Jumpers: 1, Stinker; 2, Bourbon; 3, Tarlac; 4, Missy.

Privately-Owned Grand Season Champion: Tarlac, 22 points. Reserve, Bruce, 17 points.

Weatherman Evens Things

State. We didn't want that to happen to us.

"If we let them kick to us, Carey, with that stiff wind with him, would have kicked the ball into the next county and we'd be stuck with the ball on our own 20-yard line.

"I call that 'bad territory.' And our offense really hadn't started clicking then. I was afraid if we had to punt from inside the 35-yard line the same thing that happened to them—a poor punt in the wind—could happen to us and we'd really be in bad shape.

"We weren't afraid of them returning a kickoff for a touchdown, but they could return a punt. That's why we kicked off."

Two minutes after the second half opened, Sonny Grandelius streaked 67 yards for a Spartan touchdown. Now it was 13-7, Maryland, and once again the Terps disdained receiving.

And again, as the startled crowd looked on, the Terps kicked off to the Spartans. They returned it to the 31 and couldn't move from there.

"As long as we could hold them in that quarter," Tatum continued, "we knew we were in because in the next quarter we'd have the wind with us again. Our boys were hitting hard and we figured we'd either shake the ball loose from them or intercept a pass."

And that's exactly what happened. Dave Cianelli intercepted a State pass on the Spartan 30, but the Terps fumbled it away two plays later on the Spartan 18.

The Spartans kicked to Maryland's 35 just before the third period ended. When they changed goals, the Terps once again had the goal with the wind. They rolled 65 yards for a touchdown.

State, now trailing 20-7 and desperate, began throwing passes all over the lot. They completed four of them — all to Maryland — and the Terps capitalized on two of the interceptions to run up two more touchdowns.

"It worked out perfectly," the happy Tatum concluded. "The next time we play Georgia and we win the toss we're going to kick-off to them and defend the goal where there's some shade — if there ever is any in Athens in September."—MORRIS SIEGEL.

Pass Protection for Samuels

Purdue Coach Stu Holcomb Divulges 'Secret Weapon'

Victorious Mentor Devised Pocket for 5-Foot 9-Inch Star

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 8 (AP).—The secret weapon that Coach Stu Holcomb of Purdue devised to upset Notre Dame, he revealed today, was to provide a well-protected pocket for Dale Samuels, his sensational sophomore passer.

"We did it by spreading out our backfield," he said. "Samuels is only five-feet-nine and he needed protection. We gave it to him and he did the rest."

Samuels, asked about winning said:

"Boy, oh boy! It was a good feeling, especially those last three or four minutes when Notre Dame was watching the clock!"

Purdue outgained Notre Dame in passing 185 yards to 46. In the final period with Purdue leading 21 to 14 and Notre Dame threatening, Samuels started a 56-yard pass play to Mike Maccioli that brought the touchdown that made it 28-14 and killed all Irish hopes.

"It was something every coach dreams about, and it was nice to wake up today and find it was true," said Holcomb, a stocky, genial, black-haired former member of the West Point coaching staff.

"Yes, sir, it was the best ball game I ever saw, or hope to see."

There were no immediate plans for a special celebration at the school tomorrow.

"Everybody's too tired right now," said Bob Woodworth, Purdue director of athletic publicity. "And (ahem) we have defeated Notre Dame before (19-0 in 1933)."

Krause Says Irish Will Come Back, But Leahy Won't Predict

From Press Dispatches

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 8.—Out of the gloom that hung over the Notre Dame campus today came the promise that the Irish will come back.

"We'll start another string of victories," Edward W. (Moose) Krause, Notre Dame director of athletics, said today in looking back at Purdue's 28-14 victory over the Irish Saturday which ended modern football's greatest victory streak.

Coach Frank Leahy agreed but would make no predictions for the balance of the season.

"Just as before," he said, "we'll take them one at a time."

"We have no alibis," he went on. "Those boys came up here to beat us and they did. It was simply that a team that was better than Notre Dame won."

Leahy discounted any claim that Purdue might have won by breaks.

"The team that is the most alert doesn't get the breaks," he said. "It makes the breaks. There is absolutely no alibing. I want to be quoted on that."

The defeat was the first for Notre Dame in five seasons and broke a string of 39 consecutive contests without a loss. Only two ties marred the march, a scoreless duel with Army in 1946 and a 14-to-14 deadlock with Southern California in the last game of 1948.

And Leahy, even though he knew the string had to end sometime and though he looked forward to defeat, was not relieved.

"I believe I'd rather have the pressure," he said, referring to the nervous strain which caused the affable coach and his kid football players to break into tears after they had congratulated Purdue Coach Stu Holcomb and his team.

"It was bound to come," Krause observed about the loss.

Bill Bennings Says:

DEAR FOLKS: AT BOWIE

What does a jockey do on his day off? Mike Basile flew to Miami after Saturday's program and plans to be back for Monday's racing. Friends of R. 'Scud" Renna former trainer and jockey agent, were saddened to hear of his death in Baltimore. Principal Joe broke a leg at Laurel and had to be destroyed. Jockey Freddie Kratz who has been riding in West Virginia and the Middle West this season stopped here enroute to Aiken, S. C., where he will spend the winter. John Manfuso's Alluring proved the first horse of the meeting to win two races. In fact, few thoroughbreds have had two chances at purses so crowded are the entry lists. Washington's H. M. Simpson shipped in six horses including First Boston, winner of the Ascot Gold Cup. Now that the World Series is over I'll see more of you on the rail.

Civil Service Rule Expected to Limit Grade Promotions

PROMOTION CURB: You can look for the Civil Service Commission to issue an order soon to restrict grade promotions even though they must be made on a temporary basis throughout Government.

As now written, the average employe would have to serve at least six months in his job before he could be given a grade promotion. Also, promotions of two or more grades would be subject to prior Civil Service approval. Exceptions are possible under the proposal.

COMMERCE: Its Export Control functions have been moved to the Office of International Trade from the Office of Industry and Commerce. Ray Miller, OIT director is planning to request funds to double the export control staff. With growing restrictions on exports, the huge work backlog at export control has more than doubled in the past 10 days.

OIC: The Office of Industry and Commerce is going on the shelf for the duration. It won't be abolished, however. OIC is a shell now that export control has been transferred and its business advisory functions have been taken over by the new National Production Authority. The remnants, like transportation, will go to the new transportation agency to be created, and other Commerce units.

TEMPORARY HIRING: The President this week can be expected to issue an order to require all Federal agencies to hire on a temporary basis, despite the opposition of several agencies to the plan. But the order will carry a clause which will permit some regular appointments to be made.

For example, Internal Revenue and Social Security are two agencies that have funds to increase their numbers of permanent jobs. It's likely that Civil Service will allow them to make permanent appointments to them. Furthermore, all agencies can get Civil Service okay to give regular appointments to unique jobs that can't be filled by temporaries.

EFFICIENCY RATINGS: Some of the larger agencies are planning to have several different efficiency rating systems. They will submit plans to the Civil Service Commission for a rating system to cover clerical workers; another for scientific and professional people, and a third for per diems.

In addition, some agencies would like to have more than three possible ratings. The new law requires a minimum of three: "Outstanding," "Satisfactory," and "Unsatisfactory," but one or more others are possible under it.

Civil Service, however, will attempt to keep the different agency systems along the same general lines. The retention point system would be fouled up if some agencies had more than three ratings. It hasn't been finally decided, but an "outstanding" employe would get 5 retention points, and a "satisfactory" would get either 3 points or 1 under preliminary Civil Service plans.

PERSONALS: At ECA, Irving Swerdlow has been promoted to director of the Division of Statistics and Reports. Jerry Doster has been moved up to classification chief to succeed Jack Harlan, who was appointed executive officer to the ECA mission in Austria. . . . Joe Brent, a former Air Force special assistant, has been appointed deputy chief of ECA's economic mission to Thailand. . . Glen A. Gilbert, a pioneer in traffic control, has resigned from Civil Aeronautics to go into business for himself. He's launching a producer-to-consumer meat business. . . Also at CAA, Col. J. A. Villamor, a consultant on Far East aviation problems, is resigning to return to the Air Force.

ROUND-UP: Don Burrows has moved from the Air Force to be comptroller of the National Security Resources Board, a very good man . . . Edwin G. Royster has retired from Housing and Home Finance after 31 years of Federal service . . . Paul C. Campbell of Public Housing, was given an in-grade promotion for superior performance on the job. He worked out a fee system for architects and engineers on public housing programs.

A. H. Older Dies of Polio; Seventh '50 Area Fatality

Connecticut Native Was Correspondent For Radio and Film Publications Here

Andrew H. Older, 33, Washington correspondent for several movie and radio publications, became the seventh polio fatality in the area when he died Saturday in Gallinger Hospital. He had been ill since Wednesday.

Mr. Older, who lived at 6417 Dahlonega rd., Glen Echo Heights, Md., was stricken with the bulbar type polio while at work, his wife, Mrs. Isabel Older, said.

Mr. Older

According to Mrs. Older, her husband called home Wednesday to tell Mrs. Ray Goldstein, his mother-in-law, that, although he felt ill, he would be guest speaker on a radio program at 5 p. m.

Within half an hour, however, Mrs. Older said he drove home and went to bed with a slight temperature.

"It looked just like a virus infection," Mrs. Older said.

Taken to Gallinger

Friday at 3:30 p.m. Dr. Irving Schulan, 218 Wayne pl. se., called an ambulance to take Mr. Older to Gallinger. At midnight he developed pneumonia.

The next day, however, Mr. Older appeared improved.

"At 8:30 p. m. Saturday the doctors put him in an iron lung to rest him," Mrs. Older said. "I yelled at him above the lung's motor, that he shouldn't be frightened, that he was put in the lung to rest."

"Okay!", Older shouted in return, his wife reported. It was the first audible sound he had uttered since Wednesday.

But at 11:30 p. m. he was dead.

A native of Hartford, Conn., Mr. Older was graduated with an A. B. degree from Trinity College there in 1937. He published a magazine in Hartford prior to coming here in 1940.

Employed By Pearson

In 1941 he joined the Farm Security Administration of the Department of Agriculture. He was employed by Columnist Drew Pearson from 1944 to 1947.

Since 1948 Mr. Older has been Washington correspondent for Hollywood Reporter, Film Daily, Radio Daily and Box Office Magazine.

He was a member of the National Press Club.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Martha Jane, 8, and Gretchen Anne, 5; a son, Morris, 2; his mother, Mrs. Ethel J. Older of Farmington, Conn., and three sisters, Mrs. Julia Helfgott and Mrs. Nathan Ausubel, both of New York City, and Mrs. Louis Shapiro of Farmington.

Memorial services will be held at Danzansky's Funeral Home, 3501 14th st. nw., Tuesday at 3 p. m. Burial will be private.

Businessmen to Meet

The Columbia Heights Business Men's Association will hold a luncheon meeting at 1 p. m. Wednesday at the Garden T Shoppe, 14th and Monroe sts. nw.

Washington Artists' Guild Holds Annual Exhibition

Capital Scene Is Celebrated By Artists in Museum Show

Hundreds of art lovers defied a day-long drizzle to attend the opening of the eighth annual exhibition of the Artists' Guild of Washington at the National Museum, 10th st. and Constitution ave. nw.

Guild President Prentiss Taylor, who has two oil paintings and one water color among the 86 works on display, called the attendance gratifying.

Along with the weather, the fabulous Gulbenkian collection of old masters on display for the first time at the National Gallery two blocks away was regarded by some as a hindrance to the Guild exhibition.

Among the more prominent works in the Guild show are familiar Washington scenes.

Will Anderson has an oil, "The Tunnel," painted along the railroad south of Alexandria. Barbara Ferrell has painted her impression of "Dupont Circle," a collection of angular figures, and "H Street Construction."

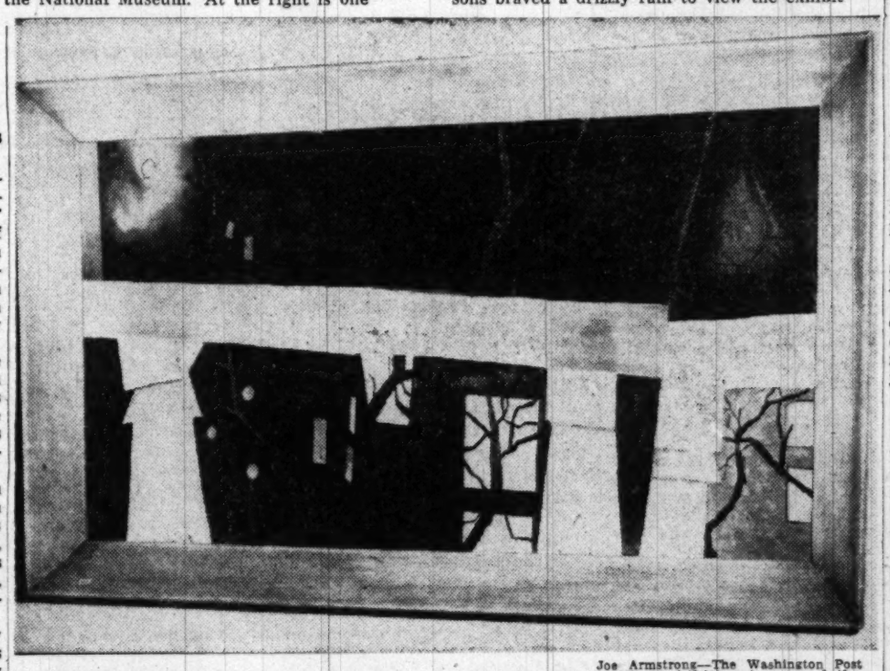
John Chapman Lewis, a 27-year-old member of the Guild, exhibits his "Circus Grounds," painted during the recent run of the Greatest Show on Earth in Northeast Washington. An outdoor scene on 29th st. nw., south of Dumbarton, is shown by Andrea Pietro Zerega in "Entrance to My Garden."

Norman Mazo has taken the cherry blossoms as his subject in "Tourists," and Helen Rennie has painted her reaction to a scene from Memorial Bridge as she rides to work from Virginia every morning in "Land of the Free."

Tearing down the gas works in Foggy Bottom is the inspiration for Alfred McAdams in his gouache, "Relics." Carl Nyquist, whose many Washington subjects are familiar to local connoisseurs, has two oils and a cotton mulberry figure on display.

Taylor presents his recently completed major work, "Endless Sunday, Easter Island," along with two paintings of Washington scenes, "VJ Night, Lafayette Square" in oil and "Potomac Bridges" in watercolor.

The exhibition continues through October 29 from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m. daily.



MODERN—An example of the more recent school of art is the oil painting "Balcony" by Jack Perlmutter. The exhibition is open daily from 9 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Homer Rodeheaver Heard Again at Mission Anniversary

A 70-year-old singing evangelist with a golden trombone and a group of men who had forsaken the "primrose path" for the ministry were stars of the sixty-sixth anniversary meeting of the Central Union Mission yesterday.

Homer Rodeheaver—of the resonant voice and jubilant horn—brought back many memories to the more than 1500 persons who spent the drizzly afternoon in Constitution Hall.

"How many of you were ever in a Billy Sunday meeting?" asked Rodeheaver, who trouped with the famed revivalist for 20 years.

Over 1000 hands shot up, and Rodeheaver responded by playing a group of Sunday's favorites, including "The Old Rugged Cross" and "Brighten the Corner Where You Are."

Six "twice-born men" told of their lives before turning to religion and becoming directors of rescue missions.

Among those speaking were: the Rev. George Bolton, superintendent of the famous Bowery Mission in New York City; the Rev. Claude J. Moore, of Jamestown, N. Y., president of the International Union of Gospel Missions; the Rev. Lawrence J. Sutherland, of Newark's Goodwill Home and Rescue Mission; the Rev. Ernest J. Tippett, of Bridgeport's (Conn.) Christian Union; the Rev. William E. Paul, of Minneapolis' Union City Mission; and the Rev. Peter MacFarlane, of St. Paul, Minn., chairman of the executive committee of the International Union of Gospel Missions.

Also participating in the celebration were William H. Ramsey, president of the mission's board of directors; the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert E. Eberhardt, who run the mission located at 613 C st. nw.

Bus Service Restored on WM&A Line

Some 20,000 passengers who ride WM&A buses between the District and points in Prince Georges will find full service restored today for the first time in five days.

A protest strike by drivers of Division 1365 of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Operators (AFL) was called off late Saturday when they agreed to submit their dispute to arbitration.

The unexpected walkout occurred Wednesday after the company, the Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis line, discharged a driver involved in an accident, charging negligence. The union contended the accident was caused by bad weather conditions and was not the driver's fault.

Representatives of both sides accepted the recommendation to arbitrate, submitted by Charles T. Estes, special assistant to Federal Conciliation Chief Cyrus Ching.

After service had been disrupted for four days, many Government agencies urged a settlement of the dispute "in the public interest."

The line serves Marlboro, North Beach, Capitol Heights, Silver Hill and Maryland Park. Its Washington terminus is 11th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Firemen Save Woman, 33, From Flames

Wearing smoke masks, Pvt. Charles Lonas and Sergt. John Wagner carried Mrs. Marion Woodring, 33, to safety from her home at 2909 Blue Ridge ave.

Mrs. Woodring was taken to Suburban Hospital and treated for burns on the upper part of her body, and shock.

Her husband, Kenneth Woodring, 42, who called the firemen was treated for burns on one hand and his head by Dr. Belden Reap of Wheaton.

The mattress on the Woodrings' bed was destroyed. Firemen confined the blaze to the bedroom and estimated the damage at $2000.

Va. Doctors Gather for Annual Parley

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 8 (Spl.).—About 800 physicians from all parts of Virginia began gathering here today for the 103d annual meeting of the Medical Society of Virginia, which opens Monday.

Approximately 30 scientific reports will be presented during the three-day assembly that concludes on Wednesday.

Today the interim governing body of the society approved a proposal for the purchase of a society headquarters building in Richmond.

The 14-member council of the MSV which approved the building committee plans, referred the matter for final approval of the organization's House of Delegates. The delegates representing 48 local medical societies within the State are expected to go along with the building plans.

At present the society is renting quarters in the Richmond Academy of Medicine building. The available facilities are not sufficient to meet expanding needs, explained Dr. W. C. Caudill, of Pearisburg, the society's president.

Today's action by the council precedes the start Monday of a three-day scientific assembly and business session of the State Medical Society.

On Monday night Senator Harry F. Byrd (D., Va.) will be guest speaker. He will talk on present trends in legislation in Washington. A second speaker on the same program will be Col. William L. Wilson, special assistant to the Surgeon General, Washington, D. C., who will talk on civilian defense.

Other conference highlights include a talk at 4 p. m. Tuesday, on postgraduate education for practicing physicians, by Dr. Franklin D. Murphy of Kansas City, Kans., and a cancer symposium on Wednesday morning, led by Dr. George T. Pack, New York cancer authority.

The convention will conclude on Wednesday with installation of the new president, Dr. C. L. Harrall of Norfolk. More than 2200 physicians of the State's 2700 are members of the society.

Three Dead In Weekend Accidents on Area Roads

Merrifield Man Killed; Md. Infant Burned to Death; Cyclist Is Fatality

Three Washington area persons are dead as a result of weekend traffic accidents.

Percy H. Keneipp, 54, of Fairhill rd., near Merrifield, in Fairfax County, was killed instantly as he was alighting from his auto on Route 211 near his home last night.

Keneipp was struck by an auto driven by Henry Lane, 59, of 1504 N. Nelson st. N., Arlington.

Arlington Hospital doctors said Keneipp suffered severe head injuries and multiple fractures all over his body. He was pronounced dead at 11:40 p. m.

Sergt. John Wall of the Fairfax County police, said a technical charge of manslaughter will be lodged against Lane.

A 2-year-old boy was burned to death in his father's overturned automobile shortly before midnight Saturday on Md. Route 2 near Lusby, Calvert County, Maryland State Police at Waldorf said.

He was Carroll Jefferson, jr., son of Carroll Jefferson, 24, of Lusby.

Police said the car struck the edge of a bridge, careened over an embankment, and burst into flames. The father escaped uninjured.

Richard Ferguson, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben S. Ferguson of 800 S. Wakefield st., Arlington, died early yesterday in Arlington Hospital as result of a fractured skull received in an accident Friday, hospital officials said.

Collides With Car

Arlington police said Richard, riding a bicycle, was injured when he collided at 9th and Taylor sts., Arlington, with an auto driven by Charles Ray Rodwell, 41, of 704 S. George Mason dr., Alexandria.

William Gorman, 17, of 4512 Illinois ave. nw., and Walter Sands, 18, of 701 Taylor st. nw., were treated at Gallinger Hospital for cuts and bruises after a hit-and-run accident shortly before midnight Saturday at Nebraska ave. and Military rd. nw.

Shouted Obscenities

Police said the youths told them an unidentified man in an auto shouted obscenities at a group of teen-agers returning in a truck from a picnic.

When the vehicle stopped at the intersection, the youths said they jumped from the truck and tried to pull the man out of his car. The car sped away, knocking Gorman and Sands down, they said.

Motorcycle Police Pvt. Millard L. Thrift, 24, of 6902 A st., Seat Pleasant, Md., was admitted to Casualty Hospital with a back injury after he collided with an auto last night at 17th and Benning rd. ne., police said.

Private Thrift was racing to an accident at Bladensburg rd. and Morse st. ne. when the collision occurred. Clay Logan, 50, of 5333 Astor pl. se., driver of the car, was charged with failure to give right of way to a vehicle on an emergency run. A corporation council hearing is scheduled.

Viers Mill Accident

While riding his bicycle, Glen Reno, 11, ran into the side of an automobile at about 2 p. m. at Randolph and Charles rds. in Viers Mill Village, Montgomery County.

The boy, who lives at 4511 Sigbee rd., Viers Mill Village, was taken to Suburban Hospital, Bethesda, by the Kensington rescue squad. He suffered a severe laceration of the forehead. The hospital reported last night he was still unconscious. His condition was listed as "undetermined."

The driver of the car, Hugh Keesling, 22, of 2957 Carlton ave. ne., was charged with reckless driving by county police. A hearing will be held later in Silver Spring Police Court after the extent of the boy's injuries are known.

Maryland Candidates Go Into High Gear

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

With only a month to go, Maryland political candidates this week will swing into high speed campaign tactics.

Marylanders of both parties keep on the move when they go out for public office. The technique is to go from town to town and county to county in a handshaking, vote-getting tour topped off in the evenings by rallies and speeches in major communities.

The system hits its climax in the final week before election day—November 7, this year—when the State candidates dig into Baltimore City, political hub of the State in a general election, and step up the pace to 8 or 10 meetings a night.

Bethesda Rally Thursday

Washington area highlight this week is a Democratic rally slated for 8 p. m. Thursday in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School to hear the State and Congressional candidates.

Their Republican opponents will strike into southern Maryland early in the week and into Frederick County Thursday.

Speakers for the Democratic rally Thursday include Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., candidate for reelection; United States Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.), running for his fifth term, and Maj. Gen. Russell P. Hartle, USA., retired, who is seeking election to the Sixth District congressional seat.

Their opponents are Theodore Roosevelt McKeldin, GOP candidate for Governor and former Mayor of Baltimore; John Marshall Butler, Baltimore attorney, candidate for the United States Senate, and Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.) four-time winner of the Sixth (Western Maryland) congressional seat.

Hammond to Participate

With Lane, Tydings and Hartle in the Thursday Montgomery County rally will be Hall Hammond, seeking reelection as attorney general, and J. Millard Tawes, unopposed for reelection as State comptroller.

Hammond's opponent is William A. Gunter, Cumberland attorney.

Lane, Tydings, Hammond and Tawes are expected to tour Alleghany County Monday and Washington County Tuesday.

Butler and McKeldin are to make similar tours into St. Mary's and Calvert Counties Monday and Tuesday.

In the Lane-McKeldin race the big question being posed by some leading Democratic politicians is whether the votes Lane lost in his bitter primary fight with George P. Mahoney will return to him in sufficient numbers in the general election.

Mahoney beat Lane in the popular vote count, but lost the nomination through the State's unit vote system which threw the decision to Lane, 84 to 68. Mahoney then stepped aside in the State Convention saying that as a Democrat he would support all the party's candidates.

But some top men in the Democratic Party, eyeing the primary returns, predicted it was unlikely that Mahoney's action alone would steer back to Lane those votes that were primarily anti-Lane votes in the September 18 contest. They said there were votes that came from pro-Lane organizations and votes that came from pro-Mahoney organizations, and a lot more votes for Mahoney that came from somewhere beyond the limits of organization control. And they said it was probable many of these votes would not be returned to Lane.

Lane beat McKeldin in the governorship race of 1946. Lane won by 46,332 votes. Of these, 44,888 were the margin which Baltimore city gave to Lane. (In the primary Lane lost five of the six Baltimore city unit areas to Mahoney). Lane's margin in the 23 counties was 1444 votes. Lane led in 12 counties including Prince Georges and Mahoney in 11 including Montgomery.

Lost in 1942

McKeldin also ran for Governor in 1942, losing to Herbert R. O'Conor, who is now United States Senator, by about 20,000 vites.

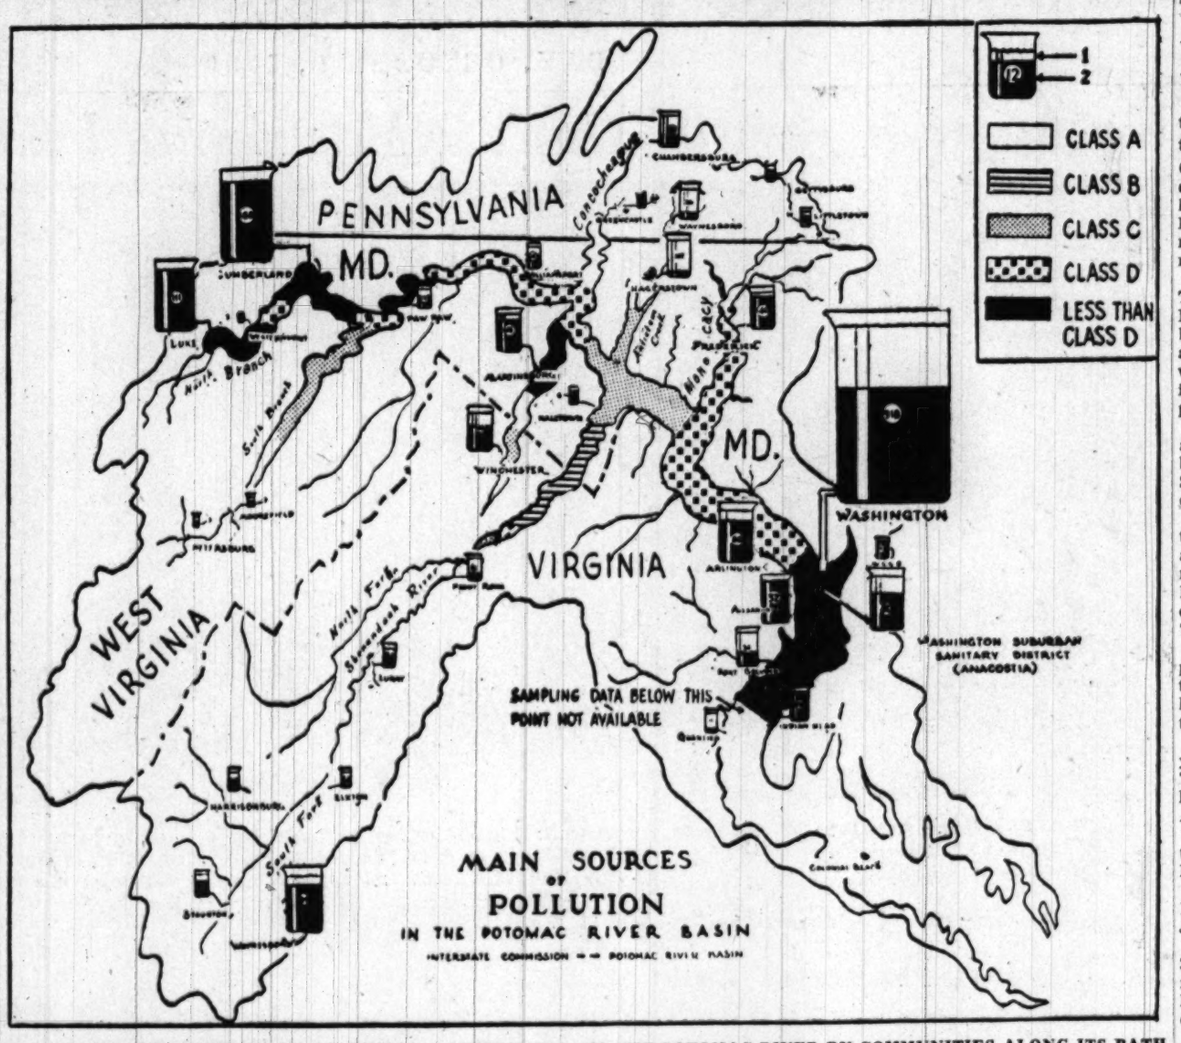
Butler is the standard bearer in a concerted GOP attack against Senator Tydings who ranks third in Senate seniority, and who heads the Armed Services Committee. He also headed the subcommittee that investigated the charges by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) that numbers of subversives were on the State Department payroll.

Tydings won his first election to the Senate in 1926 when he defeated Senator O. E. Weller (R., Md.) by about 55,000 votes. He won two more terms by votes of more than 2 to 1; the tally in 1932 was 293,389 for Tydings to 138,536 for Wallace Williams, the Republican nominee; and the count in 1938 (after the unsuccessful purge-Tydings effort by President Roosevelt in the primary) was 357,245 for Tydings to 153,253 for Oscar Leser, Baltimore City judge.

In his last election Tydings won over Blanchard Randall, jr., of Baltimore by 344,725 to 213,705. Tydings won easily in Baltimore City, and carried all but 3 of the 23 counties.

Popular vote decides the general election; the unit vote system applies only in the primaries.

Potomac Called Threat to Human Health



MAP SHOWS THE AMOUNT OF POLLUTION CONTRIBUTED TO THE POTOMAC RIVER BY COMMUNITIES ALONG ITS PATH

LEGEND—The beakers show the amount of pollution (1) removed at each point with the dark area (2) in the beaker showing the pollution load that remains. The figure within the beaker indicates the population equivalent in thousands of persons. Places which provide no sewage treatment are represented by beakers full of black liquid. The river water quality is indicated as follows: Class A—Suitable for drinking, good fish life, and high oxygen content; Class B—Suitable for bathing and supports fish life; Class C—Supports some fish life; water suitable for boating and industrial purposes; Class D—Supports only lower forms of marine life. Some sludge deposits appearing. Black areas show conditions less than Class D.

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Fifty years ago an Arlington poet named Upson called the Potomac River a "jewelled stream." Recently Harold A. Kemp, District Sanitary Engineer, compared it with an "open sewer."

"We've spent 100 years polluting one of the most beautiful rivers in the world," Kemp said at a meeting of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin which he heads. "I hope it won't take that long to clean it up."

There are several stretches of the Potomac where the pollution is so heavy that fish and other aquatic life can't exist in it. One of those is a 6-mile stretch southward from Hains Point. It is so bad that Kemp pleaded at the Oakland, Md., meeting: "Please do not permit your children to swim in this stream."

The accompanying map shows there are other sections equally as bad. One of these lies between Luke, Md., and Paw Paw, W. Va. A tributary near Martinsburg is another. In fact, the map shows there is practically no spot on the Potomac or its chief tributaries from Indian Head north that isn't dangerous to human health.

"It should not be necessary for a tragedy to befall us in order to make us aware of the condition of the river," Kemp warned, making public the fears other water experts have expressed privately about the septic conditions of the Potomac.

Figures on the present condition of the Potomac at Washington should bring pause to everyone, particularly members of Congress who are responsible for the District Government.

The normal, natural dissolved oxygen content of the Potomac before pollution, was about 7.5 parts per million gallons of water in summer, and up to 15 parts in winter.

For safety this content should not be permitted to fall below a daily average of 3 parts per million, or 25 pounds of oxygen per million gallons of water.

The dissolved oxygen content of the Potomac at Washington—the Nation's Capital—has dropped to as low as one half part per million or about four pounds of oxygen per million gallons of water.

"I actually fear septic conditions, or complete absence of oxygen in the water before corrective measures can be put into operation," Kemp said.

The above map shows the amount of pollution contributed to the stream by the various communities along its 383 mile course, or along the 661 miles of its tributaries. The beakers show the amount of the pollution removed from the discharge at each point, and the pollution load that remains.

For instance, the beaker at Washington shows that only 33 1/3 percent of the pollution load of sewerage from a population of 918,000 is removed. Across the river at Alexandria, none of the pollution from a population load of 52,000 is removed, and in Arlington only 20 percent of the pollution load from a population of 80,000 is taken out.

After treatment rendered in this area by all agencies, the pollution load discharged into the river is equivalent to the raw sewerage from a population of 1,110,000. That is 2.3 times the load the river can safely assimilate, and much more than a Nation as proud as ours should permit to be dumped into one of its most historic streams flowing past its magnificent capital.

Heart Ill Fatal To E. E. Swan, Retired Banker

Edward English Swan, 69, retired assistant vice president of the American Security and Trust Co., died of a heart attack yesterday at his home in the Kennedy Warren Apartments.

Mr. Swan

A native of Trenton, N. J., Mr. Swan was brought here as a child and was educated in Washington public schools.

His career as a banker began in 1906 when he became a runner for the old Home Savings Bank at 7th and Massachusetts ave. ne.

After some experience as a teller, Mr. Swan was appointed assistant treasurer in 1908, remaining in that post when the Home Savings Bank was consolidated with American Security and Trust in 1919.

He was appointed assistant vice president in 1941, and upon his retirement last year was honored by his colleagues with a reception at the Kennedy Warren.

His entire career, lasting 43 years, was spent in the building at 7th and Massachusetts ave., now known as the Central Branch of American Security and Trust.

He was a Shriner and belonged to the Dawson Lodge No. 16 of the Masons.

Mr. Swan leaves his wife, Mrs. Bertie E. Swan, and a sister, Mrs. J. B. Jones, 3213 Military rd. nw.

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. Wednesday in the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial arrangements have not been completed.

Dr. Willis H. Carrier, 73; Air-Conditioning Pioneer

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (AP).—Dr. Willis Haviland Carrier, 73, one of the leaders in the air conditioning industry, died yesterday.

A native of Angola, N. Y., he became the founder and first president of the Carrier Engineering Corporation, now the Carrier Corporation, in 1915.

His development of the first practical system of air conditioning began in 1902 with a study of why research papers of a Brooklyn color processor became distorted by atmospheric humidity.

The following year Dr. Carrier invented the spray-type air washer and in 1905 he improved the apparatus into the spray-type air conditioner, generally considered to have been the birth of the entire science of air conditioning.

Phil D. Poston, Real Estate Operator, Dies

Phil D. Poston, prominent Silver Spring real estate broker for the past 30 years, died last Thursday at this Ormand Beach, Fla., home.

Mr. Poston

Death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage. Mr. Poston had been living in Florida since his retirement this year.

Since 1921 Mr. Poston had been active in the development of the Greater Silver Spring area.

Operating as an individual broker, he contributed largely to the planning and advancement of the Woodside Park area along at his Ormond Beach, Fla., home. district of Burnt Mills Hills, where he lived for some time.

He also located such enterprises as the Hecht Co. Silver Spring store, the American Instrument Co. and the Texaco and Conoco oil companies and other businesses contributing to the commercial growth of the northwest area.

Mr. Poston was born in Clarksville, Tenn., on February 7, 1880. He came to Washington in 1897.

During World War I he served as a major in the Army, and worked with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, then a lieutenant colonel, in developing the United States Tank Corps. He was cited for superior works as executive officer of the corps general headquarters in a letter sent to him by Eisenhower.

A member of the Montgomery County Real Estate Board, Poston was one of the first to urge the establishment of public parking areas as a solution to the retail trade problem in Silver Spring.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Aurora M. Poston of Ormond Beach, Fla., and a stepson, George A. Edwards, 2220 Washington ave., Silver Spring, Md.

Funeral services will be held in the Warner E. Pumphrey funeral home, 8434 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., on Tuesday at 10 a. m. Burial will be at Chestnut Grove Cemetery, Herndon, Va.

Fondahl to Speak

Inspector John E. Fondahl, acting director of civilian defense for the District, will speak on "Citizens' Responsibility in Civilian Defense Planning" at a meeting of the American University Park Citizens Association at 8 p. m. Monday in Hurst Hall, American University.

Bales Leads Genial Program By National Gallery Group

By Paul Hume

As good concerts should, yesterday's programs brought some great music, both new and old.

Richard Bales and the National Gallery Orchestra played one of their most genial programs, with Mabel McComb Holmes as piano soloist in the second concerto of Beethoven.

The orchestra did handsomely with Haydn's Symphony No. 85, known as the Queen. Bales has been doing great service in performing many Haydn symphonies neglected by our larger orchestras. The orchestra responded with unusual discipline and elegance of phrasing.

Earlier, the gallery heard a suite by Marin Marais, which Bales has played here before.

Porter's String Music

Quincy Porter's Music for Strings made an even deeper impression than it has on previous hearings. It is engaging music of our own time, perfectly written for strings; of contrasting color and mood, and constant in its technical skill, even while it pleases the ear. It was richly played.

Mrs. Holmes, making her local debut, played what is actually Beethoven's first concerto, though it is numbered two in lists of his music. It is thought that this was the first time the piece has been played in Washington, a strange possibility. Her playing had happy moments but was often marred by inaccuracies in notes, technical mishaps, and failure to play the two hands together.

Postponed Concert Given

In the afternoon, Albert Fuller played the recital he had to postpone in Washington Cathedral last Sunday because of mechanical trouble in the organ there.

Taking the opportunity of hearing the recital during the week, I found it one of the most exciting and thoroughly musical organ recitals in memory. Apt readings of brief works of baroque composers led to the two chief pieces of the day: The Ascension of Messiaen, and Bach's G Minor Fantasy and Fugue.

The Messiaen has never been performed here in its entirety. It is a powerful work, full of the usual mystical connotations its composer so loves, and of his own harmonic vocabulary. Its problems were dismissed by Fuller who mastered them years ago, and could give his entire attention to making the often abstruse music come to life in an exciting way.

This was even more true of his account of the great work of Bach. Organists, many of them, would tear their hair at the way he plays the familiar fantasy. Yet is was always sound musically, and of a virility and stylistic authority that has at least as much place in our day as a more general realization.

And should any question exist about Fuller's Bach, it was dispelled in the magnificent precision with which he delivered the Fugue. It was a stunning recital.

Gen. Robert A. Nagle, Airman, Dies at Club

NEWTON, Mass., Oct. 8 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Robert A. Nagle, 53, who returned to active duty only last week as commanding general of the 433d Troop Carrier Wing, Cleveland, Ohio, died last night of a heart attack at the Braeburn Country Club.

He served as an Army pilot during World War I and from 1919 to 1940 was a member of the Air Reserve at Mitchell Field, N. Y. He was recalled to active service in 1940 and for five years was with both the Training Command, Air Service Command and with the Fourth Air Force.

While with the Fourth Air Force he helped set up the air gunnery school at Daggett Field, Calif.

Herndon Man Hangs Self In Jail Cell

A 49-year-old Herndon, Va., painter hanged himself in the Herndon Jail yesterday, a few hours after he was charged with driving while drunk.

The victim, identified as Everett Burr, was found at 3:30 p. m., hanging by his belt from an overhead water pipe in the jail cell.

Herndon Town Sergt. V. C. Cockrell said he had arrested Burr and a companion at 10:30 a. m. when he saw their auto weaving through the streets.

Burr stretched out on the cot as soon as he was jailed, Cockrell said. The cell was checked every half hour and Burr remained that way until he was found hanged, according to Cockrell. He had apparently tied himself up by standing on the cot, then kicked the cot away, Cockrell said.

Burr was married, had two married children and a small daughter living at home.

it's KICK-OFF time . . .

You know, in some ways a regular Savings Program is like a Football Game. You kick-off (open a Savings Account) and the game begins. Each new play (new addition) furthers and adds zest to the game. The score (savings plus earnings) goes higher. Before long your team (you and your family) emerges victorious. You're ready for the post-game celebrations (funds for education, vacations, illness and retirement)! Why don't you come in and let us get your game started? Kick-off time for savings is any time. You can start with $5 or more—and every dollar you save earns liberal dividends.

'Let Women Fight,' Says One of Them

By the United Press

Sarah T. Hughes, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, said today that women should be drafted as well as men because "war is total."

Appearing on NBC television's "American Forum of the Air," she said women should be used for any kind of duty for which they are qualified, even combat service.

She suggested that one of the results of drafting women might be to keep more fathers at home to look after their children and prevent breakup of homes such as occurred during the last war.

"If we are going to have war, it will be total war," she said. "If it comes, women should be drafted for civil defense, production and the three services. They have the rights and privileges of government, they should take the responsibilities, too."

Dr. Baumgartner Resigns From U. S. Children's Bureau

By the United Press

Dr. Leona Baumgartner has resigned her post as associate chief of the Children's Bureau, Federal Security Agency.

Dr. Baumgartner will return to her position as assistant commissioner of health of New York City, which she held before accepting her post here in June, 1949. She will continue to serve, however, as an unsalaried special consultant on affairs relating to the bureau's programs of research and children's services.

Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the bureau, praised Dr. Baumgartner for her "rich understanding and rare judgment" and said the bureau was quite fortunate that she "has agreed to continue to work with us in a consultative capacity."

"During her 15 months with us, she gave us devoted service in the total program of the bureau," Miss Lenroot said. "She knows first-hand the problems that parents of children handicapped by polio, epilepsy, premature birth and emotional difficulties face, and she knows what communities can do to get help to these children."

Experiment Edna

A Good First Impression Doesn't Require Beauty

Second day of Edna's 14-day beauty program

By Ann Lawrence

FORTUNATELY, YOU DON'T need to be a raving beauty (for how many of us are?) to create a good first . . . or second or lasting . . . impression in the eyes of your most critical audience or the most casual observer.

Many qualities, other than facial perfection, can win a woman the title "handsome," or "distinctive" or just plain "attractive."

But no woman can be beautiful, or even attractive, if her posture is poor. Slouched shoulders, a curving spine, a chin jutting forward or slumped down into her neck, will make any woman look tired, badly-dressed . . . and older than her years.

Erect shoulders, a lifted head, a graceful walk, on the other hand, lend self-assurance, seem almost to say: "Notice me. I'm a person worth looking at and knowing."

CERTAINLY, THE SHORTER-THAN-AVERAGE person, as Edna is, who's trying her best to seem taller, should look first to her posture. She can actually add an inch to her height by standing correctly.

Edna did not even know that she was slumping forward. Here's the test she made . . . and one you can make at home . . . that answered her posture question beyond all doubt. Stand naturally and turn sideways before a full-length mirror. Now look at your silhouette. Can a straight line be drawn from the top of your head to your hipbone, then to your knee and on down to your ankle bone?

If that line is straight, congratulations. You're one in a thousand . . . a woman with good posture.

IF YOUR LINE ZIGZAGS, as Edna discovered, then a couple of simple exercises and the will power to remember and stand correctly will straighten you up and out.

FOR WAIST-PARING: Sit Turkish fashion on the floor, knees bent, hands on your knees and your legs crossed at the ankles. Pull abdominal muscles in hard while rounding back, with your head and chest bent forward. Gradually straighten up, rocking slowly back on the buttock muscles. Be sure you hold your abdominal muscles in until your head and neck are high and your back is straight, with your shoulders relaxed. Repeat three times. Rest. Repeat nine times altogether.

That double chin and dowager's hump melt away if this exercise is faithfully performed: Sitting with your legs stretched out in an easy, comfortable position, place your hands in back of your hips. Now slump your head, chest and shoulders forward. Push your body upward from hands, your chest forward, shoulders back and head high. Raise your hips from the floor if possible and be careful not to hunch your shoulders. Repeat six times. Rest. Twelve altogether.

O'Boyle Calls Tenet Blow at Birth Control

The new Roman Catholic dogma of the Assumption was labeled "a rebuke to birth control and euthanasia" by the Archbishop of Washington yesterday.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle described the new doctrine as both a corrective for "cheap and tawdry philosophies" and as a reprimand to that which "degrades the dignity of man."

The archbishop preached at the solemn pontifical mass opening the four-day Franciscan National Marian Congress at the Franciscan Monastery, 14th and Quincy sts. ne. Mass was celebrated by the Most Rev. Amleto G. Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States.

Remedy for Cheapness

"It may well be in the province of God the remedy for the cheap and tawdry philosophies and attitudes which today put such a low estimate on the body of man," the archbishop said.

"It would be in its own way a rebuke to 'birth control' and 'euthanasia' and all else that demeans or degrades the dignity of man."

More than 40 prelates and scholars are taking part in the conference, purpose of which is to acclaim the promulgation of the ascension of the Virgin Mary's body into heaven at the time of her death, as a special mark of favor from God. The dogma will be proclaimed as a matter of faith for 400 million Catholics on the eve of All Saints Day, November 1, by Pope XII.

The Word of God

"Our dogmas," Archbishop O'Boyle said, "are statements of the word of God . . . and beacons for understanding what we are and what we are destined to be.

"The Assumption dogma will again serve to remind men that the body of a man was once the instrument of man's redemption from sin, when a human will nobly endured its wounds and agonies to make of them a sacrificial offering for the sins of man.

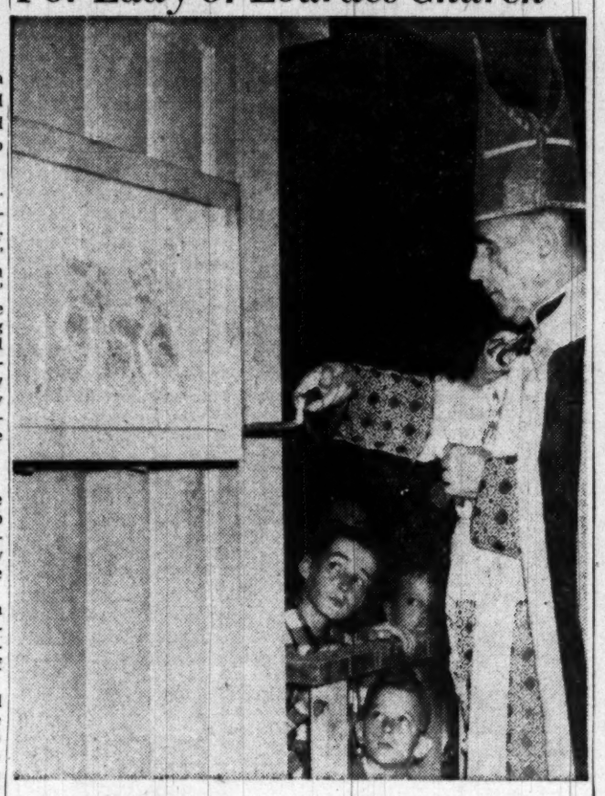
"It will remind us that the body of a woman was the instrument of God's uniting Himself in person with other human nature so that in truth 'the flesh of Christ is the flesh of Mary.'

"It will recall that upon our own bodies God labors in sacramental ways to bring about a new birth of soul, and in turn consecrate and glorify the whole man. It is the whole man who one day will receive the complete glorification of the child of God. That is our faith. 'I believe in the resurrection of the body and life everlasting.'"

Hundreds in Procession

One of the afternoon highlights yesterday was a procession of hundreds of priests and laymen to the Grotto of Lourdes in the famous gardens of the Franciscan Monastery. After a sermon at the Grotto by the Very Rev. Augustine Hobrecht, O.F.M., provincial of the Santa Barbara (Cal.) Province of the Franciscans, benediction was celebrated in the main church at the monastery by Bishop Bernard T. Espelage, O.F.M., of Gallup, N.M.

500 See Cornerstone Laid For Lady of Lourdes Church



Bishop McNamara lays the cornerstone of the new church

The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Washington, yesterday laid the cornerstone of the new $400,000 Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church, 4501 East-West hwy., Bethesda, Md.

More than 500 persons attended the ceremony at which the bishop congratulated the parishioners, after blessing the cornerstone.

Delegations from parish organizations and Our Lady of Lourdes School were among those attending. The Rev. Elmer T. Fisher, pastor, welcomed Bishop McNamara and members of the clergy and laity.

The new church is of contemporary architecture and is being built of brick. It is planned to seat 1000 persons, Father Fisher said, and is expected to be completed early next year.

Father Fisher, a native Washingtonian, has been pastor since 1945. His assistants are the Rev. John T. Sweeney and the Rev. Gerard A. McWilliams. The parish was founded in 1926 and now has more than 4500 members.

Fairlington Church Lays Cornerstone

An afternoon drizzle drove several hundred persons attending the cornerstone laying of the Fairlington Presbyterian Church yesterday into the adjoining Fairlington Methodist Church for services.

After a talk by Dr. Benjamin R. Lacy, jr., moderator of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., and president of Union Theological Seminary, the group adjourned to the new structure—on Leesburg pike near Shirley hwy.—for the actual cornerstone ceremony.

The pastor, the Rev. Charles C. Cowsert, said the first unit of the $250,000 church, a fellowship hall with steeple, is expected to be finished by February 1 at a cost of $80,000.

In University Park, Md., the Riverdale Presbyterian congregation yesterday morning held its first service in its new $190,000 church at 6513 Queens Chapel rd. The Rev. W. Keith Custis, minister, preached the opening sermon, "With Banners Waving." Special dedicatory services were held at 4 p. m.

Temple Church Marks 108th Anniversary

The one hundred eighth anniversary of Temple Baptist Church, 10th and N sts. nw., was observed yesterday, with the pastor, the Rev. Melvine W. Crump, tracing its history in a birthday sermon.

The third oldest Baptist congregation in the city, Temple numbered among its congregation such men as Stephen A. Douglas, the Illinois Senator who debated with Lincoln, and Sam Houston, first President of the Republic of Texas, Dr. Crump stated.

The pastor said the church membership of 808 is largest in its history.

Among other speakers at the service was the Rev. Thomas E. Boorde, a former pastor.

50-Year Union Forged by D.C. Blacksmith

When a blacksmith takes a bride, he forges a union made to last, Harry P. Johnson might tell you.

Johnson, 77, retired blacksmith, and his wife, Minnie, 67, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Wednesday.

A reception will take place at their home, 657 F st. ne.

The couple, who attribute their happy life together to a simple formula of love and hard work, are both natives of the District and were married at the First Methodist Church here, October 11, 1900.

The Johnsons are members of the Ninth Street Christian Church, 9th and D sts. ne.

They have five daughters, Mrs. Marvin Fant, 710 Van Buren st. nw.; Mrs. Clyde McCurdy, 5606 43d ave., Hyattsville; Mrs. Minnie E. Cox of the F st. address; Mrs. Harold Heigham, 8300 Tilbury st., Bethesda, and Mrs. J. H. McNamara, 10210 Pierce dr., Four Corners, Md.

Theater Guild Company Arrives For Patrick Play

The first actors and scenery in a Theater Guild play to come to Washington in three years arrived from Boston last night for one of six plays to be presented at the new Gayety Theater.

Opening the series at 8:30 o'clock tonight will be Lillian Gish in a pre-Broadway play by John Patrick, "The Curious Savage."

While stagehands set up scenery last night, the cast rehearsed on the second floor of the Chicken Hut restaurant, 427 11th st. nw.

Alexandria Offers Classes in Ceramics

Evening ceramics classes for adults will be held weekly, beginning Wednesday, at the Cameron Street Recreation Center, the Alexandria Recreation Department announced yesterday.

The six-week course is scheduled each Wednesday from 7:30 to 10 p. m. Registration fee is $1 plus 75 cents for each class.

Ad Club to Meet

Kean Johnson, vice president of the Reynolds Metals Co. and former Undersecretary of Labor, will address the Advertising Club of Washington Tuesday at 12:30 p. m. in the Statler Hotel. A former newspaperman, Johnson was Governor of Kentucky from 1939 to 1943.

New Speaking Classes Open Here Tuesday

Baroness von Schoen, who recently returned from a summer in Europe, will introduce Mrs. Hester Beall Provensen, assistant Professor of Speech at Maryland University, at the opening of the newly christened Capital Public Speaking Classes on Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. in the Hamilton room of Wardman Park Hotel. Mrs. Provensen succeeds Mrs. Hugh Butler who has left Washington and who conducted her own "Public Speaking Classes" for several years.

Mrs. Joseph Miller will preside at the meeting Tuesday morning.

Symphony Lists Its Speakers

A LARGE GROUP of Washington music lovers have been named as members of the speakers bureau of the National Symphony Orchestra, Mrs. Robert Sher, chairman of the committee, has announced.

Mrs. Gordon Young has already appeared before numerous service organizations in behalf of the symphony's current ticket sale drive, as has Mrs. Carl Spaatz.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman has volunteered her services for the duration of the drive, as have Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, Mrs. George Beishlag, Mrs. M. Quinn Shaughnessy, Mrs. Robert H. Dunlap and Mrs. DeForest Van Slyck.

Other local music lovers who have offered their services include Kenneth Todd Young, Lloyd Cutler, Patrick Hayes, Richard Keith, Hugh K. Duffield and Gordon Reid.

Additional volunteers are Mrs. Hans Klagsbrunn, Paul Hume, Mrs. Philip S. Owen, Mrs. George Morris, Mrs. Raymond Clapper.

"WE'LL BE SEEING YOU IN THE FUNNY PAPERS, KIDS," Bob Smith seems to be saying. It's an old corny line, but this time it's true. HOWDY DOODY and his friends will be seeing you in the funny papers, every Sunday starting October 15th in the color comic section of The Washington Post.

This told the ladies what to wear

From 1830 to 1898, Godey's Lady's Book set the styles for women. In this magazine, Grandma learned not only what to wear, but how she should behave in company, what she should say and even what to think! Godey's fixed the fashions and molded the morals of women more than any other magazine of that era.

This tells the ladies where to buy

Modern women find the answers to their buying problems in the YELLOW PAGES, your Classified Telephone Directory. Quickly and easily, this handy book locates the products and services you need—tells who sells it and where. And that includes unusual, hard-to-find items as well. Just look in the book and you'll save time, trouble and travel.

LEGAL NOTICES 4

LEO SCHLOSBERG, Attorney
1010 Vermont Avenue N.W.

Filed Sept. 18, 1950. Harry M. Hull, Clerk.
UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT for the District of Columbia. Frank J. Dorr, Plaintiff, vs. unknown heirs, devisees and alienees of Helen Jackson, Defendant. No. 3198-50. The object of this suit is the removal of a cloud on the title to real estate in the District of Columbia known as Lot 4 in Square 4348. On motion of the plaintiff, it is this 18th day of September, 1950, ordered that the defendants, the unknown heirs, alienees, and devisees, of Helen Jackson, cause their appearance to be entered herein on or before the first rule day occurring after the expiration of three months from the date of the first publication of this order; otherwise the cause will be proceeded with as in case of default. Provided, a copy of this order be published twice a month for three months in the Washington Law Reporter, and The Washington Post Newspaper before said day. (S) T. Alan Goldsborough, Justice. (Seal) Attest: Harry M. Hull, Clerk. By Eleanor E. Jobe, Deputy Clerk.

ADVERTISING OPPORTUNITY
Here's a chance for a college graduate to get a toehold on the advertising ladder. To start, it's only a messenger's job at $30 a week. Within a few months, the next step will be calling on the retail trade, doing merchandising. After that—probably advertising salesman, but maybe research or production or copy, depending on the man. This is really a good opportunity and we want to give it to the right man. Since it's primarily a stepping stone to selling advertising, don't apply unless you have a sales personality. If in doubt, you haven't.

SALESMAN

Yesterday a Salesman's Dream
Today a Salesman's Utopia

One of the country's largest manufacturers and distributors of COMMERCIAL REFRIGERATION has just taken over exclusive national distribution of an unusual soda-dispensing system, for which every restaurant and institution is a potential buyer. This item has been tremendously successful in our other branches and for that reason we are creating a separate department for promotional purposes. A large-scale advertising campaign will back up those salesmen chosen. We are talking of permanent positions for three men, and will give preference to experienced refrigeration salesmen, and successful bar and grill representatives.

To men who qualify, we offer a high drawing account, against top-bracket commission, and an opportunity for advancement with an organization that has opened up three new branches within the past year.

We are offering the man with ability an opportunity for a lucrative future. If you think you are qualified, call LI. 6-0221 for an appointment with our sales manager.

ADVERTISING OPPORTUNITY

Here's a chance for a college graduate to get a toehold on the advertising ladder. To start, it's only a messenger's job at $30 a week. Within a few months, the next step will be calling on the retail trade, doing merchandising. After that—probably advertising salesman, but maybe research or production or copy, depending on the man. This is really a good opportunity and we want to give it to the right man. Since it's primarily a stepping stone to selling advertising, don't apply unless you have a sales personality. If in doubt, you haven't.

3 to Answer Acheson Critics At 1950 Legion Convention

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8 (U.P.)—Three State Department representatives will answer criticism of Secretary of State Dean Acheson's power before 150,000 American Legion delegates who open their thirty-second national convention here Monday.

At least one delegation was reported ready to introduce a resolution demanding Acheson's ouster.

Ben G. Crosby, a member of the Department's public liaison division, said he and two other officials were sent here in response to an urgent invitation from Erle Cocke, jr., chief of the Legion's national security commission.

Cocke's group charges laxity and bumgling in the State Department.

Undersecretary Carlisle Hummelsine will discuss the Department's loyalty and security programs in a meeting with the Legion national security council, Crosby said. Bradley Conners, chief of the Department's Far Eastern public affairs division, will stop over in Los Angeles Wednesday on his return from Korea.

Crosby said Conners would explain the Government's policy in the Orient, one of the chief Legion targets.

On a more serious note, memorial services were held tonight in Hollywood bowl for the Nation's war dead.

[According to the Associated Press, a resolution calling for use of the atom bomb against Russia in retaliation for any future aggression was adopted today by the National Executive Committee of the Legion. The resolution is to be recommended Monday to the national convention.]

Hemisphere Press Parley Opens in N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8 (U.P.)—Publishers and editors from all parts of the Western Hemisphere assembled here today for the 1950 Inter-American Press Conference.

More than 200 representatives of newspapers and periodicals from Canada to Argentina had registered before noon, and it was apparent that nearly 400 will be present when the opening plenary session convenes Monday at 10 a. m. in the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria.

Although not regarded in any sense as a "political" meeting, many of the visitors felt that discussion of the all-important "freedom of the press" theme might overlap some correlative political questions.

On Saturday evening the conference shifts to Washington for two days that will culminate in a reception by President Truman.

Sessions here will afford the first large-scale opportunity for general discussion of technical and mechanical problems of newspaper production, as the agenda for Tuesday includes such themes as newsprint situation, technical advances in printing, and manufacture of paper from residual agricultural materials.

Judges Weigh Legality of Anti-Red Law

CUMBERLAND, Md., Oct. 8 (AP).—Two associate circuit judges are weighing the constitutionality of Cumberland's new ordinance requiring Communists to register with police and banning distribution of Communist literature.

A hearing on a test suit challenging the legality of the law was held before Associate Judges George Henderson and Patrick Schnauffer yesterday in Allegany Circuit Court.

Afterward, Henderson said, it would be "some time before the verdict is announced."

The suit was brought by Clair Mease, William N. Coleman and Arthur M. Schusterman. Coleman and Schusterman admitted they were Communists and were convicted of failing to register under the new law last month, but later publicly resigned from the party.

Arguing for the petitioners were three Baltimore attorneys—I. Duke Avnet, Mitchell Dubow and William H. Murphy. They contended the law violates the First, Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution and Articles 18, 23 and 40 of the Maryland Bill of Rights.

VA Tightens Rule For GIs Wishing To Change Studies

The Veterans Administration yesterday issued new regulations for veterans seeking to take new studies under the GI bill of rights.

Henceforth, a veteran who wants to change courses or take new studies must apply to the VA regional office handling his records. If the veteran has not previously changed "fields of study," the agency will approve his application. But if he is making a second change of studies, he will have to "undergo advisement and guidance."

The agency also reminded that, under the new law, veterans may not start any training under the GI bill after next July 25.

Population of Berlin Down Nearly Million

BERLIN, Oct. 8 (U.P.)—A census showed today that Berlin has a population of approximately 3,642,391—a decline of nearly one million since 1943 when the count was 4,500,000.

The population of West Berlin, which includes the American, British and French sectors, was listed at 2,142,391. The Russian-occupied sector has approximately 1,500,00 persons.

Halsey Is Taken Ill At Veterans' Session

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Oct. 8 (AP).—William (Bull) Halsey, who commanded the United States Third Fleet in the Pacific in World War II, was taken ill today and rushed by ambulance to a nearby military hospital. His condition was listed as not serious.

Halsey, who retired as admiral of the fleet in 1947, was stricken this morning as he prepared to address the national encampment of the Jewish War Veterans. Halsey, who is 67, delivered the address. Dr. Alex E. Maron said the retired admiral had suffered a severe nosebleed!

TV Musical Comedy A Welcome Show

By John Crosby

N. B. C.'s newest and biggest production splash in the television dodge is "Musical Comedy Time" which will alternate with the Robert Montgomery theater every other week on Mondays (N.B.C.-TV 9:30 p. m.)

And a mighty welcome show it is, too.

Crosby

The new operation opened with Cole Porter's 1934 musical comedy "Anything Goes," an exuberant, terribly funny and magnificently tuneful show. In fact, for the benefit of you younger theatergoers who started trotting to musicals around the time of "Oklahoma," "Anything Goes" is one of the best examples of a type of musical that has all but vanished from our stage.

That is, it is gay, rowdy, iconoclastic and there isn't a single serious thought in it. There are no notes of social criticism as there are in "South Pacific," no tragedy as in "Carousel" and nothing even remotely resembling ballet. It is an art form at which American composers and authors excelled and it's awfully pleasant to see one again after so many years of the more somber musical comedies.

The list of authors is one of the most impressive in recent stage history. Besides Porter who turned out one of his best scores, the list includes Guy Bolton, P. G. Woodhouse, Russel Crouse and Howard Lindsay.

THE ORIGINAL CAST was composed of Ethel Merman, Victor Moore and Billy Gaxton. On the N. B. C. show, Martha Raye, a girl of great courage, stepped into the Merman role and did a perfectly wonderful job of it. In fact, if you can't get Miss Merman, Miss Raye is certainly the best substitute around both as a comedienne and as a singer.

Billy Lynn was no substitute for Victor Moore as Marty Moon, Public Enemy No. 13. But there simply aren't any substitutes for Moore and Lynn must have seemed adequate to anyone who hadn't seen Moore in the original. Much of the topical humor of 1934 didn't stand up very well in 1950.

Still, "Anything Goes" weathered the last 16 years remarkably well. More importantly, it filled a need in television that seemed to me to be crying aloud. Right now television is aflame with variety shows, revues and other musical claptrap that can best be compared to stage shows at the Roxy in a bad week. Musical comedy—in other words, something with a plot and a cast of people who are supposed to represent something besides actors—has been inexplicably missing.

COMING UP on "Musical Comedy Time" are such excellent old-timers as "Whoopee" (next one up), "Rio Rita," "The Merry Widow" and "The Chocolate Soldier," whose book was inspired by "Arms and the Man" by a playwright named George Bernard Shaw. What they'll do next year, I have no idea. All those musicals are, in one way or another, classics and they come along once in a generation.

Oh, just one other thing—the commercials. "Musical Comedy Time" is sponsored by Procter & Gamble, a soap company. Their device for selling the stuff is to plump a blonde in the bathtub and show her scrubbing away industriously, here and there. Haven't seen that sort of thing in a musical since the late Earl Carroll took to Hollywood. Never has cleanliness been so far removed from Godliness.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Jean Is Whistlin' Dixie In Self-Defense

Former Washingtonian Jean Broulik, whose husband has been transferred to the United States Naval Base at Charleston, S. C., reports on her new home with the lines:

We're gettin' us Southern accents,
'Cause honeychile otherwise
These Confed'rates in this Southland
Might shoot us as Union spies.

OTHER CHEEK

Best wisecrack of my televiewing week—from the Robert Q. Lewis show on WTOP-TV:

"I'm a nature lover—and considering what nature did to me, I think that's pretty sporting of me."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I was on vacation at the same time you were, but asked that my copies of The Washington Post be saved for me, so that I could catch up with things when I got back.

I was amused by your wife's comment as you headed west from Cincinnati, to the effect that you were leaving the breweries of Cincinnati to drive past the distilleries of Lawrenceburg (Ind.) toward the breweries of St. Louis.

As we headed west from the Pennsylvania Turnpike, we noticed a number of beer signs with names we'd never heard of before. So we started counting different brands of beer and compiled a list with 66 names.

However, in Aurora, Ill., we gave up and admitted defeat. A sign there said: "Steins—90 Kinds of Ice Cold Beer."

But we completed our trip without having sampled any of the 90.

Travel certainly is broadening, isn't it?

Luella M. Moyer
4211 8th st. nw.

Dear Mrs. Moyer:

So is beer, according to the lady at our house. I can't convince her that it's merely chock-full of life-giving vitamins or calories or something.

Bill.

"Three-month-old pup, mixture toy collie and spitz." (Lincoln 7-1665 after 10:30 a. m.)

END OF AN ERA?

While ice skating isn't one of the Nation's most popular forms of recreation, millions of American kids get at least a nodding acquaintance with the sport.

But here in Washington, it appears that a new generation is about to grow up without ever knowing the thrill of gliding along the ice on a pair of skates.

First blow was the announcement that the Chevy Chase Ice Palace would hereafter be used for television broadcasts. And now I learn that Uline's Arena will offer no ice skating this season, because it's being rented out for other purposes. We'll have Louis Armstrong and Billy Eckstine—and even a roller skating "derby" this fall. But no ice skating.

Uline Veep Bob Foster says he's sorry, but the arena loses money on skaters and makes money on its other attractions. As a business firm it can't see shelling out $188 to put in ice (not counting labor) and then getting a return of $40 an hour for about three weekday evening hours. And Sundays are the best days for money-making outside attractions.

Mrs. Carney S. Werner of 1303 N. Ode st., Arlington, Va., wonders whether something can't be done for local skaters—and I'm afraid that the answer is "not much."

There's been talk of the skaters themselves building an outdoor rink, but the weather here isn't particularly suitable for that. And, besides, any promotion of this kind is very difficult to put across.

Going over to Baltimore, where facilities are available, isn't very attractive, either. And the Interior Department offers little consolation with regard to the use of the Reflecting Pool at the Lincoln Memorial.

The Weather Bureau tells me that in an average local winter, we'll have 82 days on which the temperature gets down to freezing or lower. But that includes days on which the mercury just barely got down that far, and for only a short time.

It takes much more than a whiff of 32-degree weather to freeze the Reflecting Pool. And Frank T. Gartside of the National Capital Parks office tells me that you can't just leave "a thin layer of water" in the pool, in the hopes that it will freeze faster, because there's a lateral slope of almost a foot in the pool. It's lower along the sides than it is in the center.

Besides, Washington's weather is too mild to provide much outdoor skating. It takes two or three cold days to get the ice thick enough—and last year we didn't get that kind of cold spell even once.

To the best of my knowledge, I've exhausted all possibilities. Does anybody else have any suggestions?

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st. se. tells me he thinks he's getting a reputation as a great lover. Wherever he goes, people nudge each other and say: "Look at the kisser on that guy."

REVISED VERSION

Suggested line for the ushers who are stationed outside packed movie houses: "Immediate waiting on all seats."

TV's famous Howdy Doody and his friends will star in a great new color comic strip in The Post, starting next Sunday, October 15.

Public Asked To Assess Who 'Lies'

By Drew Pearson

Congressman Walter Brehm of Ohio recently called me a liar for exposing his "kickback" manipulations with his office payroll.

Pearson

I suppose it might be appropriate to remind Congressman Brehm that some of his former colleagues referred to me in the same language, notably former Congressman J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey and former Congressman Andrew May of Kentucky, though they later went to jail.

However, I prefer to answer Congressman Brehm by giving some additional facts in the case and letting the public decide who is really guilty of telling lies.

The total kickbacks Brehm received from Mrs. Clara Soliday, a 75-year-old widow formerly employed in his office for three years, amounted to approximately $7300.

Here is a month-to-month account of how this money was paid to Brehm from the time she went on his payroll January 10, 1945, until she was summarily discharged January 31, 1948, after having broken her arm.

Mrs. Soliday was paid $232.22 for the first part-month she was employed. Of this, she had to kick back $100 to her boss. In the next five months, from February 1 to July 1, 1945, she received $332.72 monthly, of which she returned $150 each month to Brehm.

Her salary went up in July to $359.16 a month (net after regular income and withholding taxes) and so did her kickbacks. From July to December 31, Mrs. Soliday regularly returned $175 of her monthly earnings to Brehm.

For the first six months of 1946 Mrs. Soliday kicked back $180 a month out of a $373.86 net salary. From June 30, until she lost her job January 31, 1948, her listed salary was $442 a month. However, during all this 19-month period Mrs. Soliday kicked back $240 a month to Brehm.

Since a Congressman's payroll is financed by the taxpayers, it is a violation of public trust, as well as the law, for him to require kickbacks from office assistants. However, all Brehm ever told Mrs. Soliday was that the money she gave him was needed by the GOP "committee" in Ohio for "campaign" purposes.

Troubles Pile Up

The aged lady's troubles really began to pile up in late 1947. While vacationing with a daughter in Cleveland, Ohio, Mrs. Soliday fell and hurt her arm. However, another kickback to Brehm was due and she hastened back to Washington on August 30, 1947, without stopping for medical treatment.

The arm was X-rayed in Washington and found to be broken, but before it could be set Mrs. Soliday went to the office of the House sergeant-at-arms on August 31 to cash her paycheck. Then she went to a hospital, where she told a daughter, Mrs. Margaret Hiser, to get $240 from her (Mrs. Soliday's) pocketbook.

She then informed her daughter to put the money in an envelope also in the pocketbook.

The envelope, believe it or not, bore Brehm's free mailing frank, plus his return address in Washington in Brehm's own handwriting!

"Isn't this a lot of cash to be sending in a letter?" Mrs. Hiser recalls asking her mother.

Up to this point — August 31, 1947 — Mrs. Hiser says that she didn't know about her mother's kickbacks, but learned about the payroll padding for the first time when she put the $240 in the envelope and mailed it to Brehm.

Last Kickback

A son, Ray Soliday, an Interstate Commerce Commission official in Washington, personally delivered the last kickback to Brehm after Mrs. Soliday, still ailing from her accident and unable to meet Brehm's efficiency standards, was fired.

Soliday went to Brehm's Capitol Hill office the first week in February, 1948, with the $240 in cash. However, he urged the Congressman to permit his mother to keep the final payment "in view of the circumstances" (her being discharged) and the fact that she had "no visible means of support."

However, Brehm refused, saying that the "committee" (in Ohio) expected the money and that he, Brehm, could not go back on his "arrangement" with the committee.

"I don't care what the committee thinks," retorted Soliday. "My mother is entitled to this money and she should be allowed to keep it."

Finally, Brehm agreed to let Soliday return $100 of the $240 to his mother—a sort of kickback in reverse—but he pocketed the remaining $140 for the "committee."

Ray Soliday didn't see Congressman Brehm again until last July when he was summoned to Brehm's apartment in the Methodist building and informed him that "Drew Pearson is after a story about me."

"If Drew Pearson or any of his employes contact you—don't talk to them," instructed Brehm.
